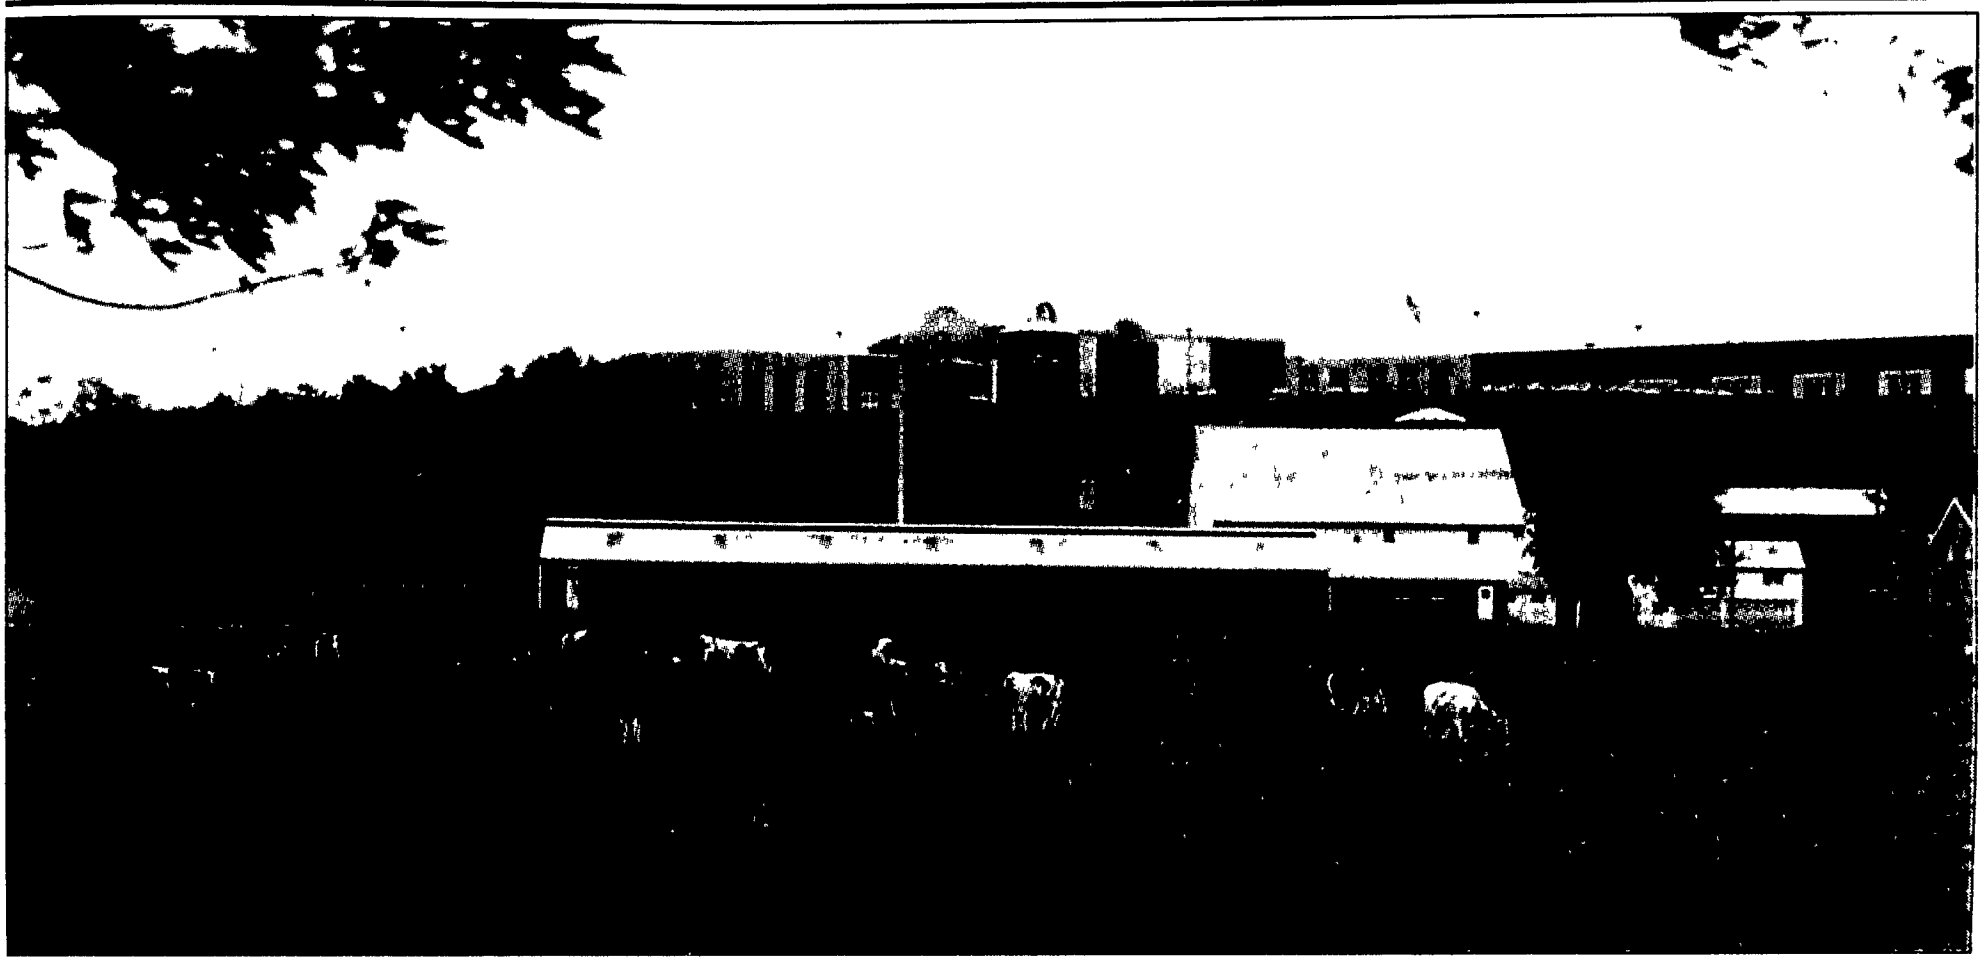
Vol. 48 No. 29 | www.lancasterfarming.com | Five Sections | Saturday, May 17, 2003 | $37.00 Per Year | $1.00 Per Copy



ELVERSON (Chester Co.) — With the arrival of spring comes renewed pastures, and grazing has come full force to the region. In addition, fence installation and repair are part of the chores. This is a scene from the Todd and Christina Kurtz Farm on Wednesday at the foot of Twin Valley High School, Elverson.

According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, for the week ending May 11, there were three days suitable for fieldwork. Soil moisture was rated as 1 percent very short, 6 percent short, 57 percent adequate, and 36 percent surplus.

Rain and hail across Pennsylvania prevented most farmers from doing any significant amount of fieldwork. Despite this, the percent of spring plowing advanced to 72 percent complete, a 9 percent increase over last week but 5 percent behind 2002. Although rain slowed fieldwork, it helped improve the condition of pasture land. Six percent of pasture land was rated as poor, 26 percent was fair, 53 percent was good, and 15 percent was excellent. Photo by Andy Andrews, editor

CWT Outlines Buyout, Milk Cutback Plan

DAVE LEFEVER

DELTA (York Co.) — About 50 dairy farmers attended a meeting here Thursday evening to find out how paying 18 cents a hundredweight on their milk under a "voluntary price management program" could result in higher farm milk prices within a period of months, according to creators of the plan.

Known as Cooperatives Working Together (CWT), the fast-moving, non-government effort to combat record-low milk prices is being designed by members of the National Milk Producers Federation (NMPF).

Cooperatives that have agreed to move ahead with the plan so far include Dairy Farmers of America (DFA), Land O' Lakes, Dairylea, Maryland & Virginia, Allied, Mount Joy, and others.

CWT leaders are expecting to begin a 30-day sign-up period in June, and to have the program up and running by July.

Their goal is for producers of 80 percent of the nation's milk supply to join, including members of independent co-ops. At this point, with nearly all NMPF co-ops and some independents on board, the total stands at about 70 percent.

Herd buyouts, production cutback incentives, and export price assistance make up the "three-legged proposal" to lift milk prices out of the unprecedented slump they've been in since late 2001, said Jerrel Heatwole, a DFA director and dairy farmer from Greenwood, Delaware.

Most of the buyout and reduction incentives are targeted to western and southwestern states, where production has risen the most dramatically in recent years.

While national milk production has continued to climb, demand has remained flat during the last year and a half, resulting in blend milk prices at levels unseen since the late 1970s. A major purpose of the farmer-funded CWT program is to bring dairy product supplies more in line with demand.

"It's time for dairy farmers to work together," Heatwole said.

Program Targets Fly Complaints

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — As new shopping, industrial, and housing complexes make inroads into farm areas, coexistence between agriculture and the non-farm public has become an increasingly pressing issue.

A poultry management and health seminar hosted by Penn State on Monday focused on helping to address complaints about black fly problems.

About 25 poultry producers and industry representatives attended the event, conducted at Kreider's Restaurant.

Complaints about flies have already come in this year, according to Gregory Martin, capital region poultry agent.

To address the issue, an integrated team has been assembled under the Special Weapons And Tactics (SWAT) program. "Just as in law enforcement, we try to move quickly to help solve problems," said Martin.

The interdisciplinary group serves several regions of the commonwealth and includes government, industry, and academia.

The SWAT program, explained Martin, was founded "to provide concise, repeatable, and

Compared to Thursday, slaughter steers sold fully 1.00 higher with bids up to 2.00 higher on the higher quality stock. The quality of both the Monday and Tuesday run was outstanding, with buyers responding to the improved finish by pushing Prime steers up to over 86.00 at times; with an estimated 60 percent of the two day run trading at or above the 80.00 mark. What a difference a year makes, as this time last year Choice steers were bringing from 68.00-71.00; and as you can imagine local producers are sporting some pretty wide grins. However, there is always a downside, as many feeders are keeping an ear pinned to their radios while they are busy planting corn, just waiting to hear the noon futures and western fat market reports. Although, it will take a lot more than the bearish tone of the summer contracts at the Merc to put a damper on the current market. Holstein steers sold fully 1.00-2.00 higher on a light run, with most of the increase on the Monday run. There were not enough slaughter heifers for a market test. Breaking and Boning cows sold 1.00-2.00 lower when compared to Thursday's very active market, with lean slaughter cows trading near steady. When compared to Monday's run, the cow supply trended with a firmer undertone. The quality of the Tuesday run was very mixed, and consisted of mostly below average cows. Slaughter bulls were not tested due to the light run. The two-day supply included 381 head of steers, 33 heifers, 299 cows, 18 bulls, with 33 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1190-1495 lbs 80.25-83.75, several very fancy up to 86.00. Calves: Compared to Thursday's graded sale, veal calves sold 5.00-10.00 higher. Holstein bull calves suitable for special-fed veal barns sold steady to 12.00 higher on the Number One bulls. Number Two graded bulls sold 17.00-18.00 higher, although they sold at around a 5.00-30.00 discount to the Number One supply. Holstein heifers sold with a lower undertone when compared to the light Thursday run. The PA Department of Ag graded 432 head of bulls and heifers for the graded sale, with around 84 percent of the graded run going back on feed

Veal Calves: Standard and Utility 60-130 lbs 20.00-40.00. Returning to Feed: Graded Number One Holstein Bulls lot average 121 lbs 130.00; 90-115 lbs 152.00-182.00; couple packages 80-85 lbs 140.00. Compared to Tuesday, slaughter steers sold fully 1.00-2.00 higher. The quality of the run was very good, as the vast majority of the run was comprised of Choice and Prime steers; which looked more like the hard-fed Lancaster County cattle the area is known for. This week in the county finished prices have advanced 2.00-4.00 when compared to last week's closing bids. Needless to say, bidding was extremely active Thursday. On Tuesday single steers were trading up to 86.00 if they would grade Prime, however, on Thursday there were packages trading up to 86.00. One would like to think they know why prices have sky- rocketed lately, but very few producers are questioning it; as long as it stays good. On the technical side, the national meat and finished trades have both been bullish, the meat more so than the direct feedyards. Boxed beef cutout values for a 600-750 lb carcass are over 7.00 higher this week through Thursday, although there remains a 19 cent spread between the Select and Choice boxes as packers are quick to remind feeders that they want cattle, but they don't need to hang up any more Select sides. Prime Holstein steers were in good demand, and sold steady to 1.00 higher. However, Choice and lower grades were not as hot, as bids were mostly steady and even noted as weaker at times when compared to the light Tuesday run. There were not enough slaughter heifers on hand to test the market. All classes of slaughter cows sold fully 1.00-3.00 higher in very active trading and good buyer attendance. Demand was good, but the run was rather light, which forced buyers to put a little more on their bids. There was a very good supply of fleshy (65-75 percent lean) cows on hand, especially when compared to the early week runs. Slaughter bulls sold steady to firm when compared to the good Monday run. There was a very good supply of bulls on hand, with bidding active, especially on the fancy high dressers. The run included 1201 head of cattle which is around 300 head lighter than last week as more producers are beginning to worry more about getting their crops in the ground than they are sending in cattle. The supply included 651 head of steers, 359 cows, 37 heifers, 74 bulls, with 80 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1200-1455 lbs 81.75-86.25, mostly 82.00-85.00 with the exception of a pkg at 86.00. Choice 2-3 1105-1440 lbs 80.00-83.00, few 79.50-80.00, heavyweights 1500-1565 lbs 77.25-82.25, high dressing Charolais-X's 80.00-83.25 with a couple from 84.75-86.00. Few Choice 1-2 1090-1425 lbs 80.50-84.00. Choice 4 1190-1370 lbs 75.50-79.50. Select and low Choice 2-3 1030-1440 lbs 76.25-79.75. Select 1-2 1060-1460 lbs 74.25- 77.00, heavier muscled up to 81.50.

National Egg Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
May 14, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

Prices were unchanged in all areas. Trade sentiment was generally steady. Demand at retail outlets was light to occasionally fairly good. Supplies were adequate to available for present trade needs. Breaking stock supplies were tight to sufficient for the moderate to good demand. The National shell egg inventory was 5% less than the previous week. Light type hens were generally adequate for the fair to moderate demand.

National Turkey Market At A Glance

Des Moines, Iowa
Report Supplied By USDA

DOMESTIC MARKET HIGHLIGHTS: The market tone was steady to barely steady on frozen 8-16 lb hens and 16-24 lb toms. Light sales of private label hens and toms basted, netted with a timer was reported. Offerings were fully sufficient for the current lackluster demand. Bulk parts and meats trading was slow to materalize. Demand from buyers unaggressive.

EXPORT HIGHLIGHTS: Trading inactive. Demand light to moderate with most buyers taking a wait and see attitude and unwilling to purchase product at any price. Supplies adequate.

Corn Belt Feedstuff

St. Joseph, Mo.
Report Supplied By USDA

CORN BELT FEEDSTUFF: Feedstuff prices were mixed for the week. Soybean meal prices were slightly higher following a sharp jump in soybeans on the Board. Demand held mostly steady but many users had stopped buying due to other means of feeding. Alfalfa and alfalfa meal prices were steady to lower from product availability. Distillers grains were narrowly mixed as demand eased off in a seasonal pattern. Wet weather and rain delayed planting was the major story last week across the Corn Belt. Hopefully drier conditions are coming this week.

SOYBEAN MEAL: 48 percent rail was 1.00 to 3.00 higher at 199.00. 48 percent truck was 1.00 to 2.00 higher from 199.00-209.00 per ton.

CORN BY-PRODUCTS: Gluten Feed 21 percent. Interior Points was steady from 60.00-65.00; Chicago was steady to 2.00 higher from 62.00-70.00. 60 percent Gluten Meal, Interior Points was steady from 230.00-235.00; Chicago 1.00 lower to 5.00 higher from 230.00-237.00 per ton. Rail Hominy Feed, Central Illinois Points was 3.00 higher from 70.00-73.00; truck 2.00 to 3.00 higher from 72.00- 82.00. Crude Corn Oil was 25 to 50 points higher from 28.25-29.50 cents per pound.

MILLFEEDS: Northwest was steady at 52.00; Buffalo 2.00 to 5.00 higher from 58.00-62.00 per ton.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat and corn bids weakened from technical pressure after recent high trading. The absence of fresh export sales and some moisture in dry hard red winter wheat growing areas pushed wheat bids slightly lower. Corn planting continued where it was possible and good progress has been made, despite the intermittent wet weather. Light fund buying and a couple of good export orders this week limited declines in corn pits. Soybean bids were higher for the fourth consecutive day due to continued concerns that the wet weather may cause corn acres to switch to beans. Lack of export interest so far this week has limited gains today. Wheat 1 to 9 cents lower. Corn 1 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 3 cents lower. Soybeans 3 to 7 cents higher.

CUSHIONED EGG

Electronic Drives
The innovative, electronically-controlled drive system enables eggs to be transported at a smooth, continuous speed on an endless conveyor with drive units located intermittently up to 150' apart.

Optimum Rod Spacing
Space between each cushioned rod is the key to egg separation and preventing smaller eggs from slipping through the conveyor while allowing all debris to be sifted out.

Design Flexibility
The unique "Cushioned Rod" egg conveyor enables you to custom design a system that gently transports eggs up, down, around corners and in a continuous straight line without transfer, and even declines to match processing equipment.

Custom Corners

ROD CONVEYOR TRANSPORT SYSTEM

Uni-Trac Construction
The "Cushioned Rod" egg conveyor is setting industry standards for efficiency. flexibility and cost savings with a unified construction design that eliminates the problems of egg transfer.

Rol-Link Chain System
An endless, custom designed, roller chain system and flexible cushioned plastic rods, cradle eggs in a gentle position that helps eliminate collisions and breakage.

Ideal Conveyor Widths

AMERICAN Coolair

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

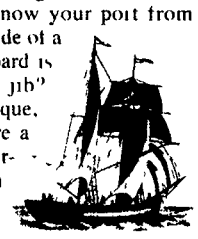
National Maritime Day on May 22 signals a time to increase your nautical knowledge and celebrate maritime history. Do you know your port from your starboard? (Port is the left side of a ship as you face forward, starboard is the right side.) A jibe from a jib? (Jibe, or jibing is a sailing technique, a jib is a type of sail.) If you're a novice to the maritime world, perhaps this bit of advice from The Wind in the Willows will entice you to get out on the water "... there is nothing—absolutely nothing—half so much worth doing as simply messing about in boats."



Rich are the sea-gods—who gives gifts but they?

–Ralph Waldo Emerson, American writer (1803–1882)

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

TIP OF THE WEEK

FISH CHOWDER

14 pounds cod or haddock, cubed, with bones and trimmings
1 stalk celery
1 bay leaf
1/4 teaspoon thyme
pinch of mace
2 onions, chopped
1/4 pound salt pork, diced fine
3 cups peeled, cubed potatoes
4 cups milk
2 tablespoons butter
salt and pepper, to taste

Pour 3 cups of water into a pot and add the fish bones and trimmings, celery, bay leaf, thyme, mace, and a tablespoon of the onions; bring to a boil and simmer the stock. Meanwhile, fry the salt pork in a soup pot with the rest of the onions. Add the cubed potatoes and fish, and cook for about 10 minutes. Strain the fish stock into the soup pot. Add the milk and butter, bring to just under a boil and then season to taste.

Makes 2 quarts

OPINION

Plan Should Unify Farmers

Last week, our page 1 story on a township's plan to drill a well on a dairy farm near Ephrata raises troubling questions about the future of agriculture in Pennsylvania — and not just on large-scale operations.

Paul B. and Lena Zimmerman's third-generation family farm is home to about 65 Holsteins and 50 acres of cropland. The Zimmermans' son, Paul Jr., manages the dairy herd.

East Cocalico Township is set on taking over a site near the center of the Zimmerman's cropland. A working municipal well there would prohibit normal ag production methods on 10 to 12 acres surrounding the wellhead, including any fertilizer or chemical applications. That would "just demolish the value of the farm," Paul B. Zimmerman said.

Township officials seem to be ignoring an application filed two and a half years ago for ag security protection on 500 acres of prime limestone farmland in the township. The Zimmermans were one of eight families who signed the application.

According to John Bell, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's counsel of governmental affairs, and Zimmerman's attorney, Paula Leicht, the Ag Security Area was automatically approved by law six months after it was submitted to the township in September of 2000. That makes the well-drilling plan illegal.

We believe the township has done a questionable job explaining what gives it the right to claim eminent domain on the Zimmerman farm.

To Control Caterpillars In Greenhouse Vegetable Production

Caterpillar pests are not usually considered to be a major pest in greenhouse vegetables. However, Cathy Thomas, with the Integrated Pest Management Program of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, reminds us they can be a problem in warmer months of the growing season.

During warmer weather, the adult stage (moth or butterfly, order Lepidoptera) migrates into the greenhouse to lay eggs. One of the most common species found in tomatoes is the tomato hornworm. However, tomato fruitworm, armyworm, and loopers can also infest tomatoes and peppers. If you are introducing natural enemies to control other pests, caterpillars must also be controlled with natural enemies or compatible pesticides.

There are many enemies of caterpillars found in natural populations that will attack caterpillars if you are not using a broad-spectrum insecticide program. Examples of these include predators such as assassin bugs, damsel bugs, minute pirate bugs, and parasitic flies and wasps. If populations are not kept in check with indigenous natural enemies, consider supplementing with biological controls that can be purchased through a biological control distributor.

Caterpillars and moths undergo complete metamorphosis consisting of four stages: egg, caterpillar (larva), pupa, and adult. Eggs are laid in groups on leaves. Eggs hatch into larvae that have well-developed chewing mouthparts. Larvae eat continuously and can cause damage to foliage and fruit in a short period of time. After several developmental larval stages, the insect transforms into a stage called the pupa or the resting stage. This stage does not feed and is usually inactive.

Pupae are often covered by a cocoon or some other kind of protective material. The final stage occurs when the adult butterfly or moth emerges from the cocoon to begin the egg-laying process again. Damage symptoms from larvae appear as holes chewed in leaves and/or fruit and large of amounts of excrement may be observed on the foliage.

One of the most popular and effective controls for caterpillars is the egg parasitoid, Trichogramma. These tiny wasps (.9 millimeter in length) work by laying eggs (parasitizing) in the eggs of many destructive caterpillar pests. A new wasp will emerge from the parasitized egg. If you are going to use this biocontrol, inspect the crop for the presence of eggs, since this is the life stage that is attacked. Trichogramma is not effective against the larval stages.

Grain moth eggs parasitized by Trichogramma are glued to small cards and shipped to the grower. The cards are then placed throughout the crop where the wasps will emerge to search the plants. Protect the cards from ants since they will feed on the eggs.

The species available from most biocontrol suppliers include T. brassicae, T. minutum, and T. pretiosum. Consult suppliers for applications rates and appropriate species needed for the crop and pest.

A microbial insecticide such as Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt) has a selective mode of action that will target caterpillars but not harm other beneficial organisms. Various subspecies (strains) are commercially available for controlling many common foliage-feeding caterpillars. The most widely used Bt insecticides are formulated from the bacteria Bacillus thuringiensis var. kurstaki (Dipel, Javelin). This isolate is toxic only to the larvae of butterflies and moths.

When the Bt is ingested by an insect, the protein toxin paralyzes and destroys the cells of the gut wall. Insects may die quickly or may stop feeding within 2 to 3 days. Mortality varies with larval size, target species, and the dose consumed. Caterpillars must feed on treated leaves for it to be effective since it is not a contact poison.

Azadirachtin (Azatin XL, Neemix) is a botanical insect growth regulator derived from kernels of the neem tree. As an insect growth regulator, Azadirachtin blocks the insect's production of hormones and interrupts the molting process, preventing the insect from completing its life cycle. Azadirachtin may also serve as a feeding deterrent for some insects. This compound is compatible with beneficial insects and in addition to controlling caterpillars it will kill/repel a variety of greenhouse pests.

Microbial and biological insecticides are registered by the Environmental Protection Agency. Growers must read and follow the label to determine if the intended use has been approved. Always read the label before using.

To Remember To Vote On Tuesday

Tuesday May 20 is the Pennsylvania Primary Election. The ballot for the fall elections will be determined for many local offices, including township supervisor, school board director, and county commissioner. Officials in these positions make decisions which have a big impact on your ability to operate your business. The primary election is especially important in areas where one political party is dominant. In those areas the individuals who win the primary usually are elected in the fall.

Because we are having a late spring and some work is behind schedule, it will be tempting to skip voting this time. However, you should park your equipment or leave other tasks for a few minutes and get out and vote. Don't leave it to others to decide who will be on the ballot in the fall.

Quote Of The Week:

❖ FARM FORUM ❖

Editor:

Thank you for running the Vector Tobacco article in last week's Lancaster Farming. I share your concerns.

Attached is a letter from Mr. LeBow, chief executive officer of Vector, in response to my request to continue growing tobacco in Pennsylvania in 2003. I believe it would be helpful to share this letter with your readers. While it is not a commitment letter for 2004, it is a strong statement about Vector's positive relationship with Pennsylvania growers.

— Dennis C. Wolff
Pa. Secretary of Agriculture
Harrisburg

It was with regret that I had to inform you in our recent telephone conference that Vector Tobacco would not be growing tobacco during the 2003 crop season.

We have come to greatly value the relationship that we have with the Pennsylvania farmers as well as with your office, and we recognize the importance that our crops have been to the local farming community. Therefore, you should be assured that we have explored all possible options before making this difficult decision.

As we explained, from our perspective, the launch of Quest is going

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

DO YOU HAVE IT?

Background Scripture:
Mark 9:14-37.
Devotional Reading:
John 16:25-33.

Many years ago I climbed to the top of the mountain traditionally noted to be the Mount of Transfiguration. It was a true "mountaintop experience" for me, not just because there is a marvelous view of the Galilee plain below, but because the experience of Jesus, Peter, James, and John is made very real here.

Later, as I descended the mountain, I remembered that what happened next at its base was also very important. As Jesus came down, he saw "a great crowd about them, and scribes arguing with them. And immediately all the crowd, when they saw him, were greatly amazed" (Mk. 9:15). Note the striking difference between the scene at the top of the mount, an experience of God's glory, and that which greeted him below, controversy and argument.

Why was the crowd "amazed" when they saw Jesus? It may have been because Jesus still shone with the luminous light of glory. They may not have known what he experienced up there, but they could see that he was transformed by it.

Discussing?

Jesus asked, "What are you (the disciples) discussing with them (the scribes)?" The term "discussing" sounds like a reproach. A man brought his son to be healed and the best that the disciples and scribes could do was to discuss it.

Sometimes in the church that is what we are best at — discussing urgent needs. Halford Luccock comments: "The sad plight of the epileptic boy called for more than arguments, debates, rebuttals — words, words, words. . . . It called for adequate power."

A man in the crowd said to Jesus, "I brought my son to you . . . and I asked your disciples to cast it out, and they were not able" (9:19). What a judgment upon the disciples: called upon to heal a tragic affliction, "they were not able." Millions look to the church expecting that we will somehow make a difference in our society, leading people to a deeper awareness of the human needs that cry out to us on all sides. But, like the man who brought his son to Jesus' disciples, they find that we, too, are not able.

For two thousand years we have been preaching the gospel of the Prince of Peace, but we still have not taught the world how to make peaceful diplomacy work. It is said that the wars of the 20th Century made it the bloodiest century of all time. What will our descendants say about the Christians in the 21st Century? They were not able?

If You Can

The man from the crowd implores Jesus: ". . . but if you can do anything, have pity on us and help us." Jesus' reply must have shocked the man: "If you can!"

Jesus can, but can the man? Jesus has the power and all it takes to channel that power is this man's trust in Jesus. His reply might be made by any of us today: "I believe; help my unbelief." We know we believe, but it is not an automatic response on our part. We need help with our wavering trust in Christ. But, if we open the door with "I believe," he will come in even if we must confess, "help my unbelief."

Later, after Jesus has healed the epileptic boy and the crowds have gone, the disciples ask: "Why could we not cast it out?" (Mk. 9:28). Jesus answered: "This kind cannot be driven out by anything but prayer." What he is saying here is that the power to heal and transform is not a matter of words which we say. The disciples knew the right words, but they did not have the power that Jesus had. And the reason they did not have that power is because they were not yet living lives of intimate communion with God.

The bad news was that they were not able. The good news is that they could be able if they lived a life as close to God as they could. So, those who would intercede with God for others and their hurts and needs will find access to that power. And so will we.

Fight Colorado Potato Beetles with SpinTor

In areas of infestation, the Colorado potato beetle can be economically devastating to potato growers This first-generation potato beetle feeds voraciously on young plants' leaf tissue, defoliating plants and dramatically reducing yields

Yield loss is greatest if heavy damage occurs during tuber formation Bacterial ring rot and potato spindle tuber disease – diseases easily spread by mechanical means – can also be transmitted by Colorado potato beetles

Some management options for Colorado potato beetle include examining plants or main stems early in the season, and rotating crops to delay and reduce the initial infestation Fields should be at least several hundred yards from fields previously infested with beetles

Natural enemies include lady beetles predacious stinkbugs parasitic flies and fungi, which can help reduce beetle populations

But when it comes to protecting your potatoes SpinTor* 2SC Naturalyte* insect control is one of your most effective management tools The unique mode of action in SpinTor protects plants almost immediately It's derived from a naturally occurring organism and has the efficacy associated with synthetic insecticides

Studies show that spinosad, the active ingredient in SpinTor, affords a margin of safety 18 times higher than that required by the EPA Additionally, testing conducted for EPA registration shows that spinosad is not known to leach or persist in the environment

SpinTor has a 7-day pre-harvest interval and can best be used for control of first generation larvae Products containing older chemistry should be used for second generation control to help manage any resistance issues

SpinTor allows beneficial insects like ladybird beetles and spiders to flourish and provides natural aphid control

For more information about using SpinTor to control Colorado potato beetles, contact your local ag retailer

MARKETS STABLE

- Cheese, butter holding up.
- Cheese, butter production down.
- Futures improving.

Cheese and butter prices last week at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange appear to be holding above support-price levels. This is good news for dairy producers as the combination of this and new federal order pricing formulas should put at least $0.30 per CWT into farm-gate milk prices.

Block cheese averaged $1.1575 per pound for the week. Demand for process cheese is seasonally active, and cheese is moving into the USDA's dairy price support program. Last week, USDA purchased 2.5 million pounds of process and block cheese from the west and central states. Despite large inventories, Grade AA butter prices in Chicago last week remained above support price levels, averaging $1.0892 per pound.

The futures market remains a mystery. Class III futures at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange are peaking at just more than $12 per CWT for September 2003. This isn't bad, although it is nowhere near the record levels for September. My interpretation of this is that traders are looking at a very gradual reduction in the milk supply, and tighter cheese production levels.

The latest Dairy Products report indicates that cumulative cheese production during the first quarter of 2003 fell 1.1 percent below year-ago levels. This is very good news. If this continues, we could see fall prices improve even more.

A good strategy would be to use the futures markets to begin to lock in Class III prices that get much above $12 per CWT. Be conservative and lock in just a portion of your fall production as prices improve. The fall months are still very uncertain, the economy still weak, and expectations for a large surge in cheese consumption are not great.

One of our favorite times of year is just around the corner: June Dairy Month!

And what a treat we have for Lancaster Farming readers in our June Dairy Issue scheduled June 7.

Included will be family farm features, breed and association news and highlights, and other great reading for our dairy families.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

TUNNEL VENTILATION + AERO COOL™ EVAPORATIVE COOLING = ULTIMATE COW COMFORT

Quarryville, PA

Evaporative Cooling for Dairy Tie-stall Barns

The use of evaporative cooling for livestock and poultry in the northeast United States has been gaining acceptance in recent years. The main reason being that producers now understand that during the hottest part of the day, the relative humidity is often very low, which allows for the effective use of evaporative cooling. Since many tie-stall dairy barns now use tunnel ventilation systems for hot weather, dairy farmers can further enhance their hot weather ventilation by adding evaporative cooling pads. These systems work hand-in-hand to increase the amount of heat removed from the cow due to the high air speeds. The cost of the cooling system is minimized when designing it for tunnel ventilation compared to a cross-flow ventilation system.

What is Evaporative Cooling?

When water evaporates, heat energy is converted into a different form, which lowers the temperature of the air or the object that the water was on. As water evaporates the temperature continues to drop until the air reaches the 100% saturated point. In the northeast U.S. there is typically a 16 degree F. cooling potential on an average 90 degree day. Since most evaporative pad systems are designed to be 75% efficient, that means that a 12 degree temperature drop could be expected. When temperatures reach 98 to 100 degrees, there is often a cooling potential of up to 24 degrees, resulting in an 18 degree drop in barn air temperatures. THE HOTTER IT IS, THE MORE COOLING YOU GET!

East Fluid Milk And Cream Review

Madison, Wis.
May 14, 2003
Report Supplied by USDA

Spot prices of class II cream, dollars per lb. butterfat: F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: 1.3397-1.4813. Delivered Equivalent: Atlanta: 1.3506-1.4595 mostly 1.3615-1.3942.

PRICES OF CONDENSED SKIM, dollars per lb. wet solids, F.O.B. producing plants: Northeast: Class II, includes monthly formula prices: .8500-.9800; Class III - spot prices - .7400-.8000.

SPOT SHIPMENTS OF GRADE A MILK: FLORIDA: This Week: In 0, Out 153; Last Week: In 0, Out 192; Last Year: In 0, Out 80. SOUTHEAST STATES: This week: In 0, Out 0; last week: In 0, Out 0; last year: In 0, Out 0.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Due to recent changes in milk supply agreements, milk import/export totals are not directly comparable to year ago figures and to shipments prior to April 1, 2003.

Regional Milk Market Administrators announced the following, April 2003 uniform prices: Northeast $11.45, Mideast $10.47, Southeast $11.81, Florida $12.96, and Western New York (a state order) $11.12 at the base city or county in the orders. (For the Northeast, Mideast, and Western New York orders, statistical uniform prices are reported.)

Cooler and/or rainy weather prevailed over much of the region. Milk output had been falling in the Deep South, but cooler temperatures may slow the declines seen in past weeks. In the Middle Atlantic area, milk output is mostly steady at near-peak levels. Farther north, the milk flow is still increasing slowly toward its peak. Traditionally, late May or early June marks the top of the milk production cycle in the Northeast.

Fluid milk supplies are lighter, but still excessive in the Southeast, moderate to heavy in the Northeast. Many Southern schools will be recessing next week, while Northern schools are typically open until mid-June. Bottled milk demand is spotty. Some contacts report lackluster milk orders and others indicate that bottlers have added loads to their weekly milk orders. Some bottlers expect that resort area orders will start to improve as Memorial Day approaches. Manufacturing plant contacts report that they remain busy, but plant receipts are off slightly this week. Should it be needed, plant capacity is available. A few plant contacts noted that they were "uncomfortably full on weekends," but working through their supply problems.

The condensed skim market is little changed. Spot demand has improved in scattered instances, but overall, orders remain slower than normal for this time of year.

The fluid cream market is slightly improved. Spot prices are up this week as multiples did move slightly higher and last week's CME butter average increased a half cent. Some suppliers note that orders have picked up as ice cream makers increase output. Also, soft serve mix producers are stepping up output to meet anticipated demand after Memorial Day. Bottlers and canned whipping cream makers have taken more cream this week. Cream cheese output is about steady, but a few spot purchases were noted. Churning activity remains heavy, but few loads of excess cream are clearing to the Midwest.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Review

St. Joseph, Mo.
Friday, May 9, 2003
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER & STOCKER CATTLE SUMMARY - Week Ending May 9 — Total Receipts:331,400; last week 417,300; last year 346,400. Direct 118,200; last week 85,400; last year 98,000. Video/Internet 2,200; last week 73,300; last year 19,400. Auctions 211,000; last week 258,600; last year 229,000. This weeks reported auction volume included 48 percent over 600 lbs and 44 percent heifers.

Compared to last week, feeder and stocker cattle sold steady to 2.00 higher with instances of 3.00 higher on both calves and yearlings. Trends were very consistent across the country as attitudes are positive and demand is good for all classes of grazers and feedlot replacements. Direct receipts from country trading were very heavy this week as the waiting game came to an end for many backgrounders who have been holding-on to those heavy yearlings coming off of graze-out wheat. This is one instance where the waiting paid off as ample feedlot vacancy has cattle feeders buying almost as aggressively as they have been selling. The average-length-of-stay has decreased considerably and many of the cattle heading up the feedlot loading chutes are not much more than 200 lbs heavier than the wheat yearlings heading down the chutes.

The industry headed into this week with one of the smallest herds of market-ready slaughter cattle in recent memory, yet the USDAs Livestock Market News Service reported the largest number of negotiated sales since June 2001 at near 300,000 head through Mandatory Price Reporting. The cattle feeders have all of the bargaining power, although they have been remarkably easy for the packers to deal with at the current price levels. The producers realize that they got to this point through aggressive marketing and their not about to spoil the party by being greedy. Besides, a 100.00 per head profit is more significant on an 1150 lb steer than it is on one weighing 1350 lbs, so why spend an extra 100.00 per head to get that steer to the point that they can ask an extra dollar or two per hundred-weight for it? All this excitement has these cattle feeders bidding each other into some new feeders that wont hedge. But, the futures market has been chasing cash prices throughout this rally and its starting to look like the fed cattle market will stay out of the 60s all summer. Profits on fats and feeders have trickled down to the stocker market and backgrounders remain aggressive. Luckily the supplies are available with new-crop calf receipts at an all-time high as more and more producers realize the benefits of fall-calving. Midwestern salebarns have been flooded with these bloomy bawlers as the cow/calf men can cash-in now and keep their mammas fat and happy this summer.

Deadly tornadoes ripped through many areas this past week, destroying homes and businesses and affecting many of our cattle producers. Livestock markets in southwest Missouri reported several consignments of cattle, whose owners had lost their homes and all of their livestock facilities. In most cases the buyers made room on their orders for a few extra dollars, thanks guys.

Oklahoma Feeder Cattle Weekly

Oklahoma City, OK
Report Supplied By USDA

OKLAHOMA NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Weekly Cattle Summary — Feeder steers 1.00-3.00 higher. Feeder heifers steady to 1.00 higher. Steer and heifer calves steady. Demand extremely good for all classes with active trading throughout the long days trade. Corn belt and southern plains buyers equally aggressive for numbers. Northern buyers often shied away from Brahma cross cattle but plains buyers easily covered the gap. Bulk of receipts feeder cattle off graze-out wheat. Light cattle mostly new crop calves. Quality average to attractive, but flesh conditions continue mostly on the fleshy side. Weigh-ups gaunt to full. Buyers encouraged by last weeks excellent feedlot clearance, lighter carcass weights, higher beef trade, and strong slaughter numbers. Empty feedlot pen space is unusual this time of year and probably the major driving factor. Monday's down blip in the CME cattle pits was ignored. Compared to last week: Slaughter cows and bulls 2.00 higher. Packer demand very good in front of Memorial day. Replacement cow demand continues light. Farmer buyers non-existent at sale as haying activities and preparation for early harvest takes precedence. Many farmers still not comfortable with moisture conditions for summer pastures. Total of 660 cows and bulls sold with 55 percent to packers.

Receipts this week 16,175; last week 11,888; last year 15,667. Supply consisted of 86% yearlings over 600 lbs; 10% calves and light yearlings; 4% cows and bulls. Heifers comprised 39% of feeder and calf supply. Prices follow with weighted average weight and price in parenthesis.

used to determine the best location for the well and two others in the township. Since when has technological data been allowed to override the law of the land?

The township says it needs to make sure that there is a secure water supply in case any of its other municipal wells should fail. The township is also gearing up for future commercial and residential development. But it hasn't properly explained why the water for this growth must come from a dairy farm that will see none of the benefits of that growth.

Township leaders should not forget that one of the main reasons new residents (and businesses, as a result) are drawn to areas such as East Cocalico in the first place is the well-managed and beautiful farmland found on properties like the Zimmerman's.

And, if more and more farms like the Zimmerman's continue to be squeezed out for development, where will townships find enough open land to recharge their groundwater supply in the future?

Last year, these pages hosted a lively debate over SB 1413, state legislation that would have given farmers more leverage against township restrictions. The bill failed to pass the Pennsylvania House of Representatives last fall, but the issue is as pertinent as ever.

Last year's debate was divided between advocates of large-scale, confinement livestock operations and supporters of small, diversified farms.

The latter group opposed SB 1413 on the grounds that township officials are elected to take care of all their residents, including those who believe that their quality of life is threatened by industrial-scale agriculture. They called the bill an attempt to intimidate townships into allowing large livestock producers to keep growing.

Large-scale advocates supported the bill, decrying what they called "illegal" township restrictions imposed on a number of confinement hog and poultry operations in the state. They argue that those large operations, operated mostly by families, are necessary for ag's survival.

The Zimmerman case should help these two groups see that they have more in common than they might have realized in the past.

The Zimmermans don't want to put in an industrial-scale livestock operation. They're not asking for anything — except to be able to keep dairy farming on their land.

The issue here isn't about big vs. small operations or any other conflicting agricultural ideologies.

It's about the survival of agriculture in Pennsylvania, period.

very well and we remain optimistic about the brand's long term prospects. However, delays in the initial launch of Quest, as well as the external factors that we discussed in our call, have led us to conclude that we have sufficient tobacco inventory to carry us through the next season. We will not be growing commercial quantities of tobacco in 2003 for Quest in any location, and would certainly turn to Pennsylvania first in the unlikely event that anything changes. Pennsylvania will continue to be our primary option for growing tobacco in the future.

At this time, we have every intention and expectation that we will resume growing tobacco for Quest in 2004. We will stay in direct communication with your office to assure that you are well aware of our plans at the earliest possible date.

Thanks you for your support, and we look forward to growing our Quest tobacco in Pennsylvania well into the future.

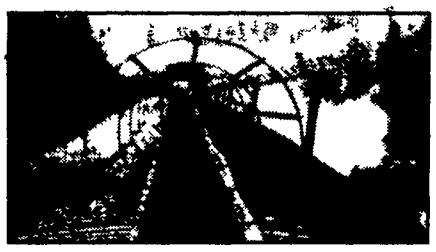
BIG JIM Quantum™ SYSTEM

TOWER SILOS REALLY MEASURE UP!



Measure for measure, nothing beats a tower silo for storing forage. Just compare them to bunkers which have up to 45% storage loss, lower capacity, increased labor and lots of inconvenience.

Towers lose just 3% to 7% because of gravity, feed weight and a good unloader like the Big Jim QUANTUM System.

QUANTUM can be installed in any type of 20' to 30' forage silo. . . conventional or oxygen limited and will make your tower silo even better!

Summit To Focus On Use Of Manure As Renewable Energy

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — When life hands you lemons, make lemonade. But what do you do when life hands you manure?

Simple. Make electricity.

It's not pie-in-the-sky (or cow-pie-in-the-corral) thinking either. The technology is here, and it's already in use throughout the world. It's called anaerobic digestion — a process by which synergistic actions between bacteria act to breakdown waste products. One of the resulting by-products of that natural process is a biogas that can be used to generate electricity.

In addition to being a source of renewable energy, experts say anaerobic digester (AD) technology could effectively and efficiently address a number of persistent environmental problems associated with agricultural and municipal waste management including water quality and air quality.

The question for policy makers and industry professionals is how to make more wide-spread use of that technology. Consequently, a two-day summit, June 2-4 at the Hilton North Raleigh in Raleigh, N.C. will provide a forum to address some of the barriers, both technological and institutional, facing AD technology.

Sponsored by USDA's Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS), the U.S. Dept. of Energy and the Water Environment Federation (WEF), the summit will also provide a forum for examining the opportunities for public and private sectors to work together to facilitate digester adoption within the context of animal waste management, rural economic development, and environmental improvement.

For more information, contact the Water Environment Federation at confinfo@wef.org, call: (800) 666-0206, or visit the WEF Website at http://www.wef.org/Conferences/.

Orchardists Focus On This Season's Fruit

Krawcyzk.

However the treatment also requires washing of fruit, unless it is applied early in the season and allowed to wash off by harvest time.

George Perry, horticulture extension agent, covered sprayer calibration. There are various ways to calibrate sprayers, he said, and he offered a simple way for producers to calibrate their equipment.

One way to measure miles per hour on the tractor is to measure a distance of 88 feet.

The producer should drive the tractor across the distance at the same speed that they will spray. Measure the seconds that it takes to go 88 feet, said Perry. The time is then divided into 60 to get the miles per hour.

For example, if it takes 15 seconds to go the distance, and 15 divided into 60 is four, then the speed is four miles per hour.

"There's no such thing as a right speed or a wrong speed. It's whatever you are comfortable with," said Perry. However "four miles an hour is pretty common and you'll have good control."

At four miles an hour with a four-foot-wide swath, the sprayer will cover an acre in 31 minutes.

Perry also recommended setting the nozzle of the sprayer and then catch water for one minute. Multiply the amount of water times 31, which equals the gallons per acre.

"The most important thing is knowing how much water you're going to need per acre. Get the gallons per acre of water, then add your active ingredient," he said.

Record-keeping is important, according to Perry. "Over the years, pumps and nozzles change," so not only calibrate your sprayer but keep your records, he said.

Tom Callahan, director of sales, Adams County Nursery, Inc., discussed apple rootstocks.

The main dwarfing rootstocks in the industry right now are the M 9, Bud 9, and the M 26 in apples.

For intermediate size "the EMLA 7 rootstock is still the workhorse for a semi-dwarf size tree," he said.

EMLA 111, EMLA 106, and Bud 490 are the large semi- dwarf rootstocks.

In addition, "there are several new Cornell rootstocks that are on the horizon that are known as the CG series but are still considered to be in the testing stage," he said.

Commercially available are CG 16, an M 9 size tree, and CG 30, an EMLA 7 size tree.

"We (Adams County Nursery) recommend them only for trial purposes, mainly because we're still trying to find their faults.

"There are newer CG series that will replace them and will be commercially available in the next 3-4 years," he said.

Backbone apple rootstocks are still the M 9, the Bud 9, a full dwarf; the EMLA 26 and the (M 9/ EMLA 111 interstem) rootstock, a stronger dwarf. The EMLA 7 (EMLA 106), EMLA 111 are semi-dwarf, according to Callahan.

"The newer CG series that we're looking at are the CG 41 (an M 9 size tree), the CG 11 (an M 26 size tree), the CG 935 (an M 7 size tree), and CG 707 (an M 111 size tree)," said Callahan.

Other rootstocks that show promise are the Vineland series: V3 (a size M 9 tree) that is fire blight resistant and the V 1 rootstock (an EMLA 7 size tree) that is also fire blight resistant and more precocious -- it bears fruit at an earlier tree age.

These rootstocks are commercially available on a limited basis this year, said Callahan.

Bobcat® A300 All-Wheel Steer (AWS)

with Vertical Lift Path

Two Machines in One!

Go from all-wheel steer to skid-steer at the flip of a switch!

All-Wheel Steer Mode
This revolutionary compact loader has four steerable axles. That means less tire wear, less ground disturbance.

Skid-Steer Mode
Flip a switch and you get all the advantages of a skid-steer. The A300 maneuvers in tight spaces, turns within its own length, delivers high performance day-in, day-out.

Vertical Lift Path
The new lift arm design delivers superior lift height (126.4 inches), reach (34 inches), dump angle (41.9 degrees) and excellent visibility for easy truck loading.

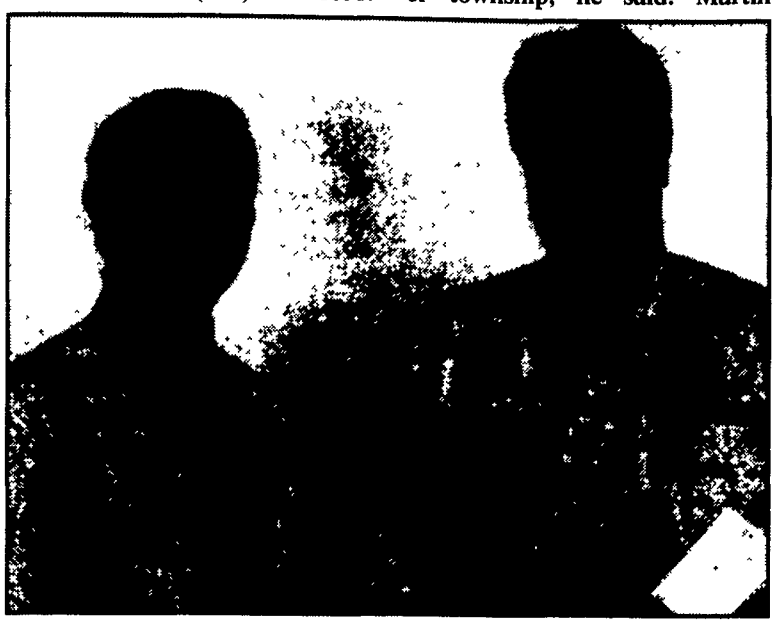
consistent ways" of dealing with complaints such as flies, odors, or dust.

Residents or farmers who would like SWAT to make a call at their location may call Martin's office at (717) 394-6851. Their calls will be returned as soon as possible and if necessary, an on-site assessment would be made.

The process begins with a response to the complaint within a day. The person filing the complaint may be a farmer, neighbor, or township, he said. Martin added that a speedy response is important, since to delay is "to add to the problem of goodwill," he said.



Featured speaker Gregory Martin, right, capital region poultry extension agent, is joined by Michael Hulet, associate professor, Penn State department of poultry science. Photos by Michelle Kunjappu

Next, the closest SWAT team member to the location of the caller may visit the site to determine the underlying roots to the problem using an assessment tool for both parties involved.

The problem may lie in farming practices or in the homeowner's practices, such as leaving an open recycling bin near a doorway of a white house, said Martin. Additionally, placing an electric fly "zapper" outdoors will attract flies instead of taking care of a problem, as it would if it were indoors, he said.

"Sometimes it takes some detective work," he said.

In addition placing "speck cards" — a white index card tacked to a wooden stake — at strategic locations throughout the neighborhood will help to determine fly activity, said Martin. Regurgitation spots indicate fly numbers.

Next the investigator will suggest ideas for improvement, such as controlling water or feed spillage, checking wet spots in the litter in open housing, and cleaning up after hauling manure.

"You could be hauling your problem to your neighbor's back door if it's not handled properly," said Martin. He recommended placing a tarp over manure piles for 15 days to reduce the number of larvae which quickly hatch into flies once they are in the fields.

The situation is followed up with subsequent monitoring.

"We learn a lot by work in the pits," he said. Checking for fly activity and what condition the litter/manure piles are in are revealing, according to Martin.

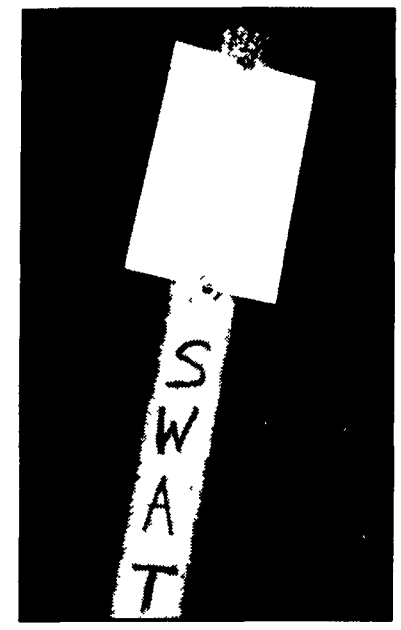
Assessment on the farm includes looking at flock age, litter condition, feed and water changes, or other environmental conditions.

Analyzing the neighborhood means looking at the homeowner's practices or checking to see if another agricultural operation may be contributing to the fly problem.

Studies include watching the results of composting with added hay or shavings inside a deep pit, which produces heat to kill fly larvae.

In the end, said Martin, the SWAT effort is to promote good relationships.

"We need to promote goodwill and be positive about what we do, because we are doing something unique — producing high-quality, low-cost food.



This stake holds a "speck card" that indexes fly activity.

"They (the public) do watch what we're doing, so we should always try to put our best foot forward and show that we care."

Spraying To Control Black Flies Under Way For The 2003 Season

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Eric Conrad, Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) Deputy secretary for field operations, recently announced that aerial spraying to control black flies is now under way.

"As we did last year, we are notifying county emergency management officials prior to spraying that will be conducted in their counties, so they can be sure the helicopters they see flying over creeks, streams and rivers are doing so on behalf of the commonwealth's black fly program," Conrad said. "If any member of the public has questions when they see a helicopter conducting spraying, they can call their county emergency management office to verify that a black fly treatment is taking place in their area on that day."

As always, spraying depends on favorable weather conditions.

Spraying will not be done when it is raining, or if river and stream levels are too high from previous participation. If the water level is too high and the water is moving too rapidly, the material used for the spraying is carried away from the targeted location before it can be effective. Heavy rains last April delayed spraying efforts and initially allowed for a larger population of black flies.

"DEP uses Bti, a naturally occurring bacteria, to control black flies.

This bacteria degrades quickly in the environment, and does not harm the aquatic ecosystem," Conrad said.

On days when spraying is scheduled, it will begin at 7 a.m., weather permitting, and continue until all waterways are completed, or until dark.

For more information about the program, visit the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: "blackfly."

PROPER ELECTRIC FENCE INSTALLATION: PUT THE ZAP WHERE YOU WANT IT

Dan F. McFarland
Capitol Region Extension Agricultural Engineer, York

As the weather warms and the grass turns green, the "click, click" and perhaps the "snap, snap" of the electric fence charger can be heard.

Electric fences can be an effective method of keeping cattle where you want them, but you certainly don't want to unintentionally charge waterers, feeders, stalls, and milk pipelines. Proper installation of electric fence chargers (energizers) is essential to insure they work effectively and prevent unintentional shocks.

An electric fence system controls cattle by delivering an uncomfortable current through the animal's body at a short duration so that it will not cause injury. When an animal touches the charged fence wire, it completes a circuit from the "hot" terminal of the energizer, or fence charger, through their body to the earth, and back to the "ground" terminal on the energizer.

Special care should be taken to prevent small children from touching a charged fence. All individuals should avoid fence contact with the head and neck. Modern fence energizers are typically of the "low impedance" type that delivers a very high current for a short amount of time. They work even when some grass or other vegetation touches the fence. However, if an adequate number of ground rods are not used, the current delivered to the animals can be reduce significantly. Be sure to choose a fence energizer that is labeled by a testing laboratory.

Proper grounding of the energizer is one of the most important, and overlooked, elements to insure the electric fence works properly. If the energizer does not adequately control livestock, check for adequate grounding before selecting a more powerful unit. Improving the grounding may be the least cost, most effective method of improving the operation of an electric fence system.

Grounding will vary depending on soil type and moisture. For "average" soil, a 5-Joule, low-impedance charger should be grounded with three 8-foot ground rods spaced 10 feet apart. Doubling the Joule output of the energizer doubles the grounding needed.

Dan F. McFarland

The fence energizer should be placed in a location where the distance between the energizer grounding and electrical system grounding can be maximized. The best place of the energizer is outdoors away from animal buildings and grounded equipment. When installed indoors, the high voltage produced by the energizer must be taken outside using high-voltage lead cable with 20,000-volt insulation. Electrical wire used for building wiring typically has 600-volt insulation and must never be used for this purpose.

Unintentional shocks from an improperly installed electric fence system can show up at waters, milk pipelines, feeders, stalls, and other metal equipment. Improper grounding of the fence energizer is the most common cause. The energizer must have its own grounding electrode located a minimum of 50 feet from other grounds or other metal objects in the earth. Energizers must never be grounded to electrical system grounds, utility grounds, metal water pipes, or metal objects in a building. Such improper grounding puts the metal objects and animal in the electric fence return path.

Even if you don't suspect that your electric fence system is a problem, it is a good idea to check the installation and connects regularly to insure safe and effective operation. If you would like more information, give me a call at (717) 840-7408.

FOAL MANAGEMENT

Jessica R. Dacey
Senior, Animal Science;
Dr. Fredrick Hofsaess
Professor of Animal Science

So, you have a foal!

The foaling process was successful and now it is the next day. The veterinarian should be coming to do a routine checkup and take blood for the Immunoglobulin G (IgG) test.

If the mare was not vaccinated or if you are unsure, the foal should also receive the tetanus antitoxin. The foal should also be vaccinated with tetanus toxoid, influenza, rhinopneumonitis, and encephalomyelitis as well as dewormed regularly during the first year.

Consult your veterinarian for a complete vaccination program so you are sure to get all the necessary vaccines, their boosters and any others recommended for your area.

It is also important to monitor the foal for normal behavior. The foal should be bright, active and feisty. It should be nursing regularly and interacting with the mare and other horses with which it is turned out.

If the mare's udder begins to bag up, or there is a lot of dried milk on the foal's head, it could be a sign of illness. Other signs of illness include lethargy, droopy ears/expression and standing alone.

Keep an eye on the mare as well. If she appears worried, she may have good reason. Diarrhea is a common problem in foals. Around 4-14 days, the foal is likely to develop diarrhea known as scours, or foal heat diarrhea.

This is because the microflora are being established in the gut. The foal will continue normal behavior during this period though.

If the foal shows any signs of illness or becomes dehydrated (pinch the skin on the neck, it should snap back to place immediately if hydrated) at this time or any other, the veterinarian needs to be called immediately.

Turnout is important at this time. Turn the mare and foal out by themselves every day (preferably in the afternoon when it's warm) until the foal looks like it wants to lie down.

After about 8-10 days, the mare and foal can be turned out with others for the entire day. Frequent handling of the foal is also a good idea. It will make the foal easier to handle and halter/lead break when you decide it is necessary.

There are many books available with suggestions on how to go about it, but it is best to do what you feel is appropriate for your needs and farm.

At about three weeks of age, the foal can be introduced to grain. A feed bucket should be placed in a location that is convenient for the foal to access but not the mare.

There are now special buckets on the market and other ideas out there to make this easier. There is also specially formulated feed for foals of this age.

It is best to consult your local feed and supply store for your needs and situation.

It is also very important that the mare be on a complete, well-balanced diet. She needs all her nutritional needs to be met so she can produce adequate amounts of milk.

Milk production is extremely taxing on the mare and can cause weight loss if she is not meeting her nutritional needs.

A farrier should also be called to trim feet on a regular basis, approximately every four weeks. If you notice any confirmation faults in your foal you can also discuss corrective trimming with your farrier. Depending on the foal's future use, surgery may also be considered.

The last thing to consider is when to wean. Foals can be weaned anywhere from two to six months. It is best to wean more than one foal at a time to help reduce stress.

There are many different opinions on when and how to wean. You must consider what options you have available to you and which is most practical. It is similar to raising a child learn from others and formulate your own way that is best for you and your foal.

Most of all have fun and good luck! They aren't young for long!

Cornell's Small Farms Grants Program Fosters Farmer-To-Farmer Education

ITHACA, N.Y. — Extension education is sometimes seen as the one-way the transfer of knowledge from the University out to the public. In the case of agriculture new production technologies, management practices, and ways of understanding the world are generated by agricultural scientists, and then "delivered" to farmers through local extension programs.

But increasingly, another approach to extension education is taking hold. It is based on the recognition that farmers themselves have tremendously valuable information and experience to offer other farmers. In this approach, the role of extension educator is not so much to "deliver" knowledge, but to "facilitate" the sharing of knowledge among farmers. University-based knowledge is still important in this approach, but extension educators find ways to offer it alongside farmer expertise to get the best of both worlds.

The Cornell Cooperative Extension Grants Program for Innovative Small Farms Education has been an important catalyst for this kind of "bottom-up", farmer-to-farmer education. The program was initiated by Cornell's Small Farms Program in 2000, and has so far funded 53 projects for a total of $131,610. It is supported by Cornell's College of Agriculture and Life Sciences through federal Smith Lever funds, and provides grants of up to $5,000 to CCE educators with creative program ideas that specifically target local small farms. The grants program is overseen by Cornell's Small Farms Task Group, which includes farmers, non-governmental organizations, extension educators and faculty. A committee of farmers reviews all proposals and makes final recommendations for funding.

Farmer-to-farmer learning is a key feature of many projects funded by the Small Farms grants program. Through the CCE Grants Program for Innovative Small Farms Education, growing numbers of small-scale farmers are discovering that Cornell Cooperative Extension is a great resource for them.

We Love Our Dairy Farmers
The Cream Of The Crop

One of our faverite times of year is just around the corner: June Dairy Month!

And what a treat we have for Lancaster Farming readers in our June Dairy Issue scheduled June 7.

Included will be family farm features, breed and association news and highlights, and other great reading for our dairy families.

Hog Summit, Field Day To Feature Sustainable Alternatives

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — Farmers who are interested in finding innovative hog production strategies will have an opportunity to explore alternatives in two upcoming events here in Pennsylvania.

On Saturday, June 7, at the Eisenhower Inn and Conference Center in Gettysburg, the Waterkeeper Alliance will conduct its third annual Sustainable Hog Farming Summit. Following the first two summits, conducted in North Carolina and Iowa, respectively, this year's event will focus on alternatives to large-scale, industrialized hog production, and strategies for marketing high quality pork directly to consumers, restaurants, and other retail outlets.

A host of speakers will cover topics ranging from the health, environmental, and social effects of industrialized farming practices to proven methods of raising hogs in diversified, organic and/or pasture-based systems, as well as marketing alternatives.

Speakers will include Helen Browning of Eastbrook Farm in Great Britain. Eastbrook is a 1,337-acre, diversified organic farm that markets meat products through supermarkets and a nationwide home delivery service. Joining her in a morning panel will be Ridgeway Shinn of Massachusetts, from the New England Livestock Alliance, and Paul Willis, farmer and manager of the Niman Ranch Pork Company in Iowa.

Other farmers speaking in afternoon workshops will represent the states of North Carolina and Wisconsin. A keynote address in the evening will feature the president of the Waterkeeper Alliance, Robert F. Kennedy Jr.

On Friday, June 6, the day before the Hog Summit, a field day sponsored by the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture (PASA) will be conducted at Spring Water Farm in Paradise. The field day will run from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and will feature a multi-species, pasture-based system that includes Tamworth hogs. Additional presentations at this event will feature swine nutrition with representatives of the Fertrell Company from Bainbridge, and comments from Helen Browning of Great Britain as well.

To register for the Hog Summit, call the Waterkeeper office at (914) 674-0622, or visit their Website (www.waterkeeper.org , click "events"), where a full program for the event can be viewed. Registration is $35 for the full day. Rooms are available at the Eisenhower Inn at a special conference rate by calling (800) 776-8349.

Registration and directions to the PASA field day are available by calling (814) 349-9856 ext. 6. A registration fee of $10 for PASA members and $15 for nonmembers will be collected at Spring Water Farm. Lunch is included.

Those who are attending the Hog Summit and/or PASA field day are also invited to attend a barbecue pig roast on Friday evening, June 6 from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Allstar Pavilion, located directly behind the Eisenhower Inn in Gettysburg. The theme for the night is local fare, including food, drink and music, featuring a bluegrass band. A suggested donation of $12 per person for the meal and entertainment will be collected at the door.

Pa. Junior Holstein Judging School July 8-9

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association Judging School is scheduled for Tuesday, July 8, and Wednesday, July 9, from 12 noon - 12 noon.

This year's school is hosted by the Tioga County Holstein Club. The teacher will be David Trotter, Enon Valley.

The school is open to all youth interested in learning about dairy cattle judging. The program covers the basics of animal evaluation and reason giving. Individuals that attend have the opportunity to learn terminology, animal and class breakdowns, and how to effectively give reasons.

The cost of the school is $30 for those staying overnight. This includes school costs, hotel room, and evening meal.

For those who commute, the fee is $20 to cover school costs and the evening meal.

This year, a second member of the same family who attends will receive $5 off their registration cost.

For more information, contact the: Pennsylvania Holstein Association, 839 Benner Pike, State College, PA 16801. Phone (814) 234-0364, fax (814) 234-1698, or see Website at HYPERLINK http://www.paholsteins.com www.paholsteins.com.

Lancaster/York Fruit Grower Twilight Meeting May 20

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster/York Fruit Grower's Twilight Meeting will be Tuesday, May 20, at 6:30 p.m. at Cherry Hill Orchards, 400 Long Lane.

The meeting program is 6:30 p.m., introduction to the orchard, Tom Haas; 6:45 p.m., chemical thinning update, Dr. Rob Crassweller, Penn State pomologist; 7:15 p.m., spring insect and mite control, Dr. Greg Krawczyk, Penn State fruit entomologist, and 7:45 p.m., general questions and answers. Pesticide credits will be offered (pending approval).

Directions: Cherry Hill Orhcard is located at the intersection of Long Lane and Millersville Road. From the east or west: Exit Rt. 30 at Rohrerstown Road (Rt. 741) and proceed south toward Millersville. Cross over Rts. 23, 462, and 999. Just past the intersection of Rt. 324 you will come to a traffic signal. Cherry Hill Orchard will be on the left. Total distance traveled from Rt. 30 is 5-6 miles.

For additional information, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension, Lancaster at (717) 394-6851.

Envirothon To Highlight Farmland Preservation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Dennis C. Wolff said Pennsylvania's farmland preservation efforts will be on the minds of students participating in the 20th annual Pennsylvania Envirothon in Franklin County next week.

"Farmland preservation and agricultural education are two priorities of this administration," Wolff said. "The Department's participation in the Envirothon allows us to demonstrate our commitment to preserving farmland. The earlier we start educating the public about the importance of farmland and the value of environmental stewardship, the better the chance for ensuring the availability of farmland. Education is certainly a key."

As an Envirothon partner, the department has educational seminars across the state and has staffed the issues booth at county competitions. In coordination with the State Envirothon Board, the Bureau of Farmland Preservation helped to develop the educational materials and curriculum for the Envirothon. Teaching on this year's current issue fulfills standards adopted by the state board of education.

"The Bureau of Farmland Preservation was pleased to participate in this year's Current Issue competition," Wolff said. "Pennsylvania leads the nation in the number of acres and total number of farms preserved, and it is important to include the commonwealth's young people in our farmland protection strategy."

For more than 20 years, the Envirothon has educated high school students in natural resources and environmental sciences. In addition to farmland preservation, students will compete in forestry, soils, wildlife, and aquatics.

The State Envirothon will be May 19-20 at Penn State Mont Alto Campus in Franklin County. Students qualify for the state competition through county competitions. The winner of the state will compete at the National Envirothon later this summer. Last year, five students from Media won the national event.

For more information about the Envirothon, visit http://www.envirothonpa.org. For more information about Pennsylvania's farmland preservation efforts, please contact the Bureau of Farmland Preservation at (717) 783-3167.

USDA Top Dairy Bull Evaluations, Ranked By Net Merit

As a new service to our dairy readers, Lancaster Farming has scheduled the publication of regular USDA sire evaluation reports for the seven major dairy breeds.

The reports are released quarterly by the USDA's Animal Improvement Programs Laboratory during the months of February, May, August, and November.

This week, we begin with the top Holstein sires available in the U.S. The list was released by the USDA on May 15.

May sire lists for the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey, Milking Shorthorn, and Red and White breeds are scheduled for next week's edition of Lancaster Farming.

The sires are ranked by net merit (NM$). PTA stands for the average predicted transmitting ability for each of the categories listed, including milk yield, fat yield, fat percentage, protein yield, protein percentage, somatic cell score (SCS), and productive life (PL).

DPR stands for daughter pregnancy rate, a recent addition to the bull proofs.

Also included are the number of herds and daughters evaluated in each sire's proof.

SARS Epidemic Not Impacting Soybean Exports

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — Not even the SARS epidemic has been able to prevent U.S. soybean exports to China and Southeast Asia from reaching near-record levels, thanks, in part, to focused soybean checkoff marketing efforts.

In fact, China, one of the countries most severely hit by the disease, has already imported record levels of nearly 278 million bushels of U.S. soybeans through the first half of the current marketing year. Nearly three out of every 10 bushels of U.S. soybeans being exported this year are going to China. Total soybean exports to China for the 2001-2002 marketing year amounted to 168 million bushels.

U.S. soybean exports are typically highest between October and March and usually slow down from April through September. However this year U.S. exports to China during the month of April were over 10 million bushels. Most of these exports were shipped from Pacific Northwest ports, demonstrating the importance to Chinese customers of the shorter delivery times available from these ports. According to a checkoff-funded transportation study, shipping U.S. soybeans from the West Coast to Asia saves 10-18 days compared with shipments from the Gulf of Mexico.

The Southeast Asia market, which includes Thailand, Malaysia, Vietnam, Singapore, the Philippines, and Indonesia, is the largest soybean meal market for U.S. farmers. Soybean checkoff marketing programs in this region target core buyers in the rapidly growing poultry, swine, and aquaculture sectors by differentiating U.S. dehulled soybean meal as the product of choice over competitive sources of supply.

WVPT Farm Television Series Features Virginia Beef Industry

HARRISONBURG, Va. — On April 18 at 8 p.m., Reggie Reynolds, Bill McKinnon, and Joi Saville of Virginia's beef industry discussed issues of importance to cattle producers during WVPT — Virginia's Public Television's "Virginia Farming."

In recognition of the Virginia Cattlemen's Association's 50th anniversary, the panel, along with host Jeff Ishee, addressed a broad range of topics, ranging from cattle markets to Country-of-Origin-Labeling; and from the Virginia Beef Expo to a new book focused on the history of the cattle industry in Virginia.

The management team of WVPT is solidly behind the new television series, the Commonwealth's only locally produced, televised farm show.

WVPT President and General Manager Bert Schmidt said, "My priorities for public television are our children and our local community. Our expanded children's line-up and 'Virginia Tonight' are just two of the changes we made during my first year here at the station.

The idea for 'Virginia Farming' actually hit me early on after I moved here while I was being taken to our transmitter in Staunton. We drove on, what I would call, the 'backroads,' and I was so impressed with the large number of family farms that we passed. I wondered to myself whether we were doing our job, as the local public broadcaster, in serving the farming community. Were we impacting them?

I came back to the station, and asked these questions. I wanted to create a forum specifically for farmers — to address their needs — and 'Virginia Farming' was the result."

Schmidt continued, "Clearly the agricultural industry is a major factor in all of our lives whether or not we are working directly in it. If the farm economy is down, it will trickle to each of us. If the 'non-farming' community (in which I count myself) can have a better appreciation for the issues facing this sector of our economy, we can then all work together better to make our communities a great place to live and work."

Virginia Beef Industry officials recently appeared on "Virginia Farming," a new television series on WVPT — Virginia's Public Television. From left, host Jeff Ishee is joined by Beef Industry representatives Joi Saville, Reggie Reynolds, and Bill McKinnon.

Each week on "Virginia Farming," host Jeff Ishee reports on market trends, long-range agricultural weather forecasts and individual farm communities. Guests from across the Commonwealth discuss Virginia's poultry, beef, dairy, crop, wine, seafood, timber, aquaculture, and related industries with Ishee. The series premiered March 28, 2003, with guest Congressman Goodlatte.

Jeff Ishee is Farm Director for WSVA radio in Harrisonburg and hosts "On the Farm Radio," a syndicated radio show for listeners in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and North Carolina. He has a website www.onthefarmradio.com.

"Virginia Farming" airs Fridays at 8:00 p.m. and repeats Saturdays at noon and Sundays at 6:00 a.m.

To submit program topic ideas, contact Jeff Ishee at phone (540) 363-3938, fax (540) 434-7481 or email Jeff@onthefarmradio.com . Visit wvpt.net for the schedule of upcoming guests. "Virginia Farming" is underwritten by the Virginia Farm Bureau Association.

USDA Sets CRP Sign-Up For May 5-30

FRENCHTOWN, N.J. — Doreen Beruck, acting county executive director for USDA's Farm Service Agency for Hunterdon and Somerset Counties, N.J., recently announced that the next Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) general sign-up will take place from May 5 through May 30. Producers can sign up at local county Farm Service Agency (FSA) offices throughout the state.

"CRP is a cost effective, voluntary program that helps producers improve our land, water, and wildlife resources," Beruck said. "Also, CRP is the first program to benefit from new PC-based common computing environment (CCE) technology that provides efficient, 21st century response to producers' needs."

CRP protects millions of acres of American topsoil from erosion and is designed to improve the nation's natural resources base. Participants voluntarily remove environmentally sensitive land from agricultural production by entering into long-term contracts for 10 to 15 years. In exchange, participants receive annual rental payments and a payment of up to 50 percent of the cost of establishing conservation practices. The program allows producers to lock in multi-year payments based on local rental rates.

By reducing water runoff and sedimentation, CRP also protects groundwater and helps improve the condition of lakes, rivers, ponds, and streams. Acreage enrolled in the CRP is planted to resource conserving vegetative covers, making the program a major contributor to increases in wildlife populations in many parts of the country.

The 2002 Farm Bill authorized USDA to maintain CRP enrollment up to 39.2 million acres. Approximately 34 million acres were enrolled in CRP contracts as of March 1 approximately 1516.1 acres in Hunterdon and 128.1 acres in Somerset. About 1.5 million acres subject to CRP contracts are scheduled to expire on September 30, including 62.2 acres in Hunterdon. Participants with contracts expiring next fall can make new contract offers. The contracts awarded under this sign-up will become effective on October 1, 2003 or October 1, 2004. The sign-up marks the 26th CRP sign-up. Another general sign-up will be offered through 2007.

FSA will also use CCE technology to evaluate and rank eligible CRP offers using an Environmental Benefits Index (EBI) for environmental benefits to be gained from enrolling the land in CRP. Decisions on the EBI cutoff will be made after the sign-up ends and after analyzing the EBI numbers of all the offers. Those who would have met previous sign-up EBI thresholds are not guaranteed a contract under this sign-up.

CRP is a highly competitive program, and landowners are encouraged to find out about the EBI before the May 30 deadline. Producers should also consult with local USDA experts on steps producers can take to maximize EBI points and increase the likelihood that their offer will be accepted.

Producers can avoid the highly competitive EBI process under the general sign-up by enrolling the most environmentally desirable land under CRP's continuous sign-up program. Under the continuous sign-up, relatively small amounts of land serving much larger areas, such as filter strips, riparian buffers and grass waterways, can be enrolled at any time. Wetland restoration has been added as a continuous sign-up practice. Wetlands filter out pollution and sedimentation, as well as improve water quality and serve as an important flood control mechanism by slowing the flow of water. More than four million acres have been reserved for continuous sign-up practices. Normal eligibility requirements apply, but the competitive nature of the EBI is waived because of the environmentally desirable nature of the practices available.

Aside from the general sign-up, CRP's continuous sign-up program will be ongoing. USDA has reserved two million acres for the continuous sign-up program, which represents the most environmentally desirable and sensitive land. USDA is making a special effort to help enhance wildlife habitats and air quality by setting aside 500,000 acres for bottomland hardwood tree planting. Continuous sign-up for hardwood planting will start after the general sign-up.

For qualification requirements and other CRP information, visit FSA's Website at http://www.fsa.usda.gov/dafp/cepd/crp.htm.

Farmers Can Help In The West Nile Fight

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania farmers have been called on many times to do their part to help protect our environment. The latest call involves agriculture's role in the battle against the West Nile virus.

West Nile virus is a mosquito borne disease that affects people, birds, horses, livestock, and pets. Most people who develop the disease will get only mild, flu-like symptoms, although a few will develop West Nile encephalitis, which can cause swelling of the brain and require hospitalization.

Last year, 62 Pennsylvanians developed the more serious symptoms, and nine died. The disease can also be fatal to horses. However, a vaccine is now available for horses through veterinarians.

Like all property owners, farmers should eliminate as much standing water as possible. This includes dumping water in buckets, flowerpots, birdbaths, tarps, and cleaning rain spouting. However, there are places unique to farms which prove especially conducive for mosquito breedingmanure pits are one such example. The nutrient rich mixture in manure pits represents an ideal habitat for mosquitoes to breed.

Officials can easily conduct surveillance and treatment once areas with large concentrations of mosquito larvae such as manure lagoons are located. Surveillance determines the number of mosquito larvae, and the species, which is important since about half the mosquito species in Pennsylvania carry the West Nile virus. Treatment kills the larvae.

Contact your local extension agent or county West Nile coordinator to find out who can perform West Nile surveillance in your area.

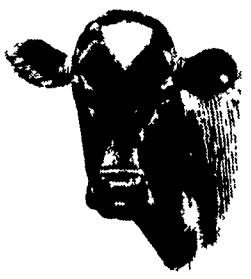
Information is also available online at www.state.pa.us PA Keyword "DEP West Nile".

Treatment in places like manure storage pits usually lasts 30 to 40 days, resulting in the need for approximately three treatments per West Nile season. While costs vary, treatments will typically cost $100 to $200. If water troughs cannot be emptied every few days, treatment is also recommended for them.

Trench and ground silos are also excellent breeding grounds for the mosquitoes carrying the West Nile virus.

In these areas, tires are commonly used to weigh down the plastic wrap covering the silage. Tires are notorious for gathering small, shallow pools of water and providing sheltered breeding grounds for mosquitoes. Cutting the sidewalls out of the tires is an excellent way to avoid this problem. Some tire recyclers already do this.

Your county West Nile coordinator may have information on businesses performing this service.



PIT POWER

Farmers and composters - Here is a breakdown for compost and manure pits and manure piles! Pit Power is bacteria and bacteria feeders that break down solids in manure pits and septic tanks and breakdown compost faster

Clean out your pit with ease, use Pit Power! One gallon of Pit Power per 10,000 to 20,000 gal of pit volume. Should be repeated approx. 2 times a year! If aeration of the pit is possible, it will help the bacteria to grow and work faster to break down solids Pit Power's purpose is to add life (bacteria) in the manure, which then is returned to the soil where a bacteria is working. The smell of pit manure is not so strong. Pit Power is a non-toxic product - Life to Feed Life!

Pennsylvania Launches 2003 West Nile Virus Surveillance Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania is launching this year's effort to detect and control mosquitoes that carry the West Nile virus.

"It's that time of the year again — time to get your yard back in shape or just get out and enjoy Pennsylvania's natural wonders," Acting Secretary Muscalus said. "But don't forget about the mosquitoes.

In 2002, West Nile virus was detected in 62 Pennsylvanians and contributed to the deaths of nine people. Last year's experience makes it clear that Pennsylvanians need to do their part to eliminate mosquito breeding areas around their homes."

When transmitted to people, West Nile virus most often causes mild infections like the flu, but on rare occasions the virus can cause West Nile encephalitis, an infection that can cause an inflammation of the brain. Anyone can get the virus, but older adults over 50 years of age are at increased risk of developing severe illness.

In addition to transmission through the bite of an infected mosquito, West Nile virus also has recently been shown to be transmitted through organ donation, blood transfusion, possibly mother to child (breastfeeding and transplacental) and occupational transmission. However, these other types of transmission account for a very small proportion of cases.

West Nile Virus cases occur primarily in the late summer or early fall, although mosquito season is usually April through October.

The Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is coordinating the county-based mosquito surveillance and control portion of the multi-agency effort.

"Along with our county partners, DEP will conduct an aggressive and proactive mosquito surveillance and control program again this year," Acting DEP Secretary McGinty said.

DEP and county West Nile coordinators will be looking for immature (larvae and pupae) and adult mosquitoes to determine if they are species known to carry the virus. They also will be noting their numbers and geographic distribution.

Mosquitoes known to carry West Nile virus that are detected in large numbers will be controlled using a powdered form of naturally occurring bacteria or a mosquito growth hormone, both of which are harmless to humans and aquatic life.

A vaccine is available for horses through veterinarians.

Acting Secretary Muscalus is reminding Pennsylvanians to report dead bird sightings. Dead bird sightings will be used to identify potential areas for enhanced surveillance. This year, Pennsylvanians can report dead birds two ways, online at www.westnile.state.pa.us or by calling 1-877-PA-HEALTH.

The West Nile surveillance program will collect up to five dead birds a week per county throughout the entire West Nile virus season. Citizens can call 1-877-PA-HEALTH to find out if their dead bird is appropriate for testing. If it is, they will be asked to deliver the bird to a centralized collection site.

Pennsylvanians can take a few simple steps around their homes to reduce their risk of contracting the West Nile virus. Because mosquitoes breed in standing water, even a small bucket that has stagnant water in it for four days can become home to many mosquitoes.

- Dispose of tin cans, plastic containers, ceramic pots or similar water-holding containers that have accumulated on your property. Do not overlook containers that have become overgrown by aquatic vegetation;
- Pay special attention to discarded tires that may have accumulated on your property;
- Drill holes in the bottom of recycling containers that are left outdoors. Drainage holes that are located on a container's sides allow them to collect enough water for mosquitoes to breed;
- Clean clogged roof gutters on an annual basis, particularly if the leaves from surrounding trees have a tendency to plug up the drains.

Roof gutters are easily overlooked but can produce millions of mosquitoes each season;

- Turn over plastic wading pools when not in use. A wading pool becomes a mosquito producer if it is not used on a regular basis;
- Turn over wheelbarrows, and do not allow water to stagnate in birdbaths for more than four days. Both provide breeding habitat for domestic mosquitoes;
- Aerate ornamental pools or stock them with fish. Water gardens are fashionable but become major mosquito producers if they are allowed to stagnate;
- Clean and chlorinate swimming pools that are not being used. Be aware that mosquitoes may even breed in water that collects on swimming pool covers; and
- Use landscaping to eliminate standing water that collects on your property. Mosquitoes will develop in any puddle that lasts for more than four days.

Last year, the West Nile virus was identified in 63 Pennsylvania counties. The only counties that did not have positive test results for 2002 were Elk, Cameron, Fulton and Carbon counties. The West Nile virus was identified in 1,737 birds, 674 mosquito groups, 97 horses, 43 sentinel chickens and 62 people, with nine human deaths.

A special website has been established to provide citizens with background information and regular updates about the West Nile virus and is available through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us, PA Keyword: "DEP West Nile " or at www.westnile.state.pa.us. Visitors to the website can sign up to automatically receive news releases and other updates via e-mail.

State Farmers Can File For Fuel Tax Refunds

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Treasurer Barbara Hafer has announced that Pennsylvania farmers may file claims for liquid fuels tax refunds between July 1, 2002 and June 30, 2003.

Hafer, who chairs the Board of Finance and Revenue, said claim forms must be returned postmarked not later than September 30 to the Board of Finance and Revenue, Motor Fuels Section, 1101 S. Front St., Suite 410, Harrisburg, PA 17104-2540.

"Any person who uses liquid fuels in the actual production of agricultural products is eligible for refunds," Hafer said. Last year, board staff paid 8,524 claims for $3,237,960 in refunds. The average claim paid was $380.

The refund rates are 26.6 cents per gallon for gasoline purchased from July 1, 2002 to December 31, 2002 and 25.9 cents per gallon for purchases between January 1, 2003 and June 30, 2003. The refund rate is 31.8 cents per gallon for kerosene and diesel fuel purchased between July 1, 2002 and December 31, 2002 and 30.8 cents per gallon for purchases between January 1, 2003 and June 30, 2003.

Each claim must include copies of paid receipts or a statement from the fuel dealer that shows the number of gallons purchased, purchase dates, and verification that the state taxes (liquid fuels and fuel use) were paid.

"Since changes in the rates took effect in the middle of the claim period, claims filed this year will be for a split tax period," Hafer said. "Claimants need to make sure receipts are separated by date to reflect the different tax rates. They should check any statements from fuel dealers to make certain the tax charged is properly reflected."

Claim forms are available from the Board of Finance and Revenue at the above address. Questions may be answered by calling (717) 787-6534 or e-mailing dlfetters

Ralstonia Outbreak In State Over

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) officials announced last week that the Ralstonia Outbreak is over in Pennsylvania, and all quarantines will be lifted within the next few weeks. The announcement comes just over two months since the original outbreak occurred.

Pennsylvania had the highest number of suspected cases in the nation, making PDA's job that much more difficult. PDA followed the lead of the U.S. Department of Agriculture but also had some flexibility in making decisions that were in the best interest of Pennsylvania. For example, some media outlets have recently reported that all plants associated with samples confirmed positive for Ralstonia solanacearum race 3 biovar 2 would have to be destroyed, not just those found positive.

PDA took a less stringent approach by ordering destruction on a case-by-case basis as condtions at individual establishments warranted. In the end, only 8 positive samples were found and only one facility was required to destroy a large amount of its greenhouse products.

Hershey Chosen Chairman Of State House Ag Committee

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The selection of State Representative Art Hershey (R-13) to serve as chairman of the House Agriculture and Rural Affairs Committee has been applauded by the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau. Speaker of the House John M. Perzel (R-172) appointed Rep. Hershey to the position to succeed Rep. Ray Bunt (R-147), who was chosen to serve as chairman of the House Consumer Affairs Committee.

"Rep. Hershey will be an excellent chairman. As a farmer, he understands both the challenges and opportunities that agriculture presents. We know he will keep the concerns of the farm and rural sectors in the forefront of the General Assembly," said Guy F. Donaldson, president of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau.

Hershey and his wife, Joyce, established Ar-Joy Holstein farm in Chester County. in 1959. Today, their son, Duane, operates the 400-acre family farm.

American Sheep Industry Association Conducting 2003 Photo Contest

DENVER, Colo. — Attention all photographers: It's time to start thinking about the American Sheep Industry Association's 2003 Photo Contest. The contest is open to all who wish to enter, which means you don't have to be involved in the U.S. sheep, lamb, wool, or goat industries to participate. The only rule is that your photograph must include sheep or goats. Entries must be postmarked by August 8.

Entries will be judged on clarity, content, composition, and appeal. A total of $1,000 will be awarded, with awards of $125 going to the grand prize winner in each of the four categories listed below; $75 for the first runners-up in each category and a $50 prize for the second runner-up in each of the four categories. (To increase your odds of winning, enter a category other than "Kids and Sheep" ... approximately half of our entries tend to fall into this category.)

- Action — Photographs of activities such as shearing, wool classing/skirting/baling, moving/trailing sheep, lambing, tagging, showing, feeding, etc. (Note that all pictures featuring youth ages 18 and younger should be entered in the "Kids and Sheep" category.)
- Scenic — Photographs of sheep/goats outdoors. (Photos entered in this category cannot include people.)
- Kids and Sheep — Photographs containing pictures of youth 18 years of age or younger and sheep/goats.
- Open Category — Photographs of sheep/goats with other farm animals, i.e. cats, dogs, llamas, donkeys, etc., or sheep/goat pictures — without people — taken indoors, such as in a barn, shed, etc.

If you're confused about the category into which your photograph would fall, leave the category portion of your entry blank and ASI will categorize it for you!

For contest rules and entry information, call Laura Gerhard, ASI Communications Manager, at (303) 771-3500, ext. 30.

Maryland Sheep, Wool Festival Announces Live Animal, Carcass Contest Results

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — One of the lesser known contests at the Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival, conducted recently in West Friendship, is the Live Animal and Carcass Contest.

The Live Animal and Carcass Contest recognizes producers of superior meat-type lambs and helps producers to correlate live animal traits (subjective) with carcass traits (objective).

After being evaluated on the hoof, the lambs are processed at Mt. Airy Locker and carcass measurements are taken. Contest results are based 30 percent on live placing and 70 percent on carcass measurements.

For the fifth consecutive year, the Live Animal and Carcass Contest was won by Beverly and Sherman Pearsall from Thurmont, Maryland.

Their champion lamb, second place on-hoof, was a crossbred Texel ram lamb weighing 80 pounds The lamb dressed out 46 pounds (58 percent) and had a 3.2 square inch loin eye (lamb chop), the largest in the class. The lamb had only 0.17 inches of back fat.

The Texel breed is known for its extreme muscling in the leg and loin regions. The University of Maryland Eastern Shore is currently conducting a study comparing Suffolk, Dorper, and Texel-sired lambs (bred to Katahdin hair sheep ewes).

The reserve champion lamb was a Dorset ram lamb exhibited by second year exhibitors, Bill and Katie Powers from Townsend, Delaware.

The Live Animal and Carcass Contest was won by Beverly and Sherman Pearsall from Thurmont, Maryland. Their champion lamb, second place on-hoof, was a crossbred Texel ram lamb weighing 80 pounds.

Their 102 pound lamb placed first on-the-hoof and had the highest scoring leg in the class (15/high prime), along with only 0.18 inches of back fat.

It is not unusual for Dorset lambs to do well in a carcass contest. In addition to being excellent mother sheep, Dorset-sired lambs are thickly muscled and often the "preferred" type of lamb in markets that prefer light weight (less than 100 pounds) lambs, the predominant market in the Eastern U.S.

Karrin Mullen served as the live animal judge. The carcass judging was done by Dr. John Buric and Martin O'Connor, of the USDA Ag Marketing Service.

Appreciation is expressed to the judges, as well as Mt. Airy Locker, for their long-time support of the contest.

For information about the Live Animal and Carcass Contest or how to evaluate carcass traits in live lambs or goats, contact the contest chair Susan Schoenian at (301) 432-2767 ext. 343 or sschoen@umd.edu.

Veal Retail Guide Is A National Winner

Wins Ag Marketing Honor In San Diego

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — The American Veal Association (AVA), on behalf of the Cattlemen's Beef Board, won a coveted Best of National Agri-Marketing Association (NAMA) award at the NAMA annual meeting in San Diego, April 16.

The Best of NAMA awards honor the best in agricultural marketing communications from across the country. "How to Answer Your Customers Questions About Veal" retail guide advanced to national competition after garnering first place in the public affairs/issues management category at the Region VI 2002 Best of NAMA contest.

"We're ecstatic about our Best of NAMA win," said Carrie Bomgardner, AVA. "Our allied industry partners have been pleased with this communication piece and its ability to succinctly address common misconceptions about the veal industry; recognition from our agriculture peers is icing on the cake."

Developed to further educate and assist food retailers and meat managers, the guide contains information to respond to consumer questions about veal, including nutritional value, appropriate cooking methods, frequently asked questions and the industry's quality assurance program.

The guide also provides retailers with a list of expert spokespeople who can answer questions regarding communications and retail marketing. To date, 1,300 retail guides have been distributed.

For a copy of the veal retail guide, contact the American Veal Association office at (717) 985-9125.

U.S., Cooperating Countries File WTO Case Against EU

WASHINGTON, D.C. — On Tuesday, U.S. Trade Representative Robert B. Zoellick and U.S. Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman announced that the U.S., Argentina, Canada, and Egypt will file a World Trade Organization (WTO) case against the European Union (EU) over its illegal five-year moratorium on approving agricultural biotech products.

Other countries expressing support for this case by joining it as third parties include Australia, Chile, Colombia, El Salvador, Honduras, Mexico, New Zealand, Peru, and Uruguay.

"The EU's moratorium violates WTO rules. People around the world have been eating biotech food for years. Biotech food helps nourish the world's hungry population, offers tremendous opportunities for better health and nutrition, and protects the environment by reducing soil erosion and pesticide use," said Zoellick. "We've waited patiently for five years for the EU to follow the WTO rules and the recommendations of the European Commission, so as to respect safety findings based on careful science. The EU's persistent resistance to abiding by its WTO obligations has perpetuated a trade barrier unwarranted by the EC's own scientific analysis, which impedes the global use of a technology that could be of great benefit to farmers and consumers around the world."

"With this case, we are fighting for the interests of American agriculture. This case is about playing by the rules negotiated in good faith. The European Union has failed to comply with its WTO obligations," said Veneman. "Biotechnology is helping farmers increase yields, lower pesticide use, improve soil conservation, (control) water pollution, and help reduce hunger and poverty around the world.

"Farmers here and elsewhere must be assured that their crops won't be unfairly rejected simply because they were produced using biotechnology. The EU actions threaten to deny the full development of a technology that holds enormous potential benefits to both producers and consumers worldwide, while also providing a very significant means to combat hunger and malnutrition that afflict hundreds of millions of people across the developing world."

The WTO agreement on sanitary and phytosanitary measures (SPS) recognizes that countries are entitled to regulate crops and food products to protect health and the environment. The WTO SPS agreement requires, however, that members have "sufficient scientific evidence" for such measures, and that they operate their approval procedures without "undue delay." Otherwise, there is a risk countries may without justification use such regulations to thwart trade in safe, wholesome, and nutritious products.

Before 1999, the EU approved nine agriculture biotech products for planting or import. It then suspended consideration of all new applications for approval, and has offered no scientific evidence for this moratorium on new approvals. As EU Environment Commissioner Margot Wallstrom said about three years ago (July 13, 2000): "We have already waited too long to act. The moratorium is illegal and not justified . . . the value of biotechnology is poorly appreciated in Europe."

Agricultural biotechnology is a continuation of the long tradition of agricultural innovation that has provided the basis for rising prosperity for the past millennium. Humankind has historically progressed in boosting agricultural productivity, quality, and choices by harnessing science to develop new forms of crops.

More than 145 million acres (58 million hectares) of biotech crops were grown in the world in 2002. Worldwide, about 45 percent of soy, 11 percent of corn, 20 percent of cotton, and 11 percent of rapeseed are biotech crops. In the U.S., 75 percent of soy, 34 percent of corn, and 71 percent of cotton are biotech crops.

Numerous organizations, researchers and scientists have determined that biotech foods pose no threat to humans or the environment. Examples include the French Academy of Medicine and Pharmacy, and the French Academy of Sciences, the 3,200 scientists who cosponsored a declaration on biotech foods and numerous scientific studies, including a joint study conducted by the seven national academies of science (the National Academies of Science of the United States, Brazil, China, India, and Mexico, plus the Royal Society of London and the Third World Academy of Sciences).

In October 1998, the EU stopped approving any new agriculture biotech products for planting or import. This moratorium had no effect on any previously-approved products, such as corn and soy, which are still used and are available in member countries, but it froze the approval process in the EU. No biotech product has ever been rejected for approval in the EU.

Since the late 1990s, the EU has pursued policies that undermine agricultural biotechnology and trade in biotech foods. First, six member states (Austria, France, Germany, Italy, Greece, and Luxemburg) banned modified crops approved by the EU, and the Commission refused to challenge the illegal bans. In 1998, member states began blocking all new biotech applications. This approval moratorium is causing a growing portion of U.S. agricultural exports to be excluded from EU markets and unfairly casting concerns about biotech products around the world, particularly in developing countries.

The first step in a WTO dispute, which the United States and other countries are taking today, is to request and conduct consultations in the next 60 days. WTO procedures are designed to encourage parties to resolve their differences. If at the end of the 60 days, no resolution has been achieved, then the U.S. and the cooperating countries may seek the formation of a dispute settlement panel to hear arguments. Dispute settlement procedures, including appeal, typically take a total of 18 months.

Joining Zoellick and Veneman at the Washington announcement were Dr. C.S. Prakash (organizer of a pro-agricultural biotech declaration signed by 20 Nobel Laureates and more than 3,200 scientists); T.J. Buthelezi, a small farmer of biotech crops from South Africa; Dr. Diran Makinde, DVM, dean of the School of Agriculture, University of Venda for Science and Technology, South Africa; Dr. Ariel Alvarez-Morales, principal scientist, Department of Plant Genetic Engineering, Center for Research and Advanced Studies, Irapuato, Mexico; and representatives from countries participating in the case.

Holstein Association Announces Junior Member Contest Semifinalists

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Holstein Association USA, Inc., this week announced the 12 semifinalists in its annual Distinguished Junior Member (DJM) contest.

The semifinalists all have won the Distinguished Junior Member contest at their state level and will compete at the 2003 National Holstein Convention, June 21-24, in Winston-Salem, N.C., to be named a national finalist.

The status of Distinguished Junior Member is the highest honor the Association bestows upon its junior members, which membership base numbers more than 10,000 nationally. Since 1922, the contest has honored more than 274 outstanding dairy youth for their contributions to the Association and the dairy industry as a whole.

The semifinalists this year are: Anthony Brey, Sturgeon Bay, Wis; John Cannon, West Union, Iowa; Benjamin Dorshorst, Junction City, Wis; McKenzie Hanehan, Stillwater, N.Y.; Thomas Harwood, Shippensburg, Pa; Ann Haughian, Rice Lake, Wis; Miranda Miller, Tillamook, Ore.; Trent Olson, Lewiston, Minn; Bill Rauen, Farley, Iowa; Robert Teixeira, Turlock, Calif.; Aaron Ray Tompkins, Ennice, N.C.; Chad Wethal, Brooklyn, Wis.

Forums Provide Grassroots Input On Dairy Checkoff Programs

PHILADELPHIA — Members of the Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association board of directors were among 400 producers nationwide who participated in five regional planning forums focusing on 2004 dairy checkoff programs.

Hosted by Dairy Management Inc., which manages the national dairy checkoff program, the forums provided for grassroots input on the 2004 Unified Marketing Plan. Dairy farmers attending the forums, conducted in March and April, reviewed current dairy promotion and marketing campaigns and commented on strategic plans for future programs.

"It's important for us to hear what dairy producers think about our promotion efforts," said R. Steven Graybeal, a Lancaster County dairy farmer and chairman of Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association. "This type of grassroots input assures that dairy checkoff programs work to help build demand in a way that benefits U.S. dairy producers."

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association board members attended a forum March 20-21 in Albany, N.Y. They reviewed the following five strategic platforms for driving dairy demand in 2004:

- Marketing channels, featuring key partnerships with retail grocery chains, national restaurant chains and food manufacturers, such as those participating in the 3-A-Day of Dairy campaign.
- Childhood nutrition, including the "New Look of School Milk" program, which aims to make "enhanced milk" (more flavors of milk in single-serve, plastic resealable containers available through the school feeding line, ala carte line and vending) pervasive in schools across the country.
- Innovation strategies, such as extended shelf life dairy products and other emerging technologies for dairy ingredients, including cheese, whey, and dry milk.
- Dairy image programs, which help maintain and enhance consumer confidence in dairy products and dairy farming.
- Export marketing, including demand-building market development and expansion programs in Latin America, the Pacific Rim, Mexico, and other global markets.

According to Graybeal, producer input has led to significant shifts in national marketing efforts. One example is the development of the 3-A-Day Dairy program, a nutrition-based consumer marketing and education initiative.

Scientists Urge EU To End Biotech Food Ban

WASHINGTON, D.C.— A distinguished panel of international scientists gathered in Washington recently to speak out against the European Union's (EU's) moratorium on trade in genetically engineered foods.

"The European Union's refusal to license new biotech crops is a clear and blatant violation of its obligations under trade treaties it has signed and ratified," said Competitive Enterprise Institute Director of Food Safety Policy Gregory Conko. "More importantly, it poses a genuine threat to the health and well-being of people throughout the developing world."

As a direct consequence of the EU moratorium, numerous developing countries have resisted adopting high-yielding biotech crops for fear of losing important European export markets. Last fall, the countries of Zambia and Zimbabwe even refused to accept U.S. food aid, for fear that Europeans would cease future imports from those countries.

John Schwartz Memorial Golf Tournament June 5

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Poultry Association has announced plans for the second annual John H. Schwartz Memorial Golf Tournament June 5 at the Foxchase Golf Course, Stevens.

This tournament celebrates the memory of the former county extension director. Hole sponsorships at $100 are still being taken. Cost per person to attend is $60, which includes greens fee, cart, range balls, refreshments, prizes, and chicken barbecue meal after play.

Registration and lunch is scheduled at 11:30 a.m. "Shotgun" start is 1 p.m. The tournament is limited to the first 144 golfers and the registration deadline is May 30.

Registrations should be made with Gregory Martin at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, Room 1, 1383 Arcadia Rd., Lancaster, PA 17601, (717) 394-6851 or fax (717) 394-3962.

U.S., Canada Reach Agreement On Dairy Exports

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Office of the U.S. Trade Representative and the U.S. Department of Agriculture last week announced an important settlement with Canada resulting in major revisions to Canada's subsidy programs for its dairy exports.

The U.S. recently won a World Trade Organization (WTO) case that ruled that Canada was continuing to provide illegal subsidies to its dairy industry. As a result of the settlement, Canada has agreed to eliminate these subsidies.

Consequently, Canada will no longer export subsidized dairy products to the U.S. and will significantly limit subsidized dairy exports destined to third countries.

"This is great news for American dairy farmers and processors. The playing field has been leveled. The Canadians have agreed to comply with the WTO decision and will stop exporting subsidized dairy products to the U.S.," said U.S. Trade Representative Robert B. Zoellick. "I welcome Canada's quick action to comply with the WTO's most recent ruling, and fully expect Canada to abide by its WTO commitments on dairy exports."

"Canada's dairy subsidies have hurt U.S. producers and we are pleased that the WTO process has resulted in a positive solution," said Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman. "This agreement will allow our producers to more effectively compete in the marketplace."

Over a number of years, the U.S. has argued before the WTO that Canada's dairy programs provided export subsidies to its dairy processors and farmers above the level that Canada committed to in the WTO.

In December 2002, the WTO ruled in favor of the U.S. confirming that Canada was continuing to provide illegal export subsidies with the sale of discounted milk to Canadian processors under its Commercial Export Milk (CEM) program.

Canada's settlement of the case is also with New Zealand, which joined the U.S. in challenging Canada's dairy regime in the WTO.

Key elements of the settlement between the U.S. and Canada are:

- By April 30, all Canadian provinces eliminated the CEM program, which the WTO ruled as providing export subsidies. The federal government of Canada also is making consequential amendments to its regulations related to CEM.
- Canada prohibited any new contracts under the CEM program as of December 31, 2002, thereby limiting the amount of subsidized dairy exports for the remainder of the current marketing year, ending July 31.
- As of May 1, all deliveries of CEM milk ceased, and there will be no exports to the U.S. of any subsidized milk or cream.
- Canada ceased issuing permits for the export of dairy products under its Special Milk Class 5(d) for the remainder of the current marketing year.
- For the current marketing year, Canada will ensure that subsidized exports of butter and skim milk powder stay within the level established in the WTO.
- Canada will exceed its WTO commitment level for subsidies provided to exports of cheese and other milk products by a limited amount in the current marketing year. Due to the elimination of the CEM program, however, as of August 1, no subsidized dairy exports will enter the U.S., and Canada also will limit its subsidized dairy exports to other foreign markets to the level established in the WTO.

Cervidae Licensing Deadline June 1

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With the June 1 deadline for operators to register their cervidae herds fast approaching, Agriculture Secretary Dennis C Wolff is urging elk and red deer owners to register with the department.

"We are approaching the licensing deadline, and I encourage cervidae breeders and herd owners to complete and return their license applications as soon as possible," Secretary Wolff said.

This month, the Department of Agriculture sent license applications to all known cervidae livestock operations in the commonwealth, and has begun the inspection process. License applications are available on the Department's Website: http://www.agriculture.state.pa.us/animalhealth/lib/animalhealth/. Owners of elk or red deer farm operations who have not received a letter should immediately contact the Department at (717) 705-2106.

Miller Resolution Recognizes Beef Month

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — With cattle making up nearly 95 percent of the state's livestock value, Rep. Sheila Miller has sponsored a resolution designating May 2003 as Beef Month in Pennsylvania. The resolution was approved unanimously by the House.

"The beef cattle industry is a very valuable contributor to the state's overall agriculture industry," said Miller, who operates her own 150-acre beef cattle farm in Berks County. "I was proud to introduce this resolution on behalf of all the cattle producers in Pennsylvania at the request of the Pennsylvania Beef Council, headquartered in Middletown. It is important to recognize the role that beef farmers play in feeding our citizens and boosting our economy.

"Pennsylvania's beef producers are voluntarily participating in a quality assurance program to increase consumer confidence and enjoyment when purchasing and preparing beef," added Miller. "Food safety is an important part of the food chain, from pasture to plate, and this program allows all Pennsylvanians to recognize the steaks, roasts, and hamburger they are buying are raised right here in the Keystone State by producers who make quality a key ingredient to great tasting beef recipes."

Rep. Sheila Miller sponsored a House resolution designating May as Beef Month in Pennsylvania. Joining her to mark the occasion are Holly Marshall, left, industry relations and compliance director for the Pennsylvania Beef Council (PBC), and Paul Slayton, right, executive director of the PBC.

Lancaster County is the top cattle-producing county in Pennsylvania with 239,000 head of cattle and calves. Pennsylvania ranks 20th in the nation in total cattle inventories.

Farmers Union Participates In Dairy Producers Roundtable

PRETORIA, South Africa — California Farmers Union President Joaquin Contente and National Farmers Union President Dave Frederickson represented the United States during the 3rd World Dairy Producers Roundtable in South Africa last week.

Over the weekend, the International Federation of Agricultural Producers (IFAP), which represents farm families in 71 countries through a general consultative status with the United Nations, unanimously endorsed dairy policies emerging from the roundtable, including a proposal that would prohibit all forms of dumping within the World Trade Organization (WTO).

Market concentration was a topic that surfaced during the roundtable discussion, which drew 100 dairy producers from around the globe. The roundtable participants called upon the World Trade Organization to discipline the activities of multinational corporations so they do not negatively impact agriculture producers.

The roundtable stressed the need for a WTO agreement that takes into account the particular needs of the dairy farmers in the developing countries. Contente, a dairy farmer from Hanford, Calif., led a discussion on reconciling dairy farmers' needs in both developing and developed countries. "Developed countries that seek more and more export opportunities stir up fears among farmers in the developing world who are trying desperately to establish domestic markets themselves," he explained.

In addition, Contente suggested that more liberalized trade has worked against dairy farmers in the United States, which now accepts imported dairy products that weigh heavily on U.S. markets. For example, Contente pointed out that imports of milk protein concentrate (MPC) have increased 600 percent in six years and more than doubled between 1998 and 1999 alone. "MPC was a relatively new product at the time the last global trade negotiations were completed, so American farmers have found their hands tied by inflexible trade rules," he explained.

Frederickson, who co-chairs an IFAP committee studying ways in which farmers can regain a competitive marketplace, proposed a plan to improve economic returns for family farmers worldwide. Specifically, the body endorsed NFU's plan to attack industrial concentration in the agricultural sector. IFAP members agreed to have two noted industrial concentration researchers from the University of Missouri-Columbia facilitate a global study of concentration and its effects on farmers and consumers. Drs. Bill Heffernan and Mary Hendrickson have done exhaustive studies on U.S. agricultural concentration, but the new analysis will represent the first time concentration has been explored worldwide. Academics from each continent have been identified to conduct the research.

Frederickson proposed that IFAP develop initiatives that would shift supply and demand fundamentals to improve producers' market power; reduce world hunger; enhance global food security; and address the impacts of concentration in the food chain.

IFAP unanimously encouraged the represented governments to seek meaningful progress at the 5th World Trade Organization Ministerial Conference in Cancun in September so that farmers are able to secure a reasonable income from their work.

Northeast Order Uniform Milk Price For April

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Federal Milk Marketing Order, has announced that the statistical uniform price (SUP) paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order during April 2003 is $11.45 per hundredweight ($0.98 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The producer price differential (PPD) portion of the SUP for April is $2.04 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. The PPD ($2.04) combined with the corresponding month's Class III price ($9.41) equals the SUP ($11.45).

The SUP represents a benchmark minimum price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for farm milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The actual price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the composition of a farm's milk differs from the component benchmarks. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool. The PPD is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components and is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant(s). The SUP and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the further away the plant(s) receiving the producers' milk are from Suffolk County, Mass.

The Class prices for milk pooled in April are as follows: Class I, $12.89 (Suffolk County, Mass.); Class II, $10.44; Class III, $9.41; and Class IV, $9.73. Comparable prices for April 2002 were: Class I, $14.72; Class II, $11,88; Class III, $10.85; and Class IV, $11.09.

The component values for April 2003 are protein, $1.8006 per pound; butterfat, $1.1503 per pound; other solids, $0.0008 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.6564 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 2.109 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 41.3 percent of producer milk receipts. The Class I utilization was 38.9 percent in April 2002.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 17.5 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 28.5 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 12.7 percent of the tot

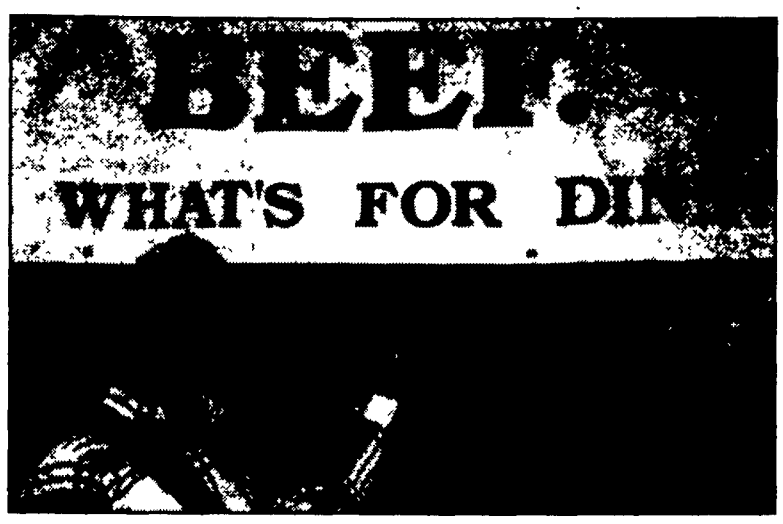
Virginia Cattlemen, Women Conduct Beef Expo, Celebrate 50 Years

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

HARRISONBURG, Va. — The 14th Virginia Beef Exposition took place April 18 and 19 at the Rockingham County Fairgrounds here. In conjuction with the Virginia Cattlemen's Association's 50th anniversary celebration, the event was billed as the largest beef oriented-trade show in the Mid-Atlantic region.

Visitors hopeful of evaluating exhibits found they could do so both indoors and out. On hand were trailers, pharmaceuticals, artificial insemination supplies, watering and feeding equipment, fencing supplies, cattle-handling equipment, mineral and feed additives, vaccines, farm equipment, livestock, ag publications, and more.

Participants in hay evaluation, forage knowledge and beef stockman's contests were presented with various opportunities to prove the depth of their knowledge and skill with regard to hay bale weight and quality, forages, and cattle.



Virginia Beef Queen Amie Knick touts beef as "nature's best multi-vitamin."

Samples of new products were offered and beef cooking demonstrations took place at intervals throughout the two days. Informative brochures and handouts intended for consumer education were readily available. These generally provided the answer to whatever beef-related question that arose.

The purebred sales of Angus, Hereford, Limousin, Red Angus, Simmental and Tarentaise beef breeds dominated the schedule of Friday activities. Some 270 head of cattle were consigned by breeders from a number of states, including those as far as Iowa and Missouri.

Auctioneers for the event were Gary Vance, Strasburg, Va., Red Angus and Tarentaise; Mike Jones, West Point, Ga., Angus and Limousin; Dale Stith, Guston, Ky., Hereford; and John Spiker, Simmental.

Amie Knick from Lexington was selected as the 2003 Virginia Beef Queen in a contest sponsored by the Virginia Cattle Women. Throughout the coming months Knick will traverse Virginia to tout beef as a great choice for any menu.

"Beef is a very safe meat," said Knick. "It is nature's best multivitamin and contains iron, zinc, protein and B-vitamins."

Approximately 100 commercial replacement heifers were sold at the expo. Each one was certified through the Virginia Premium Assured Heifer Program. Additionally, pen bulls were available for private treaty sale.

Youth events featured a beef showmanship contest and the youth Red Angus, Simmental, Hereford, Angus, Shorthorn and Steer shows.

The Virginia State Cattle Working Contest found the competitive edge sharp between 10 teams demonstrating their skills before a large group of spectators.

The FFA and 4-H members were judged on knowledge of beef quality assurance, product administration and cattle handling as they processed a group of stocker cattle.

The Cattlemen's group became official in April, 1953, and has since grown to its current membership of 6,000.

Member Reggie Reynolds, executive secretary, noted in an article that recapped the association's history: "The latest new feeder cattle merchandising tool is Virginia Quality Assured (Ear Tag) Feeder cattle, which was developed in 1996."

Reynolds added that in 2002, some 5,000 head of Virginia Quality Assured feeder cattle with known genetics and health were sold.

Pennsylvania's Red Meat Production Up 7.2 Percent In 2002

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Commercial red meat production in Pennsylvania during 2002 totaled 1252.6 million pounds, dressed weight basis, up 7.2 percent from a year ago, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

Commercial cattle slaughter, at 1,040,900 head, was up 9.0 percent from last year. Of this number, 1,037,200 head were slaughtered in federally inspected plants. The federally inspected slaughter consisted of 46.7 percent steers, 8.4 percent heifers, 41.9 percent cows (of which 73.5 percent were dairy cows), and 2.9 percent bulls and stags.

Beef production, at 1329 million pounds live weight, was 10.0 percent more than 2001. Average live weight per head was 1,277 pounds, an increase of 12 pounds from last year.

Commercial calf slaughter, at 190,300 head, was up 11.6 percent from a year ago. Veal production, at 64.87 million pounds live weight, was up 3.4 percent from a year ago. Average live weight per head decreased 27 pounds to 341 pounds per calf.

Commercial hog slaughter, at 2,628,400 head, was up 3.9 percent from last year. Of this number, 2,623,200 head were slaughtered in federally inspected plants. Barrows and gilts made up 99.9 percent of the federally inspected slaughter. Pork production was 649.0 million pounds live weight, up 4.1 percent from 2001. Average live weight increased 1 pound per head to 247 pounds.

Commercial sheep and lamb slaughter, at 70,200 head, was up 22.1 percent from last year. Of this number, 69,600 head were slaughtered in federally inspected plants. Lambs and yearlings made up 90.5 percent of the federally inspected slaughter. Lamb and mutton production was 7.3 million pounds live weight, up 24 percent from a year ago. The average live weight increased 1 pound to 103 pounds.

There were an estimated 331 commercial slaughter plants in Pennsylvania on Jan. 1, 2003, of which 114 were under federal inspection.

MEETINGS FOR ALL DAIRY FARMERS

Learn more about the CWT (Cooperatives Working Together) program proposed by the National Milk Producers Federation.

The CWT program is designed to improve milk prices by bringing supply and demand in balance. The major Northeast dairy cooperatives will be holding joint informational meetings to update you on the details of this farmer-controlled program and answer any questions you may have. Cooperative members, independent dairy producers, and agribusiness professionals are all invited to attend.

NCGA Hails Progress Toward Renewable Fuels Standard

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) moved two steps closer to attaining a renewable fuels standard (RFS) recently when the House and Senate took major action on related bills.

In a 32-14 vote April 3, the House Energy and Commerce Committee approved an energy bill that includes an RFS.

Additionally, the Senate Finance Committee passed an energy tax incentive bill that promotes the use of ethanol with its inclusion of the Highway Trust Fund (HTF) fix and the Small Producer Tax Credit upgrade. Both achievements are being hailed a victory by the NCGA.

Under the House bill, the current oxygenate standard for reformulated gasoline would be removed, air quality and anti-backsliding provisions would be enhanced and an RFS reaching 5 billion gallons in 2015 would be established. The committee defeated several amendments that sought to eliminate or modify the fuels section. For example, an amendment by Rep. Rick Boucher (D-Va.) to eliminate the RFS was soundly defeated 34-14.

"While there are some aspects NCGA would like to see improved in the House energy bill to reflect the rapid growth of the ethanol industry, mainly the RFS schedule, this was a positive step forward," said NCGA President Fred Yoder. "The House Energy Committee should be commended for its action, but the work is not done yet. We have a long way to go in this important process."

Yoder noted the House last year did not include an RFS in its energy bill. "It is a huge step for growers to have an RFS reported out of committee yesterday in the House energy bill," said Yoder.

The Senate success is also important for growers. The bipartisan supported tax incentive legislation corrects the gap in the ethanol excise tax exemption so that ethanol and gasoline make the same contribution to the HTF. Within the current gasoline excise tax, 18.4 cents is paid into the general fund (GF) for gasoline. For ethanol, only 13.2 cents is paid into the GF. The 5.2 cents deduction is the ethanol excise tax exemption.

More specifically, refiners and gasoline marketers using 10 percent ethanol blends receive a 5.2-cents-per-gallon reduction from the tax paid on straight gasoline. Since federal motor fuel taxes are a primary source of funding for highway programs, the issue has arisen as to the revenue impact of ethanol-blended fuels on the HTF. The Senate Finance Committee fixed this gap yesterday.

The Senate package also includes modifications to the small ethanol producer tax credit by allocating the 10-cents-per-gallon production income alcohol fuels credit to the members of a farmer cooperative (this credit is in addition to the 53-cents-per-gallon tax incentive generally available for ethanol). It also changes the definition of a "small ethanol producer" from 30 million gallons per year to 60 million gallons per year.

"Getting both of these bills passed out of committee was a huge undertaking," continued Yoder. "Many people don't realize how complex the process is with several committees in each chamber working on related provisions.

Dairy Farmers Lobby Congress On MPC

WASHINGTON, D.C. — About 60 dairy farmers from across the country spent three days recently working with lawmakers to close trade loopholes allowing imported milk protein concentrate (MPC) and casein to flood domestic markets.

"Imported MPC and casein are displacing our domestic dairy supply at a time when U.S. dairy farmers are getting the lowest prices for their products since 1979," said NFU President Dave Frederickson. "While some imported powdered milk products are subject to tariff-rate quotas, MPC and casein are not. This loophole must be closed."

The farmers visited more than 160 congressional offices advocating the Milk Import Tariff Equity Act, S. 560 and H.R. 1160, which Frederickson said would "level the playing field" by limiting MPC and casein imports by imposing effective tariffs. The legislation is sponsored by Sens. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, and Mark Dayton, D-Min., in the Senate and Reps. Don Sherwood, R-Pa., and David Obey, D-Wis., in the House.

Sens. Craig and Dayton and Rep. Sherwood participated in a "MPC-free" ice cream social Tuesday evening during which each of the lawmakers commended the farmers for their efforts to gain cosponsors for the Milk Import Tariff Equity Act. The leaders reported that, while in Washington, the dairy farmers had helped increase the list of cosponsors to 92 in the House and 22 in the Senate.

USDA Amends Central Milk Marketing Order

WASHINGTON, D.C.— Earlier this year, the USDA issued an interim order amending the pooling provisions of the Central milk marketing order. The tentative final decision for the Central order, issued Nov. 8, 2002, was approved by dairy farmers.

This interim order amends pooling standards to prevent the inappropriate pooling of milk on the Central order. The approved amendments eliminate the ability to simultaneously pool milk on the Central milk order and on a state-operated order that has marketwide pooling. The interim order also will establish lower but year-round supply plant performance standards; not consider the volume of milk shipments to distributing plants regulated by another Federal milk order as a qualifying shipment on the Central order; exclude from receipts diverted milk made by a pool plant to another pool plant in determining pool plant diversion limits; and, establish a "net shipments" provision for milk deliveries to distributing plants.

The interim order became effective March 1. For additional information about the decision, contact: Donald R. Nicholson, USDA/AMS/Dairy Programs, P.O. Box 14650, Shawnee Mission, KS 66285-4650; Tel. (913) 495-9300; email: donald.nicholson@fmmacentral.com.

A Dry Cow Booster That Costs 7¢ a Day

Hoffmans Horse and Cattle Powder is an ideal tonic for cows over freshening. Feed 6 wks. before freshening. 1 Tablespoon a day. (Two weeks over freshening, feed 1 Tablespoon in the morning & 1 Tablespoon in evening)

Cows will clean better after freshening Cows have a lower somatic cell count and will have less mastitus problems Great for reproduction tract and cows will cycle better after freshening Will help rumen function over freshening Less feet problems and less stress

This is an over-all good booster if fed to dry cows, and it will pay you big dividends.

Introducing the 2003 R65 and R75 GLEANER models—continuing the tradition of GLEANER innovation with many new features including an all new cab.

For decades, farmers have counted on GLEANER for clean harvesting, innovative designs and efficient operation. The 2003 GLEANERs continue the tradition with the state-of-the-art COMFORTECH® II cab designed for comfort, efficiency and productivity:

- A larger, curved windshield made from a single section of glass, provides great visibility
- An enlarged frame opens up the cab for more comfort and easier access to controls
- New electronic displays and controls provide unprecedented access to important data

Efficiency. Quality. Reliability. Performance. To find out why thousands of farmers remain loyal—generation after generation—stop in today to see the new generation of GLEANER.

Lancaster County Weekly Cattle

New Holland, Pa.
Report Supplied By USDA
Friday, May 15, 2003

	CATTLE	CALVES
THIS WEEK	2294	1190
LAST WEEK	2595	1145
LAST YEAR	2660	1266

Compared to last week, slaughter steers sold 2.00-4.00 higher for the week due to the very good demand and active trading. Finished steer prices have never been this high in Lancaster County as packages of Prime steers on Thursday were trading up to 86.00. The supply in the county remains relatively thick, with most producers not hesitating to bring their steers to town to get in on the hot market, regardless of their finish. However, most of the cattle this week were very well finished, and looked more like the Lancaster County runs the area is known for. Nationally, boxed beef cutout values have been extremely bullish as a 7.00 increase was noted through Thursday. The western direct feedyards moved steers 1.00-2.00 higher this week at mostly 80.00, and 127.00-128.00 in the meat. Holstein steers sold 1.00-2.00 higher early in the week, trading mixed late as most of the demand was for the high Choice and Prime spots. Slaughter heifer runs were very light this week, and trends were not established. Breaking and Boning cows sold 1.00-3.00 lower early in the week due to the lighter buyer attendances, with Lean slaughter cows able to hold near steady However, the late week demand for the fleshier cows remains good as all classes sold 1.00-3.00 higher. The cow supplies in the county are getting lighter, which is playing a hand in the higher market. The quality of the cows has been mixed, but noted as very good on Thursday as a nice supply of fleshy cows has been available for several weeks. Slaughter bulls sold steady to 2.00 higher for the week. The reported supply this week included 1067 head of steers, 85 heifers, 813 cows, 146 bulls, with the balance made up of 183 head of feeder cattle.

Slaughter Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-4 1190-1495 lbs 80.25-86.25, mostly 82.00-85.00 with the exception of a pkg at 86.00 late in the week. Choice 2-3 1105-1470 lbs 78.00-83.00, heavyweights 1500-1575 lbs 72.25-82.25, high dressing Charolais and Limi-X's 79.50-83.25 with fancier types from 82.50- 86.50. Few Choice 1-2 1090-1425 lbs 80.50-84.00. Choice 4 1190-1370 lbs 75.50-79.50. Select and low Choice 2-3 1030-1480 lbs 75.75-79.75. Select 1-2 1020-1460 lbs 73.00-77.00, heavier muscled up to 81.50.

Holstein Steers: High Choice and Prime 2-3 1250-1565 lbs 70.00-75.75, heavy pkg 1655 lbs 69.00. Choice 2-3 1180-1575 lbs 65.00-71.85, heavyweights 1590- 1710 lbs 62.50-67.75. Select and low Choice 2-3 1155-1570 lbs 62.00-66.75, up to 68.75. Select 1-2 1235-1530 lbs 59.00-61.75, up to 66.75 on Monday. Standard 1-2 1155-1340 lbs 54,00-57.25, thin 45.50-48.75.

Slaughter Heifers: Light supply Choice, few Prime 2-3 1050-1345 lbs 76.00- 78.50, few Charolais and Limi-X's 80.00-83.00 with a very fancy heavy muscled light weight 860 lbs 83.00. Select and low Choice 2-3 1050-1320 lbs 74.00-76.25.

Slaughter Cows. Percent Lean, Weight, Bulk, Low Dressing. Premium White 65-70, over 1600 lbs, 48.75-53.00. Breakers 70-75, over 1400 lbs, 42.75-50.75, 39.00-45.75, outstanding individual 51.75. Boners 75-80, over 1200 lbs, 38.00-46.50, 36.25-41.00. Lean (Hi-Yield) 80-85, over 1200 lbs, 40.75-45.00. Lean 85-90, over 1000 lbs, 34.00-40.75, 30.50-36.25, up to 42.00. Lean (Light-Wt) 85-90, 750-1000 lbs, 31.50-36.25, 28.00-33.75.

Slaughter Bulls: Yield Grade 1 1085-2180 lbs 49.50-55.75, several fancy high dressers 60.50-64.50 with an outstanding single at 71.00, full 46.00-49.50 Yield Grade 2 1025-2050 lbs 45.50-52.00, heavy 2530 lb single 48.00, few light weights 805-950 lbs 42.50-48.00.

Calf Summary: Compared to last week, veal calves sold mostly steady to 10.00 higher. Holstein bull calves suitable for special fed veal barns sold 10.00- 20.00 lower on Monday, trending steady to 20.00 higher at the Tuesday graded run. However, the real bell ringer came late in the week as prices were sharply higher. Number One and Number Two graded bulls all sold over 200.00, with demand so good that the Number Two supply sold at over a 30.00 premium to the Number One's. Holstein heifers are also once again a hot commodity as prices were up to over 450.00 by week's end. It's hard to pencil out paying over 200.00 for 90-125 lb bulls when the finished market was reported from 182.00- 188.00 this week on a carcass basis; which is mostly steady on light to moderate demand and offerings. Contract calves slaughtered this week were hung up from mostly 185.00-190.00. The PA Department of Agriculture graded 730 head of bulls and heifers this week, compared to 704 head last week.

"The dairy industry has an opportunity to impact its own destiny."

Heatwole outlined the proposed 12-month program as it has been developed so far. A number of details are still being worked out, he said.

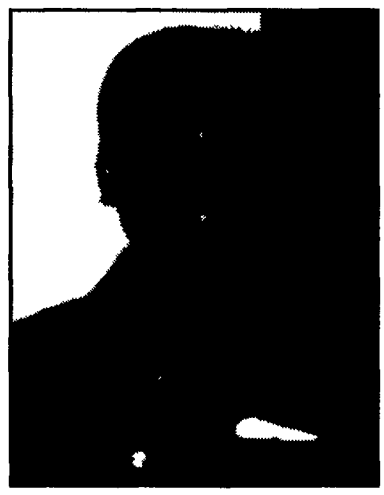
One of CWT's chief goals is to eliminate 125,300 U.S. cows through a "herd retirement program." Herds would be selected and purchased through the lowest voluntary producer bids based on annual hundredweight production. The selected herds would be committed to slaughter to ensure they do not return to a milking operation.

Heifers and calves would not be included in the buyout, Heatwole said, noting that the intent is not to eliminate any dairy farmers.

"This is not a program to get farmers out of production — it is a program to get cows out of production," he said.

"The objective is to (eliminate) the largest number of cows at the lowest possible price."

Producers can also bid on an amount they would be willing to receive to reduce future milk marketings by a specific percentage, such as 10 or 15 percent. As part of the bidding process, they would need to indicate the measures they intend to take in achieving the reduction. If they accomplish the projected cutback — plus or minus 1 percent — they would then be paid the contracted amount.



Jerrel Heatwole of DFA explains the broad terms of the CWT program.

The third part of the plan is to provide incentive to dairy manufacturers and exporters to sell more U.S. dairy products abroad.

Employing these three aspects of the plan, CWT's goal is to reduce national milk supplies by 2.7 percent — about 4.6 billion pounds over the next year. That would raise average milk prices a projected $1.30 per hundredweight.

For herds of about 125 cows or less, however, reduction in Farm Bill payments under the Milk Income Loss Compensation (MILC) program would cut the overall benefit down to about 70 cents per hundredweight.

Even so, that's about 50 cents per hundredweight returned to the producer above the 18 cent per hundredweight investment in the program, Heatwole noted.

Heatwole showed the group a graph of the U.S. divided into five regions — the Northeast, Southeast, Upper Midwest, West, and Southwest.

CWT is targeting the West and Southwest to cut back production far more than in the eastern regions and Upper Midwest.

West and Southwest regions are targeted to reduce production by 5 percent and 4.3 percent, respectively.

In the other three regions, including the Northeast, the goals for reduction are only 0.5 percent.

Several producers at the meeting asked why dairy producers in the east are being called on to help pay for a problem that appears to have been caused by dairy herd expansions in the west.

The milk price dilemma is not that simple, according to Heatwole.

"(Producers from other regions) have different ideas of what caused the problem," he said.

"No region can act independently from the rest of the country."

Some farmers at the meeting expressed concern that CWT buyout price levels would be too low to be feasible — and that that could cause the 18 cent per hundredweight fee to go even higher.

Heatwole promised the fee won't be set any higher.

"If the price goes over 18 cents, the program is going to die," he said.

While non-contributing farmers and co-ops would, in essence, get a "free ride" from the program, that's no reason for the rest of the nation's dairy producers "to sit around and do nothing," Heatwole said.

Heatwole said that he doesn't expect dairy imports to take the place of any reduction in U.S. milk supplies brought about by the CWT program.

He also noted that milk processors, as well as large retailers such as Wal-Mart, will likely be supportive of the concerted dairy effort because it aims to take care of their milk suppliers.

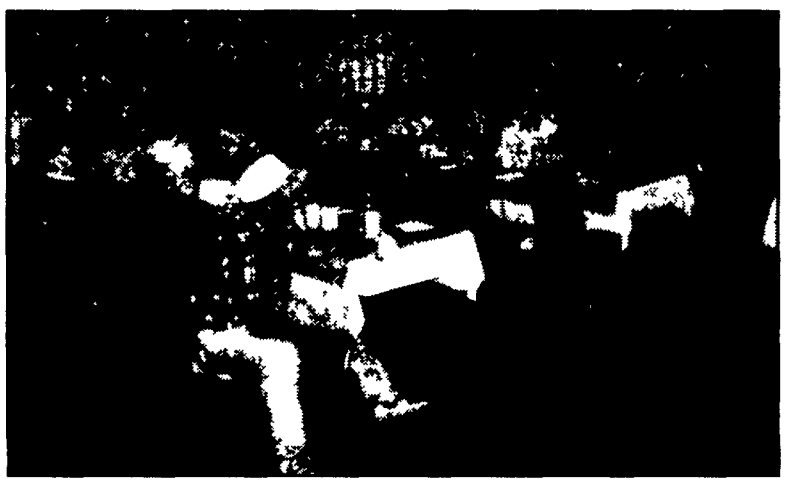
Dairy industry representatives are lobbying in Washington to curb milk protein concentrate (MPC) imports and address other trade issues, establish effective price support floors, and adopt dairy compact legislation.

"There is no single solution to this issue (of low milk prices)," Heatwole said.

The meeting took place at the Peach Bottom Inn in southeastern York County.

Many more CWT informational meetings are scheduled throughout the region. Check the Lancaster Farming calendar for one in your area.

For more information, call the CWT Northeast Hotline at (888) 858-7813, e-mail NMPF at info@nmpf.org, log onto their Website at www.nmpf.org, or contact a field representative from a sponsoring cooperative.



About 50 dairy farmers and others attended the CWT meeting in southeastern York County Thursday evening to hear how the national, farmer-funded program might boost milk prices.

How Important is Folate?

Folate, also called folic acid or folacin, is a complex vitamin that is needed to allow for complete development of red blood cells More importantly, folic acid helps to prevent the development of the amino acid homocysteine in the blood If homocysteine is not held in check, heart attacks and stroke may result Folic acid prevents the build up of homocysteine , particularly in overweight individuals. It is a simple way to lower the risk of cardiovascular disease

As the average person continues to eat to excess and excercise less, increased intake of foods rich in folate like asparagus are necessary to prevent development of coronary artery disease and various other cardiovascular maladies

Folate is a general term for the various forms of the B vitamin, the parent which is folic acid It is most publicized for prevention of pregnancy defects involving the development of the neural tube Folic acid aids in the prevention of neural tube defects such as spina bifida (a potentially crippling defect in which the spinal cord is improperly encased in bone) and anencepahly (failure of brain development). Women are encouraged by their doctors to build up their folate stores at least 28 days before becoming pregnant Plant foods with high levels of folacin such as asparagus, orange juice and pulses such as beans and peas should be consumed particularly in the first weeks of pregnancy to safeguard the fetus The recommended daily allowance(RDA) for folate is 400 micrograms per day Pregnant women are encouraged to consume at least this amount in their daily nutrition.

Asparagus is the richest vegetable source of folate with 262mcg in a one cup serving.

Food Sources of Folat	micrograms
Asparagus, 1 cup boiled	262	Spinach, 1 cup raw	108
Asparagus, 100g raw	128	Green Peas, 1 cup boiled	101
Papaya, 1 medium	115	Wheat germ, 1/4 cup	80
Orange Juice, 1 cup	110	Broccoli, 1 cup boiled	78
		Orange, 1 medium	40

There are creative ways to include rich sources of folate in your diet without pillaging the crudite plate Here is a quick, tasty combination of asparagus and orange juice for a booster of folate in your diet Serve as a side dish for dinner or centerplate for lunch

Sesame Orange Asparagus

Ingredients

1 pound	Washington Asparagus (slice diagonally in 2 inch pieces)
or
10 oz package	Frozen Cut Asparagus
2 tablespoon	Olive Oil
3 tablespoon	Grated Carrot
1 tablespoon	Sesame Seeds
1/2 cup	Orange Juice
1/2 tsp	Sesame oil

Cook asparagus covered in a small amount of boiling water (or in microwave) for 4 to 6 minutes (For frozen, cook according to package directions) Drain water Heat olive oil in skillet Add grated carrot and sesame seeds Cook to toast sesame seeds 2 3 minutes Add orange juice and sesame oil Bring to boil and immediately reduce to simmer Stir in asparagus, tossing to coat and heat through Serve with orange slices Makes 4 servings

Folic Acid may be the Trojan Horse against Cancer

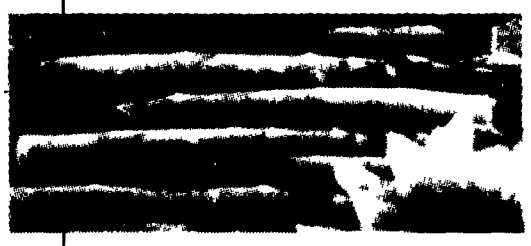
Perhaps we will soon eat folate-rich foods like asparagus or a supplement to sneak cancer-fighting drugs directly into tumor cells

A team of Purdue University researchers lead by Dr. Philip Low have discovered that cancer cells possess a voracious appetite for folate. They gobble up the B vitamin to support rapid cell division. Cancer cells express a protein called a folate receptor to capture folate more effectively than normal cells.

Dr. Low's researchers are now exploiting cancer cells' craving for folate by using folate as a therapeutic "Trojan Horse" to secretly deliver cancer-fighting drugs directly to tumor cells. They are essentially slipping medicine in with cancer's favorite food. Once the folate food or supplement attaches itself to the folate receptor, it can enter the cell with an anticancer agent to wreak havoc on the cancer cell.

Asparagus Glutathione The new Cancer Fighter

Dietary glutathione intake from food sources such as asparagus has been associated with protection against certain forms of cancer in addition to potent anti-viral properties. Research that is now in progress at the Institute for Cancer Prevention(ICP), formerly American Health Foundation, in Valhalla, NY is demonstrating that asparagus, the food with the highest glutathione concentration, is a potentially effective means of enhancing the body's defense systems and preventing cancer development



The ICP study examines the bioavailability of asparagus along with the antioxidant status in human blood and oral mucosa. Preliminary results are positive along with glutathione levels in asparagus measuring much higher than original benchmarks

Tests conducted in June of 2002 indicate that asparagus from Washington State contain of 70mg/100g of glutathione--more than twice the amount in any other common food item The ICP study, under the direction of Dr. Despina Komninou will provide the basis for a major grant underwriting to the National Institute of Health (NIH) The proposed clinical study will investigate the powerful cancer preventive properties of normal consumption of asparagus

The promise of glutathione from asparagus as the leading whole foods source is now in the early phases of research Clinical trials will determine if indeed asparagus, as the leading source of glutathione, may be the ultimate disease prevention food to eat

Eyes of Blue You need Asparagus Too!

Blue-eyed folks have a 2000% greater probability of age-related macular degeneration (AMD). The reason is lutein, a cousin of beta carotene which is essential for maintenance of the human visual system. Lutein requirements increase dramatically among blue-eyed individuals who have far less of this antioxidant pigment at the back of their eyes than brown-eyed individuals.

Lutein is not currently considered an essential nutrient. Humans do not synthesize lutein. In fact most depend entirely on dietary sources. The Joint Food Safety and Standards Group of MAFF, the Scottish Executive Department of Health has been one of the lead researchers of dietary sources of lutein. Although standard measurement levels have not been established, the MAFF report cites the significant sources of lutein including asparagus, cabbage, peas and egg yolks. The MAFF study along with a current study at the Moran Eye Center of the University of Utah School of Medicine have found lutein levels to be a dietary safeguard against vision loss.

Send Your Favorite Dairy Recipe Now

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — It's time to send in your favorite recipe using dairy products for Lancaster Farming's annual dairy recipe drawing.

To enter the drawing, select your favorite recipe, which must include a substantial amount of at least one dairy product. These ingredients count as a dairy product: milk, cream, sour cream, whipped cream, butter, yogurt, buttermilk, dry milk, ice cream, and all hard and soft cheeses.

Please check your ingredients carefully. Margarine and nondairy substitutes such as frozen whipped topping do not qualify as dairy products.

Dairy recipes are needed for appetizers, soups, breads, entrees, vegetables, desserts, beverages, snacks, and salads.

Clearly print or type your recipe entry. Be sure to give accurate measurements, temperatures, cooking and baking times, sizes of baking dishes to use, and other beneficial information. We reserve the right to disqualify entries if these guidelines are not followed.

With your entry, include a few paragraphs about yourself and your family. Although it is not required, a photograph of you and your family is preferred.

Photographs will be returned if you write your name and address on the back of the photo.

Only one entry per family allowed. This contest is for adults who are 18 years old and older.

Send your recipe, photo, and accompanying information with your complete address; otherwise, we cannot mail your prize if you win. We are astonished when we see how many people do not include their full address and therefore forfeit receiving a prize.

Send entries immediately. Entries must be postmarked by June 2 to be eligible for the drawing.

Recipe entries will be printed throughout the month of June. A list of the winning names will appear in the June 28 issue of Lancaster Farming.

Send your entry to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming Dairy Drawing, P.O. Box 609, 1 E. Main St. Ephrata, PA 17522, or e-mail your entry and digital photo to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM.

Springtime's Bounty: Asparagus, Rhubarb

AMAZING ASPARAGUS

15-ounce can asparagus, drained
8-ounce can sliced water chestnuts, drained
15-ounce can baby peas, drained
10.75-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup butter
1 pound loaf white bread, crusts trimmed
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Layer asparagus in the bottom of a medium baking dish. Top with water chestnuts, peas, and cream of mushroom soup. Sprinkle with cheddar cheese.

Melt butter in a medium skillet over medium heat. Slice bread into ¼-½-inch strips and place in butter. When butter has been absorbed, layer bread in the baking dish on top of cheddar cheese. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese.

Bake in preheated 350-degree oven 35 minutes or until bubbly and golden brown.

APPLE-RHUBARB DELIGHT

½ cup unsalted butter, melted
6-ounces brioche, torn into ½-inch pieces
3 cups diced rhubarb
1 Granny Smith apple, peeled, cored, sliced thin
⅝ cup dark brown sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 pinch ground nutmeg
½ lemon, zested, juiced
1 tablespoon butter, diced
⅛ cup warm water

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Butter shallow one-quart baking dish.

In medium bowl, combine melted butter and brioche. Line the bottom of baking dish with one-third of the mixture.

In another bowl, combine rhubarb, apple, brown sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg, lemon juice, and zest. Let set until juices begin to run, about 5 minutes. Spread half the mixture over the brioche in the dish. Top with half the remaining brioche. Spread the remaining rhubarb over that and top with the last of the brioche. Dot with 1 tablespoon butter. Spoon the warm water evenly over the top.

Cover and bake in preheated oven 25-35 minutes, until rhubarb is tender. Increase oven temperature to 400 degrees, uncover dish and bake until top is crusty, rhubarb is soft and bubbles form at the edges of the dish, 10-15 minutes.

Serve warm with vanilla ice cream.

BABY ASPARAGUS IN PARMESAN CREAM WITH PROSCIUTTO

4 teaspoons butter
4 slices cheese bread, 3½-inch slices
2-ounces Prosciutto cut paper thin in 2-inch strips
1 pound asparagus
8-ounces heavy cream
4-ounces water
Salt and pepper to taste
4 teaspoons fresh chives, slivered
4 teaspoons extra virgin olive oil

In saute pan large enough to hold all bread slices flat, melt butter until bubbles disappear. Add bread and brown on both sides. Remove from pan and hold warm until ready to serve.

In same pan, add prosciutto and fry until crispy. Remove prosciutto, leaving any fat in pan, and keep warm. Cut bottom 2-inches off asparagus and add to pan. Pan roast briefly in prosciutto fat. Add cream, water, and bring to a boil. Grate in fresh Parmesan cheese and season with pepper only. (Parmesan and Prosciutto will lend salt to the dish).

Reduce to a simmer and cook until asparagus is tender and cream is slightly thick. Check if cream mixture needs any salt.

To plate, place one slice bread in center of a wide-rimmed bowl. Carefully place asparagus on top of bread and spoon sauce over and around asparagus. Top asparagus with crispy prosciutto and some shaved Parmesan. Sprinkle with chives. Drizzle a small amount of olive oil around bread and serve.

How Many Calories Are In Your Drink?

Have you ever stopped to think about how many calories you are getting from the beverages you drink? If you're quenching your thirst with beverages that provide calories, you may be getting a lot more than you bargain for.

Water is the beverage of choice to satisfy thirst. It is readily available, does not cost anything (beyond what we already pay for our water supply), and has no calories. However, many of the beverages that we choose to drink contribute a large number of calories to our daily diet. Research done at Penn State, for example, shows that individuals who drink large amounts of soft drinks take in many more calories than the person who does not. This is not a surprise if you consider that a 32-ounce regular soft drink gives 500 calories!

Many beverages, such as soft drinks and sweetened drinks, provide no nutritional value to the diet other than calories. Even healthy drinks like fruit juices give many calories when consumed in large amounts. One eight-ounce cup of a typical 100 percent fruit juice has 120 calories. Drinking several cups each day will mean a large number of extra calories. In fact, child health experts are concerned that drinking large quantities of juice may be one contributing factor to the great increase in childhood obesity.

Of course, milk is a great beverage that makes a big contribution to our nutritional needs. However, if you live on a dairy farm and drink milk in amounts greater than what you need nutritionally (2-4 cups depending on age and gender); you may be getting a lot more calories than you need. If you are trying to lose weight, and drink lots of milk, just cutting back to the amount you need may help with your weight loss efforts. Skimming fat off the top of milk that has not been homogenized will make the calories equivalent to the 2 percent fat milk that's available at the grocery store. If you purchase your milk at the grocery store, the lower fat types like skim and 1 percent fat will give you the same nutrients as whole or 2 percent fat milk, but less fat and calories.

The best advice — drink water when you're thirsty. Other beverages that provide only a few calories are diet soft drinks, fruit juice spritzers (seltzer water with a splash of juice), and lemonade or iced tea that you make yourself with artificial sweetener.

The following list, excerpted from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Nutritive Value of Foods 2002, gives examples of common beverages and how many calories they contain.

New Data On Dietary Protein, Bone

GRAND FORKS, N.D. — A high-protein diet containing mostly meat did not have adverse effects on women's ability to retain calcium in a study conducted by Agricultural Research Service scientists in Grand Forks, N.D.

ARS researchers Zamzam (Fariba) Roughead and Janet Hunt at the Grand Forks Human Nutrition Research Center controlled the diets of 15 healthy postmenopausal women, providing both low- and high-meat diets for eight weeks each. The women consumed about 600 milligrams (mg) of calcium per day, half the recommended intake of 1,200 mg. Calcium, sodium and caffeine intakes were kept constant.

In recent years, scientists have theorized that high-protein diets leach calcium from bones, leading to bone loss, based on findings from tests involving purified proteins. But unlike purified proteins, meat contains substantial amounts of potassium and phosphorus, which reduce urinary calcium loss.

In the study, after the first four weeks of each eight-week phase, the scientists tracked calcium levels using body count technology that detects differences in calcium retention and excretion. The scientists found that even with low-but-average calcium intake, the volunteers could eat twice the recommended dietary allowance of protein, mostly as meat, and not have an adverse effect on calcium retention or on biomarkers for bone breakdown.

The high-meat diet consisted of 20 percent of daily calories as protein, or about 117 grams, including 10.5 ounces of meat. The low-meat diet consisted of 12 percent protein, including 1.5 ounces of meat.

Norman Crowned Tioga County Dairy Princess

CAROLYN MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.) — Renee Norman, Liberty, was crowned the Tioga County Dairy Princess following a dinner and pageant conducted at the Tioga County Fairgrounds, Friday, May 2.

The daughter of David and Aggie Norman, is a 17-year-old junior at Liberty High School, where she is active in numerous activities. She resides on Normandell Farm where she owns several of the farm's 200 Jerseys that she shows through 4-H and FFA. Norman also was recently crowned the 2003 Pennsylvania Jersey Queen.

Named alternate dairy princesses were Kaitlynn Johnson, daughter of Charles and Sandy Johnson, Tioga, and Crystal Miles, daughter of Andy and Beth Costley, Osceola.

Johnson is an active 16-year-old sophomore at Elkland Area High School. She is also a member of the Mountaineers 4-H dairy club and owns one Milking Shorthorn, one Ayrshire and five Brown Swiss from her family's herd at Cha-San Farms.

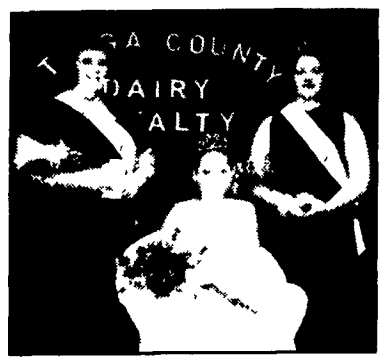
Miles is also a 16-year-old student at Elkland Area High School. She lives on the family's 500-acre Rollin Acre dairy and is a member of the Whispering Mountains 4-H Club and the American Rabbit Breeder's Association.

Each contestant was required to perform a short skit promoting some aspect of dairy. The newly launched three-a-day theme was popular among all the contestants as each reminded the group that everyone needs at least three servings of dairy products to maintain bone strength. Norman told the real story behind the three little pigs and their three houses of soda, bone, and a brick of cheese.

"Each little pig built their house a lot like they built their bodies," said Norman. "All the first little pig drank was soda. He thought he didn't need milk.

The second house was built out of bone. You might be thinking that this is a good idea, bones are hard, right? Not if they don't get enough calcium. The second little pig didn't like milk.

The third little pig listened to the cow's advice. He knew that milk and dairy products were very good for your body, so is it any wonder that his house was built out of a brick of cheese?"



Renee Norman, center, was crowned the 2003 Tioga County Dairy Princess recently. Selected to be alternate dairy princesses, from left, are Crystal Miles and Kaitlynn Johnson.

The "Stream Map of Pennsylvania" was completed in 1965 after a 30 year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 by 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well - until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to the landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

The experts had always told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue.

Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology -- the STREAM MAP OF OHIO was created.

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

Editor's note: Within a week I attended two events. One promoted a low-fat diet and the other a high-fat diet from grass-fed animals. The science and opinions from both workshops are presented. Lancaster Farming does not endorse either findings, but simply reports on the information presented. We encourage you to make your own health care decisions based upon your research and in partnership with a qualified health care professional.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Low-fat diets are touted as better for our hearts and over-all health, according to most nutritional experts. But a growing number of people are questioning why, despite low-fat foods and the push to include more whole grains, fresh fruits and vegetables in our diets, more people are obese than ever before and more people are suffering from autoimmune diseases such as chronic fatigue sydrome and fibromyalgia.

People offer varying opinions and solutions on what is considered a growing epidemic — obesity.

One of the most astonishing is that of nationally known author, speaker, and nutritional researcher Sally Fallon, who says, "Your body needs more old-fashioned animal fats."

She advocates drinking cream, slathering butter on almost everything, and indulging in generous servings of beef and other meats.

But dairy products must be raw, not pasteurized or homogenized. And the meat must be grassfed.

Sounds like good news for farmers, who are tired of having health professionals connect their products to heart disease and body fat.

It is good news to Amish farmers Leroy and Linda Miller — and not just because they are dairy farmers. The high animal fat diet has brought them new vigor and health for the first time in Linda's life.

Linda had suffered a myriad of health problems most of her life. She tried almost every medical solution and diet available. After one year on a total vegetarian diet, which only magnified her chronic fatigue, thyroid complications, and other health problems, Linda was ready to give up — until she heard Fallon speak.

Every morning since, for more than two years, Linda scoops out a glass of cream from the milk tank on their farm — and drinks it. She, her husband, and two toddlers consume at least one-half pound of homemade butter daily. Their diets are filled with the richest of dairy products and animal fats from grassfed beef and chickens.

Within one month, Linda noticed a substantial difference, and today she is completely healthy, she said.

Cindy and Jim Schlosser, with the help of their Amish neighbors, prepare a dinner menu brimming with high-fat products produced from grassfed dairy and chicken. Included in the menu are fresh carrot, celery, cucumber, and spinach juice with a dollop of sour cream, beef vegetable soup made from homemade beef stocked prepared from bones cooked 12-20 hours in water, rye-spelt sourdough bread with homemade butter, assorted garden greens with grilled chicken breast, cottage cheese, and egg custard.

By consuming so much daily dietary fat, you'd think the couple would be — well, fat. But they are not. Neither are Jim and Cindy Schlosser, Bird in Hand, who also advocate Fallon's dairy-fat based diet.

They insist that raw goat or cow milk from grassfed animals contains higher amounts of vitamins, enzymes, and other nutrients that keep the body healthy and satisfied.

Many of the needed nutrients are destroyed through pasteurization and homogenized processes in milk. And, cattle and chickens allowed to feed on grass, they say, have more vitamin A and D, a fat-soluble catalyst that promotes optimum mineral assimilation.

The Millers make their own butter from Jersey cows. It isn't the normally pale yellow butter sold in supermarkets, but a luscious yellow color — evidence of short and medium chain fatty acids that protect against disease and stimulate the immune system, Linda said. They make plain, unsweetened yogurt, which is also surprisingly yellow in color and tastes almost sweet, although it contains no sweeteners.

Butterfat from grassfed cows is a golden-yellow color and contains vitamins A and D needed for the assimilation of calcium and protein in the water component of the milk. It also contains glycospingolipids, which prevent intestinal distress, and conjugated linoleic acid (CLA) that has strong anticancer properties, according to Fallon's research.

Pasteurization started in the 1920s to combat undulant fever and tuberculosis germs from being carried in milk. But times have changed, according to Fallon and her followers. Stainless steel tanks, milking machines, refrigerated trucks, and inspection methods, they believe, make pasteurization unnecessary.

Pasteurized milk is very different from raw milk, according to Fallon's research. Pasteurization destroys many enzymes vital for fat digestion and to metabolize protein and calcium. The process also destroys vitamins B6 and B12, and beneficial bacteria are destroyed.

Homogenization breaks down butterfat to very small globules, which creates off-flavors and has been linked to heart disease.

The Millers and the Schlossers believe that with raw milk, teeth are less likely to decay, raw milk promotes growth and calcium absorption, and prevents joint stiffness, scurvy, and secondary infections such as flu, diphtheria, and pneumonia.

"You need to eat foods that contain cholesterol or your body will rob it from your liver, which causes autoimmune diseases, virus, and birth defects," Linda said.

They believe it is a myth that eating cholesterol foods raises your blood serum levels. Indeed, recent research has caused the American Heart Association to cease its recommendation to limit eggs to one or two a week.

At her workshops, Fallon is reported to show research to support her findings. She challenges nutrition and diet dictocrats. Her literature claims the latest independent and accurate scientific research.

Saturated fats enhance the immune system by protecting the liver and contributing to healthy bones. Foods that contain cholesterol help babies and children develop a healthy brain and nervous system. Red meat is a rich source of nutrients that protect the heart and nervous system.

Eggs are nature's most perfect food, providing excellent protein, nutrients, and fatty acids that contribute to the health of the brain and nervous system. Sea salt is also necessary for the development and function of the nervous system.

Processed foods are frowned upon and limited grain usage is recommended. No processed sugars are allowed, although honey and maple syrup can be used on a limit basis. According to the Millers, the CLA in milk is five times more prevalent in cows fed on a grass-based diet and 15 percent more than those fed strict grain diet.

Cindy has a doctorate degree in exercise physiology-biochemistry and is a former professor at Temple University. She said that her background in biochemistry helps her understand the scientific concepts of fat helping the body utilize vitamins and minerals. Her husband heads the Berean Medical Mission, which provides used medical equipment to ministries in need and provides nutrition and health education.

"Real (raw) milk can save family farms," Schlosser said. "If farmers have the right to sell unprocessed milk to consumers who want it, they can make a decent living, even with small herds."

The Millers manage 40 Holsteins and 12 Jerseys on their 80-acre farm. They sell some value-added products from their farm, but noted, "The milk truck is still our income."

The Friday evening June 6 workshop, from 7 p.m.-9 p.m., is scheduled at Millers Natural Foods, Bird in Hand, and will address why grassfed is best and how a grass-based farming can help bring prosperity to family farms, and local farmers' experiences with grass-fed livestock.

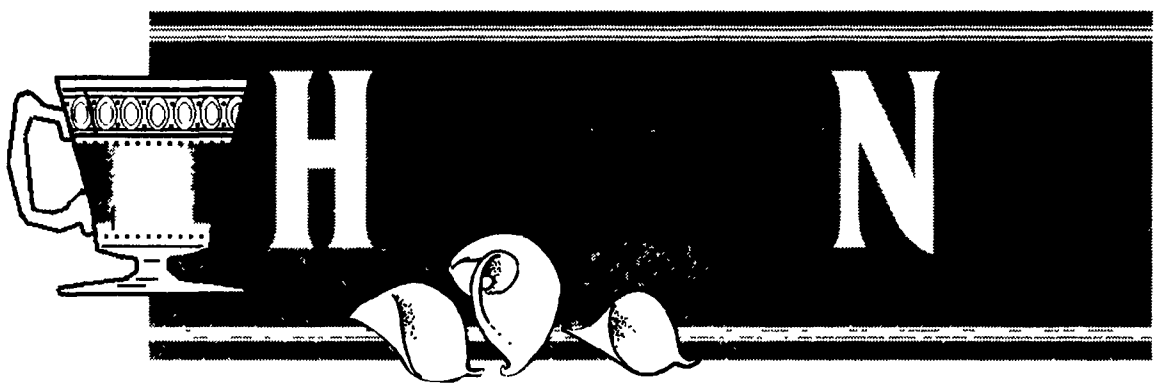
The Saturday June 7 workshop will be at Lancaster Host, Lancaster, from 8:45 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and will address how cholesterol protects against heart disease and cancer, how the food processing industry sabotages scientific research, the dangers of cholesterol-lowering drugs, and the phony lipid hypothesis that causes Americans to abandon healthy foods.

A workshop also addresses healthy children and healthy parents with the pioneering research of Dr. Weston Price.

Butter is said to be the number one health food to help babies grow up healthy and smart. In addition, other old-fashioned foods will be examined as sources that provide limitless energy and vibrant health.

Admission for the Friday evening workshop on "Why Grassfed is Best" is $5. Pre-registration for the Saturday workshop is $23 per person or $40 per couple. To register for either event, call or write to Millers Natural Foods, 2888 Miller Lane, Bird in Hand, PA 17505, (717) 371-6964.

A June 6-7 conference will examine cholesterol myths, traditional diets, and grass-based farming with Sally Fallon, nutritional researcher and author of 'Nourishing Traditions.'



Wyoming-Lackawanna Counties Select Dairy Royalty, Dairy Person

CHARLENE SHUPP
Special Correspondent

NICHOLSON (Wyoming Co.) — About 80 people attended St. Patrick's Church in Nicholson to see outgoing Wyoming-Lackawanna Counties Dairy Princess Becki Carr of Lake Carey crown three dairy misses to promote the dairy industry. This year's representatives are Rachel Smarkusky, Nicholson; Brianna Smarkusky, Nicholson; and Brandy Landsiedel, Dalton.

Wyoming-Lackawanna Dairy Misses Rachel and Brianna Smarkusky with parents, Bill and Mary Smarkusky, and brothers David and Matt.

Rachel and Brianna are the daughters of Bill and Mary Smarkusky of Nicholson.

Brandy Landsiedel, who was unable to attend the event, is the daughter of Clarence and Paula Landsiedel, she resides on her family's farm with her parents and siblings Sarah and Matthew.

During her farewell address, 2002-03 Dairy Princess Becki Carr thanked her parents, family, and friends for their support during her reign, noting that she "couldn't have done it without their help" and thanked them for "pushing her to always do her best."

Carr, who had served two years in the dairy princess program, spoke about several high points in her year from the Wyoming County Fair to Sunday School Class visits, and other fun promotions. Becki stated the program provided her the opportunities to face several challenges including her fear of public speaking and worked to improve her self-confidence.

Each year, the Dairy Princess Committee selects a member of the dairy community as the Dairy Person of the Year. This person is selected based on their contributions to the promotion, support, and service to the dairy industry. This year's winner was Dr. Bryan Lee of Tunkhannock. Dr. Lee has served as a large animal vet in Wyoming County since 1962.

Vic Cappucci of Mehoopany saluted Dr. Lee's accomplishments by saying, "In these times, a large animal vet is a rare breed. Dr. Bryan Lee is an endangered species, only one of five large animal vets still practicing in Northeastern Pennsylvania. When he opened his Wyoming County practice in 1962, 14 Tunkhannock area vets treated large animals. There was much competition. Now by contrast Lee and one other vet treat large animals. The job is demanding and at times frustrating."

Dairy Person of the Year Dr. Bryan Lee and his wife Janet, seated, surrounded by family members.

Cappucci shared several stories about Lee's veterinary work and his love of his job, farmers, and animals. Cappucci concluded stating, "Bryan, Congratulations. You have literally kept the dairy industry alive in Wyoming and Lackawanna Counties."

Lee, a graduate of Penn State and University of Pennsylvania, has been in practice over 40 years. His wife Janet has worked by his side as his secretary, keeping the bookwork, answering the phones, and raising their five children.

Besides maintaining a busy practice, Dr. Lee volunteers as the Wyoming County Fair's on-call vet, supports the local dairy princess program, and maintains a balance between his professional life and his family life.

In receiving this award, Dr. Lee provided several remarks, "The proudest thing we, my wife Janet and I, have done is balanced family life and veterinary life. You can see the results, we are very proud of our family."

In salute to working with the dairy community Lee was quick to say, "I have enjoyed practice, it has been a good experience for me. And Janet has really enjoyed it too. Ten years ago at a high school class reunion, I told my classmates that for the past 30 years I have worked with the finest people that were ever created. and I really believe that."

The Dairy Person of the Year award was created in 1994 and Lee was selected as the first man to ever receive this honor. The Wyoming-Lackawanna Counties Dairy Princess Committee chairperson Laura Anderson and member Judy Shupp presented Lee with a framed certificate and serving tray in recognition of his work.

QUESTION — Joyce Shoemaker wants a recipe using Club crackers or Saltines that tastes almost like peanut brittle. She thinks the crackers have slivered almonds on top.

QUESTION — Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, needs a recipe for mock pecan pie, which uses oatmeal in place of nuts.

QUESTION — Yvonne Scantling, Wrightsville, writes that as a girl in the 1950s, her family purchased goat's milk taffy at the F.W. Woolworth Stores in Columbia and Lancaster. The taffy came in vanilla, chocolate, and strawberry flavors. It was made in large sheets 15x15-inches and weighed about five pounds each, she estimates. A hammer was used to break the taffy whenever it was purchased. Yvonne would love to have the recipe to make the delicious taffy. Woolworths only sold it during the summer months.

QUESTION — A reader from Wellsville wants a recipe for macaroni salad that tastes like that manufactured by Winter Gardens Salads, New Oxford.

QUESTION — Bob Snyder, Akron, Ohio, wants a recipe for rivel soup.

QUESTION — Brenda Weidenhammer, Schuylkill Haven, is looking for a recipe to make fig bars that taste similar to Fig Newtons.

QUESTION — Pam Bange, Hanover, wants a recipe for cherry vanilla pie (like those sold at Nell's Surefine Market in Hanover and East Berlin. The cherry pie has almond slivers on top and vanilla flavoring.

QUESTION — Jean Mitchell, Lewisburg, is looking for a recipe to make blueberry whoopie pies.

ANSWER — Henry McMaster, Kemblersville, requested a cake recipe that includes maraschino cherries. Thanks to a reader for this recipe. Another reader, Rachel Himmelberger, sent in an almost identical recipe. She also included a recipe for the frosting, which follows the cake recipe.

Sweet Story Cake

2½ cups cake flour
1½ cups sugar
3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
¾ cup milk
¼ cup maraschino cherry juice
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 teaspoons almond extract
4 egg whites, unbeaten
18 maraschino cherries, drained, chopped
½ cup nuts, chopped

Sift dry ingredients into mixing bowl. Drop in shortening. Combine milk and cherry juice. Add ¾ of this liquid. Add flavoring extracts. Beat two minutes at low speed. Add remaining liquid and egg whites and beat two minutes longer. Add chopped cherries, nuts, and blend. Bake in two round 8- or 9-inch pans, greased, at 375 degrees 20-25 minutes. Cool.

Cherry Icing

⅔ cup shortening
1 pound confectioner's sugar, sifted
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons maraschino cherry juice
2 tablespoons milk
1 tablespoon lemon juice
3 tablespoons maraschino cherries, drained, chopped

Cream shortening with sugar and salt. Add cherry juice and milk; beat. Add lemon juice; beat until fluffy. Frost between layers. Stir cherries lightly into remaining icing. Frost two 9-inch layers.

ANSWER — Thanks to Rose Stoltzfus for sending this recipe for granola bars. She writes that she thinks these taste better than any store-bought ones.

Granola Bars

¼ cup butter
¼ cup vegetable oil
1½ pounds marshmallow
½ cup honey
¼ cup peanut butter
4½ cups rice crispy cereal
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
5 cups oatmeal
1 cup crushed peanuts
1 cup coconut
1 cup chocolate chips or M&M's
1½ cups raisins (optional)

Heat butter and oil on low heat until butter melts. Add marshmallows and stir until melted. Remove from heat and add honey and peanut butter. In a large bowl, add remaining ingredients. Make a well in center, pour marshmallow mixture into well. (When using M&M's, it helps to cool the marshmallow mixture so the colors don't melt too much). Stir and press into 11x15-inch cookie sheet. Cool and cut.

ANSWER — M.J. Wade is looking for a recipe to make a "natural" or healthier fruit roll-up. Thanks to Mary Stoltzfus, Millersburg, for writing that about 15 recipes for fruit leathers and roll ups appear in the cookbook, "Recipes for Life from God's Garden" by Rhonda Malkmus available in some health food stores and bookstores. She knows the book is available at Glick's Natural Products, 120 Geist Rd., Lancaster, PA 17601-5912.

ANSWER Shirley Schwoerer, Wysox, wanted to know if sesame seeds can be sprouted. Thanks to Mary Stoltzfus, Millersburg, for writing that according to the cookbook "Nourishing Traditions" by Sally Fallon, unhulled sesame seeds can be sprouted. The cookbook contains a whole chapter on sprouted grains, nuts, and seeds. It is very informative and helpful on many subjects of health, according to Mary. To sprout unhulled sesame seeds, soak in water overnight. Rinse four times daily. Tiny sprouts are ready in 2-3 days. Sesame seeds will not spout once they are separated from their outer hulls. Unhulled sesame seeds should be available in health food stores such as Glick's Natural Products, 120 Geist Rd., Lancaster.

ANSWER — Alice Rohland, Lititz, recently purchased a home grain mill and now grinds her own whole wheat flour. She requested pointers for using freshly ground whole wheat. She has read varying suggestions, such as adding wheat gluten or Vitamin C powder, dough enhancers, etc. Also, she wanted to know where other Lancaster County bread-bakers purchase their wheat, rye, and oats to grind into flour. She wants to make rye and pumpernickel bread, but has not found rye. thanks to Mary Stoltzfus, Millersburg, who writes that if she cannot find rye grains in health food stores, she should contact Natural Way Mills Inc., Middle River, Minn. Phone (218) 222-3677.

Also, an informative chapter on breads and flour products are found the cookbook, "Nourishing Traditions" by Sally Fallon. Editor's note: Ironically a feature about an upcoming Sally Fallon workshop is featured on B6. Read it for more information. Here is a recipe that Mary sent that she uses.

100% Whole Wheat Bread

1½ tablespoons fresh baking yeast
½ cup warm water
1 teaspoon honey
1 quart warm water
1½ tablespoon salt (less may be used, preferably unrefined)
1 tablespoon apple cider vinegar
4 tablespoons vegetable or olive oil
3 tablespoons liquid lecithin or granules
2 tablespoon blackstrap molasses
¾ cup honey
11-12 cups fresh ground whole wheat flour
¼ cup oil for kneading

Combine yeast, ½ cup warm water with 1 teaspoon honey. Let set 10 minutes. Combine 1 quart warm water, salt, vinegar, 4 tablespoon oil, lecithin, blackstrap molasses, ¾ cup honey, and 4 cups flour. Stir well.

Add yeast mixture and 2 more cups flour. It is important to mix this very well.

Add 1 cup flour at a time, working it in well. Keep adding more flour until the dough is not too sticky and not too dry. It takes about six cups flour.

Cover dough and let rise in warm place. Pour ¼ cup oil in a bowl, and use as needed for kneading to prevent dough from sticking to fingers. Knead well three times about one hour apart.

If dough is too sticky when you're ready to put into pans, add more flour. If too stiff, add one unbeaten egg (this is rarely needed).

Shape into loaves and put into buttered or oiled pans. Prick with fork. Allow to rise about one hour, or to the size and shape loaf you want. Preheat oven and bake at 350 degrees about 40-45 minutes. Make sure oven is hot before putting the bread into the oven.

Makes 5 to 6 loaves.

ANSWER — Ralph Kieffer, Halifax, wanted a recipe for Aunt Flossie's tomato soup. Thanks to Yvonne Scantling, Wrightsville, for sending two recipes. She found one recipe in an Amish cookbook from Lancaster County and another one printed in a Chester County cookbook.

Lancaster County Tomato Soup

3 cups canned tomatoes
1 teaspoon baking soda
4 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 tablespoon butter

Bring tomatoes to a boil. Simmer for 10 minutes. Mash tomatoes. Add baking soda. Let foam subside, add milk, salt, pepper, and butter. Heat but do not boil. Serve hot. Serves 4.

Chester County Hot Tomato Soup

1 large can tomato juice
2 cans beef broth
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon celery salt
½ bay leaf
Pinch basil
¼ cup sherry
Dash tabasco
Ground pepper to taste
1 tablespoon parsley

Combine all ingredients. Heat to a boil and serve. Great in thermos at a ball game or activity in the fall. Serves 6 to 8.

ANSWER — Leda Stevens requested a recipe for a delicious peach pie made with Karo syrup, cornstarch, and peach-flavored Jell-O. Thanks to Regina Mack, New Bethlehem, for sending the recipe.

Peach Of A Pie

1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons corn syrup
1 cup water
Lemon juice, optional
3 tablespoons peach or orange Jell-O
4-6 sliced or diced peaches

Mix sugar, cornstarch, and corn syrup together. Slowly add water. Boil until clear. Remove from heat, add Jell-O. After mixture has cooled, add peaches. Pour into baked pie crust. Let pie set one hour in refrigerator before serving. Top with whipped cream if desired.

ANSWER — In response to the request from Mary of Smithburg, Maryland, Regina Mack sends this recipe.

Granola

10 cups oatmeal
2 cups brown sugar
2 cups coconut
1 cup wheat germ (optional)

Stir together dry ingredients.

½ cup peanut butter
½ cup oil
½-1 cup honey (optional, if adding honey, cut back on brown sugar amount)
½ cup corn syrup
1-2 teaspoons vanilla
1-2 teaspoons salt

Heat until peanut butter is melted. Pour over the remaining ingredients. Bake at 325 degrees for 30-40 minutes or until nicely browned. Add 1 cup raisins when hot. Stir while cooling. May add chocolate chips and nuts if desired.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Man, I was really feeling boxed in.

In the shadowy atmosphere of the place, the ceiling seemed ominously low, the walls confining. Tiny windows allowed the entrance of light, but the day outside was misty, dark, and, like the inside, overall gloomy. Into this environment I had thrust myself, intent to take on this gloomy interior on this gloomy day and bring some brightness and sunshine to the dark, oppressive space.

But the boxed-in feeling persisted.

Tackling our attic is not on my short list of preferred things to do. It's not even at the end of my long list of preferred things to do.

Nevertheless, there I was, square in the middle of the dark, dusty, fourth-floor of our house, lacking even the amenity of a light for better visibility. Two very small windows at each end provide daytime lighting, which on a bright sunny day is adequate. But on this gloomy, dark, rainy afternoon, under our heavily-canopied maple trees, the attic had all the cozy ambience of a candle-lit cave.

Push had come to shove on this dank afternoon, too wet to work in the garden or yard and with a deadline of sorts looming. Someone, someday, was going to have to tackle this mess. It might as well be me, now, rather than someday when I am unable to run up and down the stairs. And I really don't want to leave it for the kids — despite the fact that much of it is theirs.

But plans for an upcoming yard sale loomed. In fact, the promise of a rainy, dark weekend had actually postponed the planned extended-family yard sale, offering the perfect push to tackle the attic. Now, our attic holds no family heirlooms or treasures or even slightly valuable stuff. What our attic abounds in, I discovered, is — boxes.

There are big boxes and little boxes. Square boxes and odd-shaped boxes. Holiday boxes in decorative colors, mostly red and green, some shiny and glittery. We have packing boxes — computer boxes, printer boxes, window fan boxes, appliance boxes. There are gift boxes, handsome, square and shiny white. Well, they were shiny white at one time.

Reality is, these boxes accumulated for years, in the good old family characteristic that we might have use for them sometime. And, some we have, for Christmas, birthdays, special occasions. But usually, they are too big or too little or too inappropriate. Or too dusty and bird-dirt speckled, because I do occasionally open the attic door — usually in the summer — and have a sparrow fly out over my head.

I marched back down two sets of stairs, grabbed a broom, a dustpan, reclimbed the stairs and began tackling the accumulated floor dirt. Several years ago, a bumper crop of dried flowers landed in the attic for future use, tied in bunches and hung from the sloping rafters. Unused bunches have deteriorated into bits and pieces littering the floor, along with a liberal scattering of styrofoam packaging pieces. The occasional bird didn't help, either.

Then, it was on to the boxes. Small boxes got squished into bigger boxes. Those were shoved into even bigger ones, and then I squashed them into the giant computer packing boxes. And began lining box-filled-boxes at the top of the stairs for disposal.

Then, it was on to the bigger challenge: filled boxes. Several of the largest, hold items stored there years ago by our daughter, who happens to be the yard sale planner.

One of the bonuses of accumulating years in one's life is that, once in awhile, you can turn the tables on your kids. Her boxes, filled with her stuff, will be most of my contribution to her yard sale. And most likely her kids will find stuff they absolutely want to keep. Like a stack of games. Old toys. The last box of children's books. A small child's chair or two. Best of all, our attic will hold less stuff.

One thing, for sure. There are plenty of boxes to stash it all in for moving.

Now, if I can convince the grandkids that they really need their uncle's old, sprawling, toy-train layout, the attic afternoon will have been a resounding success.

And, I'm not feeling nearly as boxed in anymore.

Third Graders Participate In Ag Science Adventure

TULPEHOCKEN (Berks Co.) — As the buses arrived at Mor-Dale Farms, Frystown, 145 third graders hurriedly filed off to the annual Agriculture Science Adventure. Ralph and Crystal Moyer, owners of Mor-Dale Farms, host the event for the Tulpehocken Agricultural Science Department. Senior high school students prepare the agenda for the day, serve a group leaders and assist with the stations.

Activities took place throughout the school day included. Six groups of third grade elementary student's rotated through stations involving plants, animals, soils, water, resources and the community.

During the noon hour, students enjoyed delicious grilled cheeseburgers, prepared by the elementary principals Mrs. Bonnie Benfer, Michael Boltz and the school Superintendent Dr. Augustine Grant. Students had the opportunity to actually view milking in a parlor, tour calves raising facilities, and maybe take in a pony ride.

Dr. Dena Owens from Willow Creek Animal Hospital, Ralph Moyer, host of the event, and Amy Garber from Irish Creek Stables, presented students with the science of animals.

Dr. Owens demonstrated different veterinary procedures and tools for treating, restraining and caring for animals.

Ralph Moyer discussed the variety of feeds that are included in a dairy cow's diet. Feeds provided for student's to visual examine included haylage, corn silage, soybean meal, cottonseed, and ground corn.

Amy Garber taught students about the science of horses including how they are trained and the feeds that they intake.

Despite the windy day, the plating of the garden was still successful. Master Gardener's under the direction of Beth Findlay, Jan Weaver, Nancy Reade, Kelly Kalvert, and Denise Skelding helped third graders to plant a garden utilizing a variety of seeds and plants. Flowers, sweet corn, beans, and potatoes represent just a few of the species represented. The third grade students utilized signs and pictures to decipher fruits and vegetables which appear frequently on their diner table.

John Chibirka, a NRCS Soil Scientist, utilized soil profiles to instill in students the importance of soils in our everyday lives. The students each made their own soil profile to take home. High School Ag student, Kevin Shilling, helped the kids make their soil profiles and discussed the bill that is currently in the State House of Representatives about naming a state soil for Pennsylvania. Chibirka also demonstrated soil erosion by putting sand in a container on a slanted hill and raking it back and forth. After a while, most of the sand moved to the bottom of the slope demonstrating how soil erosion actually works.

Next, students headed to the pond where Pam Spaide from the Berks County Conservation District and Stephanie Hartman from the Lebanon County Conservation District talked about the qualities of water and the different organisms that live within streams, lakes, rivers, and oceans. Students learned about watersheds and whatever is taken out of the water must go back in such as tadpoles, insects and plants. Utilizing nets and buckets, students gathered insects and different aquatic creatures to learn about, compare, and identify.

After learning about the qualities of water, students were on their way to the caretaker of resources where John Ravert from the Berks County Conservation District talked about the importance of recycling. Students learned just how important recycling is for their community and environment. They even discovered that batteries can be recycled.

Bethel Elementary School third graders participate in the "Caretakers of the Soils" activity during a field trip to the Ralph Moyer farm in Bethel Township, Berks County.

Runoff was also demonstrated and illustrated how it can pollute an entire area such as towns, cities, lakes, streams and even rivers and oceans. High School Ag Student, Josh Deck, assisted Mr. Ravert and demonstrated different recycling techniques.

Patty Melt and the Pennsylvania Beef Council stole the show at the Caretaker of the Community station. Patty talked about the four "C's" of food safety. Students watched a video about the four "C's" rap and portrayed Cool It, Clean It, Cook It, and Don't Cross It as their classmates watched tentatively. Michelle Cornman and Holly Marshall from the Council along with Adam Moyer, a high school Ag student played key roles in the demonstration and helped Patty Melt "do her thing."

By the end of the day, students were anxious for a refreshing dish of vanilla ice cream with chocolate syrup sponsored by Mor-Dale Farms before they departed from the event and headed back to school. A quiz of the day's activities also awaited them back at school.

You ask you answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Or, you may e-mail questions and answers to LGOOD.EPH@LNPNEWS.COM

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it. However, if your question requires someone to mail items to you, you must include your address or phone number for publishing.

QUESTION — Shirley Orfanella, Quarryville, is looking for any good ideas on keeping flies away while dining on the porch and would also like to know where to buy easels to display wide bowls or other wide objects.

QUESTION — Mrs. Simeon Stoltzfus, Millersburg, wants to know if anyone has a copy of "How Great Thou Art" in a German translation. She has read that the hymn was written by a Swedish pastor and later translated into German, Russian, and ultimately English by missionaries to the people of the Ukraine. Please send the German translation to her at 193 Harman Lane, Millersburg, PA 17061.

QUESTION — Valerie Miller, Honesdale, wants to purchase a pair of wool carders in good condition for a reasonable price. As an inexperience carder, she also would appreciate tips on carding and spinning wool.

QUESTION — A reader writes that she has eight oak trees approximately 75-feet high. She would like a professional to remove them. Anyone recommend a professional who works in the 610 area code vicinity.

QUESTION — Edna Weaver, Kutztown, writes that when she attended a one-room public school in the 1940s, she read the book, "The Open Gate," which she has never forgotten. If anyone has a copy of the book, Edna would like to buy it. Write to her at 375 Bowers Rd., Kutztown, PA 19530-9726.

QUESTION — Walt Grove, Red Lion, lives in a log house for 25 years. Every year he has black bumble bees or carpenter bees that bore into the logs and eaves of the house. He has tried plugging the holes, but the bees bore into another spot. Does anyone know how to get rid of the bees permanently?

QUESTION — D. Peters, Red Lion, asks where he can find five-volt G.E. light bulbs. These bulbs were used in an antique handheld Delta Powerlite lantern. They are GE 502 and GE 425 and are screw-in type bulbs used with a square six-volt battery with spring terminals. The number 425s are .5 amps/2.5 watts and the 502s are .15 amps/.765 watts. Peters needs only 2 or 3 bulbs.

QUESTION — Lucy Nolt, Mifflinburg, wants to know if there is a way to get rid of termites without using exterminator services. It would cost $2,500 to have an exterminator do it, so the Nolts prefer to do it themselves if possible.

QUESTION — Last summer Cindy Eshleman recalls seeing a magazine page that listed different types of mint plants. She doesn't know the name or the magazine, but if anyone has a copy of an article about mint plants, she would appreciate if they would send it to her at R.D. 3, Box 7957, Jonestown, PA 17038.

QUESTION — Martin Heffner Jr., Wernersville, is looking for someone to repair a DC battery driven 14-volt motor that drives a handicapped scooter.

QUESTION — Alma Stauffer, 27990 Pt Lookout Rd., Loveville, MD 20656, wants to know if there is a buyer for blue glass Vicks Vaporub jars that are full and in boxes with the papers. She also has various blue Noxema jars without the lids.

QUESTION — Wilma Zimmerman wants to know where a slicer-shredder attachment and instruction booklet could be found for a Cuisinart food processer DLC-7.

QUESTION — Ruth Nolt is looking for some Calvary songbooks in good condition. Write to Robert Brougher, 200 Beaver Run Rd., New Oxford, PA 17350 or call (717) 334-8203 with prices or information.

QUESTION — A reader wants to know what to use on kitchen formica countertops to preserve or seal the formica to keep it from wearing down, keeping stains out and adding shine?

QUESTION — A reader wants to know where the strong rubber elastic (like rubber bands) can be purchased to make fitted bed sheets.

QUESTION — Nina Purvin wants information about a Purvin Dairy Company, which operated in Lancaster during the 1940s-1950s. She has found some interesting bottles, a calendar, and a poster from the company. The latest item is from 1952. She'd like any information someone might have about the farm and dairy.

QUESTION — Cathy Heagy, Narvon, is looking for a children's book, "The Little Boy From Shickshinny," which is about a boy who got mad at a cow lying down in the dark and kicked it only to find out it was really a bear. Her grandmother had a copy when Cathy was a child.

'Liquid Fence' Keeps Wildlife From Foraging Gardens, Shrubs

BRODHEADSVILLE (Monroe Co.) — When 85-year-old Clark Kaskie is faced with a problem, he does not get mad, he gets inventive.

His most recent endeavor involved protecting something that is very dear to him: his flowers. At his home in the Pocono Mountains, herds of deer and rabbits were constantly eating his shrubs and gardens.

He spent a small fortune trying to find a deterrent that worked, but to no avail. "I tried a four-foot fence. It was ugly," he said.

Before retirement, Kaskie was a technical assistant to the president of Allied Chemical Corporation. He is both a chemist and a chemical engineer and started an information department at Stauffer's Chemical.

His first 23 years of work were spent at Monsanto Chemical. He then worked in Oak Ridge, Tennessee on the Manhattan Project, the global effort to split the atom. "We shipped the basics to Los Alamos," he said. Following the war Kaskie worked on peacetime applications for nuclear power and extracted radioactive isotopes for medical use.

Kaskie admits that retirement never really occurred, but after the formality he designed a self-contained mobile medical clinic, complete with chest x-rays, blood sampling, visual and hearing tests, and hands-on examination by doctors. The unit now visit industrial plants and provides on-site physicals.

When he moved to Pennsylvania, he sold that business and faced a new challenge: hungry deer and rabbits eating his valuable gardens and shrubs. After being disappointed by the many animal deterrents on the market, Kaskie had no other choice but to find his own formula.

It took Kaskie three years at a small workbench in his basement, but when he emerged, he had an animal repellent that satisfied his goals: all-natural, biodegradable, inexpensive, easy to apply, and 100 percent effective. For two years, he shared the product and gave it away to people in the area.

Kaskie's friends and neighbors found it worked so well, that they urged him to sell it. In July 1997, Clark and his wife Rosemary began selling his product: Liquid Fence. Business boomed and the telephone began ringing off the hook. The formula works on smell rather than taste, therefore the animal does not have to bite the plant and cause damage, yet once dry the odor is not detectable by humans.

Three years into development and testing, Liquid Fence, an easy to apply spray made from natural fermented ingredients has proven to be the most effective way of repelling deer and rabbits. It is available as a ready-to-use spray and as a concentrate to mix with water for application with popular pump-action garden sprayers. The spray is an all-natural product, harmless to people and pets. It does not harm the plants, is biodegradable and safe for the environment.

Award-winning garden writer Derek Fell has reported 100 percent effectiveness in protecting plants in his Pennsylvania garden. "We have deer in the garden almost every night" said Fell, "And we couldn't have ornamental plantings without using Liquid Fence. An application in spring when leaves are breaking dormancy, and booster applications at monthly intervals, controls the deer, rabbits, and other foraging animals."

It takes just a few minutes to spray the entire yard full of plants. Even birds, butterflies, and honeybees do not mind it, but the deer and rabbits are repelled. Repeated at monthly intervals, the spray continues to protect plants, even through winter when evergreens such as arborvitae, azaleas, and hollies need it the most.

Consuming Thoughts

We hear a great deal today about the rising cost of health care. But seldom do health care costs reflect the money wasted on medical quackery the promotion of remedies and devices that are scientifically unproven. Each year Americans pay roughly $10 billion for ineffective, expensive, and sometimes harmful products.

Quacks, those who sell unproven remedies, have been around for many years. You may remember the "snake oil" salesman who traveled from town to town making false claims about a doubtful product. Today's quack is only a little more sophisticated. He or she sells products through advertisements, foundations and clinics.

Most people who succumb to the quack's worthless and often dangerous "treatments" are desperate for some offer of hope. Three of the largest areas for health quackery are the aging process, arthritis, and cancer.

One way to protect yourself is to question carefully what you see or hear in advertisements. Be aware that ads are not necessarily true just because they are presented by what may otherwise be a reputable source.

There is also a lot of money spent on nutrition supplements such as vitamins and minerals. Did you know that you can grow your own vitamins, and grow your own color, flavor, and texture to make your meals more interesting? Fruits and vegetables are recognized as one group of food essential for good nutrition. Almost all are virtually fat free and all contain a large percentage of water. Thus, these foods are low in calories, while high in valuable minerals, vitamins, and fiber.

Cooking vegetables only until they are tender is the best way to insure peak flavor, color, texture, and food value. Vegetables cooked whole with the skins on retain the most value. The less water used in cooking, the more nutrients retained.

Consider the nutritional value of vegetables before planting or buying fresh, canned or frozen. Choosing two or three from each nutritional group will contribute much to a balanced diet for your family.

High in vitamins A and C: Parsley, turnip greens, spinach, cantaloupes, kale, and broccoli.

High in vitamin A: carrots (cooked or raw), Swiss chard, winter squash, green onions, and pumpkins.

High in vitamin C: peppers, asparagus, cabbage, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, rutabagas, radishes, and tomatoes.

Other green vegetables: green beans, lettuce and peas.

Starch vegetables: Lima beans, sweet corn, onions, and potatoes.

Vegetables for variety in flavor, color and texture: beets, cucumbers, eggplant, summer squash and turnips.

This morning I reread an Aunt's diary that was written 100 years ago. I believe they did a lot more heavy work than many of us do today. She was about 20 years old and told of helping the men "heap hay" in the field. They even washed the outside of the house in the spring.

They sold butter which was churned once a week. She mentions that 27 pounds and 31 pounds were sold at one time. And, the large asparagus patch gave them 119 bunches to sell one day in a nearby town. On other days they picked strawberries and made preserves.

In May they moved to the summer kitchen so that the main house would not be so hot in the summer. Many days she only wrote one word such as "ironed" or "sewed." They seemed to have lots of company that not only ate there but stayed overnight. This lady had several brothers who were going to college or teaching school. There were many spelling bees mentioned as evening activities.

When they were ill, the doctor came to the house. No mention is made of a specific illness but they were confined to their bed. In the spring they washed the carriage and went for arbutus. I remember doing that with my aunt in the spring.

Her father clerked sales and was on the school board. He planted a lot of tobacco as that was a money crop even 100 years ago.

She writes that an "old lady, Mrs. Rutt, died and was 62 years old." Today, she would have been 82 or 92 to be considered an "old lady." Also, mentioned is the fact that a neighbor's barn burned. But, then there were many empty pages when I suppose she was too busy or too tired to write in her diary.

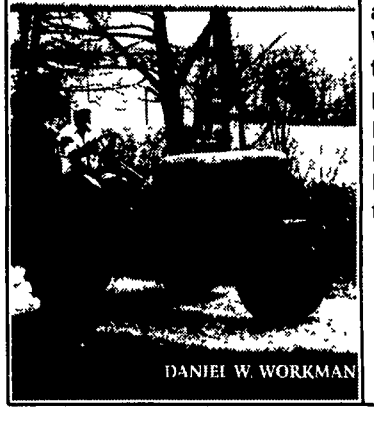
BRINGING ALLIS HOME

Growing up with an Allis-Chalmers WC in the Family



"Bringing Allis Home" features farm and tractor stories that took place on a farm near Jelloway, Ohio, in the '40s and '50s with an Allis-Chalmers WC. Part II of the book provides the aging story-teller's account of restoring a '48 Allis-Chalmers WD and returning with it to the old home farm that is now owned by Amish. The 116 page, soft-cover book , contains 44 b/w pictures. The book is available at Barnes & Noble stores and Waldenbooks or it may be ordered and will be shipped same day, first class, from:

Living History Re-enacted During Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival

ADAMSTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — People who appreciate antiques relish the opportunity of seeing history revived.

The good, the bad, and the traditional customs of Lancaster County's Pennsylvania Dutch will be re-enacted May 23-26 and May 30-June 1 at Shupp's Grove, Adamstown.

An 19th century village will be set up to provide the background for the multiday re-enactment of the Pennsylvania Dutch way of life. Experience schooling in a one-room schoolhouse with a teacher using the Pennsylvania Dutch dialect. Attend a church with hymn singing led by Jesse and Pat Schmuck.

See Mother Moonshine's two-seated outhouse, which was recently rescued from a Reinholds' farm. Mother Moonshine supplied moonshine to local taverns during the Prohibition Era.

The hanging of Susanna Cox, although morbid, reveals a community's judgment upon a servant girl's crime. On the lighter side is an Amish wedding.

Cooking in a traditional Dutch kitchen and baking bread in an outdoor oven are some of the daily demonstrations that allow a peek into everyday life of the Pennsylvania Dutch.

Hundreds of homemade quilts will be for sale and daily quilting demonstrations will show the intricate skills of expert quilters.

Craftsmen will demonstrate Pennsylvania Dutch folk art and crafts. Their wares and antiques will be for sale.

Marilyn Gehman, owner of Shupp's Grove, said, "Visitors will also have the opportunity to sample what the Pennsylvania Dutch are best known for — good food. This includes sausage sandwiches, Dutch fries, funnel cakes, and much more."

Antique farm machinery will use century-old farm implements during demonstrations.

Entertainment on the main stage varies from day to day, but will continue all day, and will include Leroy Heffentrager Band, Dutch Humorist Jakey Buddershcnip, and The East Country Cloggers stompin' their feet to the sounds of a hoedown.

Children's activities also include a petting zoo, play area, and hay maze.

Gates open, rain or shine, from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m.

This is the 54th annual Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, but the first time it will be conducted at Shupp's Grove, Rt. 897 on the outskirts of Adamstown, home of the weekly seasonal antiques and flea markets. Free parking and handicapped restrooms are available.

Admission at the gate is $8 for adults, and children 10 and under are free. New this year is a two-day pass for $12. Admission includes all entertainment, exhibits, scheduled activities, demonstrations, and special performances.

Entertainment continues all-day throughout the Dutch Folk Fest including the Leroly Heffentrager Band, Dutch Humorist Jakey Buddershcnip, The East Country Cloggers stompin' their feet to the sounds of the Hoedown, Walt Groller and his Orchestra, Jimmy Sturr, and The Lewis Family. Special attractions include demonstrations of Pennsylvania Dutch crafts, cooking, and antique farm machinery. An Amish wedding, the hanging of Susanna Cox, and other events offer a unique view into the Pennsylvania Dutch culture.

Benefit Auction Planned For Nicholas Stoltzfus House Preservation

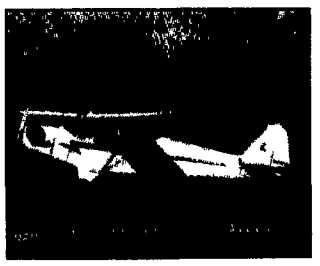
WYOMISSING (Berks Co.) — A benefit auction for the preservation of the Nicholas Stoltzfus House in Wyomissing will be conducted at 1700 Tulpehocken Road, the site of the house, on Saturday, May 24, beginning at 9 a.m.

Numerous donated items, Amish quilts and handiwork, and keep-sake art work done on shingles removed underneath the old tin roof will be auctioned.

A Berks Heritage Tour, Friday, May 23, includes a visit to the Stoltzfus House, as well as to the site of the Hochstetler Massacre, the home of Jacob Hertzler, and many other homesteads.

For more information, contact Paul Kurtz, Elizabethtown, at (717) 367-3906.

Vintage Sailplanes To Soar At Kutztown



KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Vintage Sailplane Association, a Division of the Soaring Society of America, will conduct the East Coast Regatta on May 23-May 26.

The host gliderport this year is Kutztown Airport, located in Berks County — a short drive west of Allentown.

All gliders and enthusiasts are welcome. There will be auto-tows and winch launches in the mornings, and aero-tows available during the afternoons. Instructors and rental aircraft will be available for endorsements and re-currency checks.

During the Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, Shupp's Grove, Adamstown, May 23-26 and May 30-June 1, see how bread was ground from flour and baked in an outdoor oven during 18th century Lancaster County.

Heritage Center Museum To Host History Camp

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Heritage Center Museum's innovative and popular summer program for children, History Camp celebrates its 12th year with a brand new camp, Rebels, Redcoats, and Revolution.

During an activity-filled week, history campers will study the Revolutionary War and explore life in 18th-century Lancaster.

History Camp 2003 is for children in grades 4-6 and will be conducted July 7-11. Camp hours are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m., though starting and ending times may vary according to daily programming. The deadline for registering is June 23.

Contact the Heritage Center Museum at (717) 299-6440 for fee information and registration.

Each day of History Camp begins and ends at The Heritage Center Museum's Education Center at the Jasper Yeates House, 24 S. Queen Street, located one-half block from Penn Square in downtown Lancaster. During the week, campers will visit nationally-recognized historic sites, such as Independence Hall, Brandywine Battlefield, and Valley Forge, and tour relevant sites throughout Lancaster County. Campers also will have the opportunity to examine 18th-century documents and create projects related to their visits. The week will culminate in a program planned and put on by the campers for parents and family members.

"History Camp offers a great opportunity for local children to learn about the history of Pennsylvania and Lancaster County through extensive hands-on contact and site visits," said Peter S. Seibert, executive director of the Heritage Center Museum. "At the end of the week, kids take home projects, a lot of positive memories and learning experiences."

The Heritage Center Museum, 13 W. King St., Lancaster, joins with four other downtown cultural institutions in a program known as SAIL (Summer Arts Institute of Lancaster) to offer an array of summer experiences for young people. Since its 1998 launch, SAIL classes and programs for area youth have ranged from one-day workshops to camps to month-long courses in visual arts, theater, history, and music.

Snyder County Historical Society Plans Sunday Program

MIDDLEBURG (Snyder Co.) — The Snyder County Historical Society, 30 E. Market Street, Middleburg, is presenting a very special program on Sunday, June 1 at 2 p.m. George S. Shaffer from Northumberland, a well-known quilt maker, will show some of his quilts and explain the art of quilt making.

Shaffer has been making quilts for about 16 years. He started piecing quilts when he wanted something to do while recovering from surgery. His discussion will include how templets are made, identification of pattern types, things to look for when making quilts for both piecing and appliquing, as well as stiches, batting, and overall effects.

In addition to June 1, the building will be open each Sunday until Sept. 28 with tour guides on hand from 1:30 p.m.-5 p.m. The public is invited to visit the society library and view exhibits in both the first and second floor museums, Civil War Room, and the Society's auditorium. This year the second-floor museum features the World War II era. Admission is free.

For more information about the programs at the society building, call (570) 837-6191 on Thursday or Friday from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. when the library is open for historical research.

Early Ebys

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — John L. Ruth, master storyteller, Mennonite minister, and author will share some early Eby stories from his most recent book at the 12th annual reunion of the Eby Family Association, May 23, from 5:30 p.m.-8:30 p.m. here at Yoder's Restaurant.

Joanne Hess Siegrist will present a historic slide show of the Early Ebys, their friends, neighbors, and life in Lancaster County from 1855-1935. As a respected historian, author, and photography harvest coordinator for Lancaster Mennonite Historical Society since 1993, Siegrist will bring enthusiasm and many fine stories.

Saturday's festivities will begin at 10:30 a.m. with the annual covered dish picnic at the Overly's Picnic Grove in New Holland.

MEMORIAL WEEKEND ESTATE AUCTION

May 24th & 25th, 2003 Starting at 10 a.m. each day

CAMP GENESSEE

(The Former Price Estate) 3723 Genessee Trail, Hughesville, PA

Directions: From I-180, take Halls/Pennsdale Exit; follow 220N to Tivoli, take left on Highland Lake Road, travel 6 miles. Signs posted days of auction.

We will be selling the contests from the above listed estate, a beautiful, vast selection of oak furniture, wicker, early primitive farm implements plus a large selection of vintage furnishings and accessories. All will be on display in the "Casino".

From a 1928 ad for Camp Genessee. "A homely place in the mountains, seven cottages on a table of land 2,500 ft. above sea level. Cottages furnished and altogether desirable, lake for swimming, tennis courts and a large casino; the latter contains a bowling alley. The place is not operated as an income producer, but is a private estate offering six homes for rent to "desirable families" - the seventh cottage being seasonally operated by the owner. It is believed that it would be impossible to find such another place in Pennsylvania."

Saturday, May 24th

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Tapestries Attracting New Generation Of Buyers

What people have been hanging on their walls as art has pretty much depended not only on their budgets but the whims of fashions. This is especially true when it comes to textiles.

Oriental rugs, vintage clothing and quilts have been the most recent examples. All can cost several thousand dollars. Now, many are searching for tapestries in the same price range.

When you think "tapestry" you probably think of 17th and 18th century weavings costing as much as $60,000. This is true when they sell at Christie's or Sotheby's auctions.

Another problem with those rare, early pieces is size. Remember they were made to cover walls in palaces and mansions. Sometimes to keep out the cold.

Change your thinking and discover some affordable, beautiful works of art. Believe it or not there are not only antique, late 19th century tapestries available and affordable, but in Art Nouveau, Art Deco, and modern motifs.

CLUES: A little research on the subject can pay off. Historically, the most valuable were the Gobelins and Beauvais, made in the 17th century in France.

Even in those days it was costly and time-consuming to make a tapestry. First, the original designs had to be made and purchased. Next, supplies of good quality wools and silks bought for the weavers to use. And, there were the salaries to be paid to the weavers, to help them survive during the many months it took them to complete a tapestry. This became even more costly when the tapestries were designed in sets. They could consist of six sets or more.

Tapestry designers were the most famous painters of the day, such as Francois Boucher. They depicted the idyllic lifestyle of the 18th century and religious subjects.

Those with religious subjects were made for church decorations and festivals. A famous weaver, Jan Aerts, of Brussels, specialized in religious subjects.

Much attention was given to the borders. Designs ranged from swags of flowers, trophies and grotesques to simply shaded yellow, imitating gilt frames.

Most familiar to collectors are those made in Aubusson, France.

They were affordable and popular with the wealthy of the late 18th to early 19th centuries, who wanted the "look" of a tapestry, but didn't need the elegance of a Beauvais.

Besides, often the Aubussons copied the designs of the Beauvais and Gobelins. And, you thought "knock-offs" were new! The French Revolution marked the finish of the Beauvais factory and by the end of the 18th century Aubusson closed most of it's workshops.

CLUE: With the growth of the upper middle class in America and the new millionaires, there was a revival of interest in tapestries by the end of the 19th century. For the wealthiest there were the rediscovered antique French tapestries.

However, at the same time, tapestries also became fashionable around the world. Once again weavers were busy in both France and Belgium, using the same subjects found in the 17th and 18th century tapestries. However, now they were usually 5 foot x 5 foot and even the upper middle classes could afford them.

An even cheaper version became popular by the early 20th century.

Made in Belgium, usually rectangular, the colors were usually pale yellows and black.

Themes were religious as well as neo-classic. They were also sold by catalog and very inexpensive. By the late 1920s and 30s the subjects included contemporary subjects such as the flight of Charles Lindberg and the 1933 Chicago World's Fair. As the Depression intensified, interest waned and they disappeared into attics.

During the 1970s a French Company revived the early 18th century designs and sold them mail order for several thousand dollars. They can show up very reasonably priced at estate sales.

Arts, Botanicals, Calligraphy: Going To School In Early Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM (Lehigh Co.) — The wonder and beauty of artwork by students at Moravian schools in Bethlehem and Nazareth will be on exhibit at The Arts, Botanicals and Calligraphy: Going to School in Early Bethlehem, from May 24 through January 4, 2004 at the Kemerer Museum of Decorative Arts, 427 N. New Street, Bethlehem.

Through the lens of these students' creations, the exhibit explores the revolutionary educational concepts and exceptional educational practices the Moravians of the Lehigh Valley introduced to America in the mid-1700s.

Visitors to the exhibit will discover why education was as important to the early Moravians (an early Protestant group from Czechoslovakia) as food and shelter, and view the evolution of Moravian schools in the context of the development of schooling in America.

The Moravians of Bethlehem and Nazareth established the first formalized vocational training program in America; the first school for the study of Native American languages; and the first boarding school for girls in the American colonies, the Bethlehem Female Seminary, founded in 1742. They pioneered kindergarten, adult evening classes, parent-teacher conferences, and teacher in-service days.

On exhibit will be exquisite botanical drawings by young men at Nazareth Hall school; fine calligraphy and needlework done by young women at the Bethlehem Female Seminary; ciphering books from the 1800s Saucon Valley; spinning tools used by students to help defray their expenses; school uniforms from Nazareth Hall; chorale books belonging to the Kummer family, a family of educators in 1800s Bethlehem and many more artifacts.

Several interactive activities for visitors to the exhibit include writing phrases phonetically in a Native American language as 18th century missionaries learned to do creating calligraphy, drawing botanical pictures, and more.

In conjunction with the exhibit will be several gallery talks, a musical performance, and calligraphy and botanical drawing workshops.

The exhibit will be open Tuesdays-Sundays, noon-4 p.m. The museum is closed on major holidays. Admission to the exhibit is $3 for adults and $1 for children 6-12. Children under 6 are admitted free.

The Nicholas Stoltzfus House Preservation

Benefit Auction

Saturday, May 24, 2003

9:00 A.M.

1700 Tulpehocken Road
Wyomissing, Pa.

Proceeds of the auction go to restoring the home of Nicholas Stoltzfus, early Berks county Amish/Mennonite settler - son and grandson of German Lutheran ministers - progenitor of the American Stoltzfus family. Nicholas Stoltzfus, his son Christian, married first to Catherine Gerber and second to Elizabeth King, and daughter Barbara, married to John Schmucker, are likely early occupants of this house in the Cumru Amish District.

We've come a long way...but, we have a long way to go!

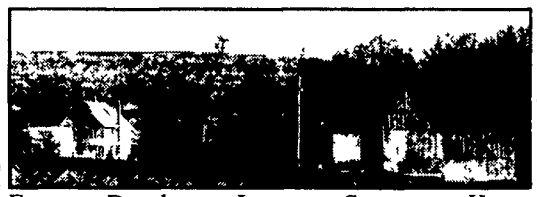
94 ACRE FARM



Farmers, Developers, Investors, Sportsmen, Horse Enthusiasts or someone just wanting to live the country life, this is the property that you've been waiting for. This 2 story 4 bedroom double plank house has been well maintained and is in move in condition. Other improvements consist of a large well constructed bank barn. Also on property is a large wagon shed w/corn crib and other buildings. The acreage ranges from flat to gently rolling fields with over 70 acres tillable. The balance is woodland & pasture. Two small streams run through the property & hold native trout. Chances are good for a pond site. Wildlife abounds with sightings of deer & turkey on each of our visits. There is road frontage on both sides of the paved road & you will appreciate the fact that the home is situated in an area that offers a great view of most of the 94 acres and a nearby mountain. Property is located in Lycoming County. For more information, fact sheet, or appointment to inspect property, call auctioneers. Real Estate Open House: Sunday, May 18th. 1 to 4 P.M. Real Estate Terms: 10% down, cash, PA check or check with bank letter of credit day of auction, balance in 30 days or upon delivery of clear deed. Purchaser pays 2% transfer tax, property taxes pro rated from date of settlement. Property sold with owner confirmation. No personal property being sold. No buyer's premium. CLUTCHES/GEAR REDUCTION ASSEMBLIES

Our Specialty
We stock them, stock the parts, pinions, gears, bearings, seals & gaskets, splined out puts, shafts, housing

adaptors/reducers, and pilot bearing holders. With little or no changes, these new clutch/gear reduction assemblies could fit your gas or diesel engine - 50-100hp. Five different gear ratios. A valuable link between your engine and power take-off shaft equipment.

CLUTCH / 5.8:1 Planetary Gear Reduction Assemblies
For 8-30 HP

Engines
Fits most — Honda, Robin, Kohler, Kawasaki, others (1-2 cyl.)

- Fits most standard crankshafts – 1", 1 1/8", 1 7/16"
- Aluminum Castings/Housings
- Ball & roller bearings, hardened gears

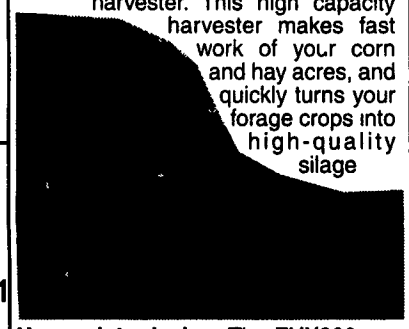
In Stock! New Case IH FHX300 TOP-CAPACITY HARVESTING

Discover the productivity advantages of the new Case IH FHX300 foprage harvester. This high capacity harvester makes fast work of your corn and hay acres, and quickly turns your forage crops into high-quality silage



Heavy-duty design. The FHX300 was expressly designed for use with high-horsepower tractors — those from 180 to 300 horsepower. The wide, 24.4 in. (620 mm) that opening swallows your heaviest crops, while the 1000-rpm driveline, heavy-duty components and wide crop heads are made to harness big-tractor horsepower and turn it into high-capacity harvesting performance. You control FHX300 operations right from your tractor seat using electric standard hydraulic tongue swing.

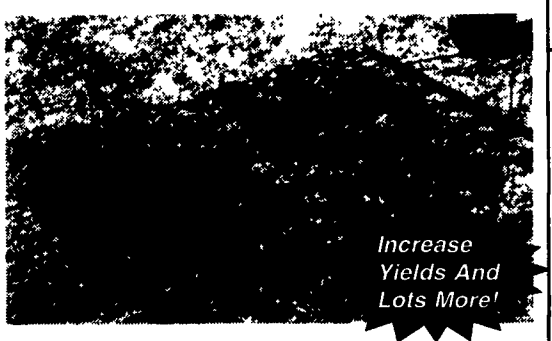
Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc Offers This Low Cost Harrow

Fueust Flex-i-ble Tine Harrow

Aerates and scarifies to stimulate growth, improve moisture penetration. Breaks up manure to speed decomposition, reduce parasites. Works in seeds after reseeding. Maintains rings and tracks. 4 to 42 ft. widths Adjustable penetration. Low maintenance.



HERBICIDE INCORPORATION: Independent research using black light photography proves the Fuerst Harrow behind your disk or cultivator gives you "near perfect" incorporation in one pass – better than implements costing several times more! Shreds trash as it prepares & levels seedbeds.

SHREDS STALKS: Shreds and spreads stalks in spring ahead of no-till and ridge-till planting.

4 to 42 ft. widths. Flexes to cover every inch at 6-8 mph No maintenance. Easy to use and store. Insist on the original "Spreading Action" ® tines

DITCHBANK MOWER

DB150. Over 30 years of hydraulic mower design experience has made the Rhino® DB150 the preferred choice of experienced operators for the mowing of pond banks, levees, drainage ditches, and hard-to-reach areas

The DB150 can extend to a maximum of 158" from the center line of the tractor allowing the 60 inch rotary head to cut areas that are difficult or impossible to reach with ordinary mowers By being hydraulically driven, maintenance is greatly reduced with the absence of belts and pulleys The DB150 outperforms many competitive units with smaller hydraulic systems The DB150 utilizes a 60 gallon hydraulic system which allows the unit to run cooler in tough mowing conditions The large reservoir also serves as a counterweight and remains stationary on the mainframe eliminating the potential traffic hazard of a movable counter-balance weight The DB150 features a heavy-duty three-point hitch using a lower double lug hitch system to fit a wide range of tractors To help insure a clean cut, the DB150 features updraft blades and a blade tip speed of 20,028 FPM

NOW IS A GREAT TIME TO TRIM BACK THOSE FENCE LINES WITH A RHINO BOOM MOWER

The Servis® 1548 hydraulic boom flail cutters are designed for mowing grass and cutting brush in hard-to-reach areas including roadsides, ditchbanks, ponds, and fence rows Large model with up to 15 foot horizontal reach and up to 4" diameter brush cutting

SE8 In Stock

The Rhino® SE8 is an economical rotary mower designed to help maintain larger acreages of grass, weeds, stalks, or material up to 1" in diameter.

The streamlined, close-coupled design allows economical operation on tractors as small as 30 horsepower on the SE8 The 85 HP center gearbox and 60 HP outboard gearboxes are protected from sudden shockloads by a slip clutch on the main driveline and torque dampeners on the side driveshafts Pan blade carriers help the unit glide over field obstacles and updraft blades with a 4" blade overlap provide a clean cut

Get the REEL Advantage

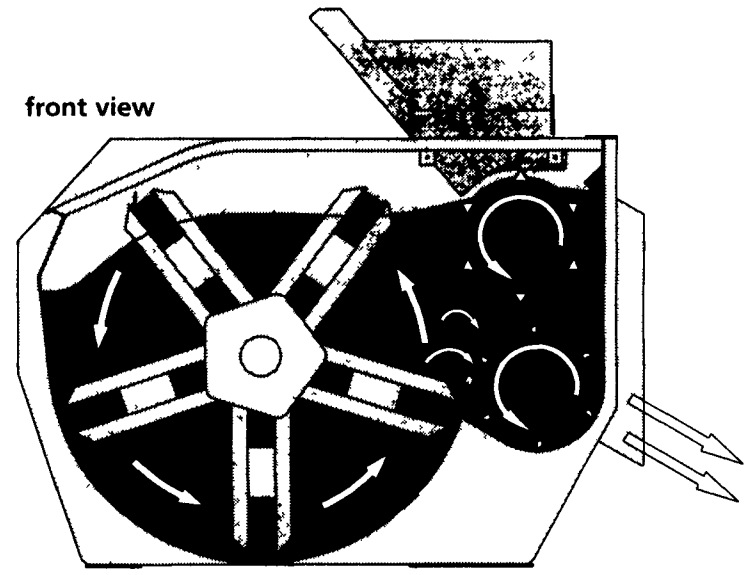
front view



The large-diameter reel provides a gentle tumbling action and the two side augers produce an end-to-end blending action. This unique combination ensures faster mixing and unloading times, and a very thorough mix, even when mixing small batches.

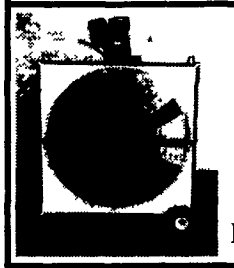
Portable Tractor Saw

Cut cordwood, pulpwood, firewood, ties or any other type of wood . .anywhere. Hook it up to your 3 point hitch, attach the PTO and move the Woodsman Saw to any location. As soon as you place a log on the sturdy 40" table, you'll get the feel of balanced-torque action. A light hand pressure moves the log into the blade, release the pressure and the spring loaded table rocks back on dual roller bearings, ready for the next cut. Built on a rugged steel frame, the Model 250 is engineered for years of heavy duty use

Model 250 Specifications

Tractor hitch linkage	3-point hitch
Saw blade	30" diameter
Table	40" x 10 1/2", mounted on dual roller bearings
Operating speed	1300 RPM
PTO speed	450 RPM
Depth of cut	12"
Drive	Matched V-belts
Shaft	Mounted on sealed, self-aligning ball bearings
Overall dimensions	38" x 44" x 44"
Safety shields .	On blade & PTO shaft



Portable 48"6 Paddle Barn Fans

Standard with 6 HP Robin engine
4½ HP Diesel or Hydraulic Motor Optional

TK crawlers work where conventional tractors can't

Minimum slip

Since tracks keep slippage to a minimum, they boost performance The tractor is capable of pulling its own weight As a result, it can pull and drive wider implements than a conventional rubber tired tractor of the same horsepower That increases efficiency and lowers operating costs

A TK crawler turns tighter than conventional tractors, too That's a big advantage in cramped quarters or when making headland turns

For extended road transportation TK tracks can be fitted easily with clip-on steel pads or "street plates"

Low APR Financing for 36 Months Available

BOB-CAT MOWS MORE

Up to 29 Acres Per Day

Because Bob-Cat ZT 200 series mowers offer true zero-turn capability, they don't let anything get in the way of productivity. With a Bob-Cat ZT 219, ZT 223, or ZT 225, you'll spend more time mowing and less time trying to figure out how to get around trees, shrubs and other landscape features.

But that's not all. The cutting decks feature six anti-scalp rollers for a quality of cut not found in other zero-turn rotaries. And, the ZT 200s have something extra, something the competition will never have: Bob-Cat dependability.

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for houses and barns.
DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED is proven best for animals.
STANDING SEAM
is ideal for houses.

Everlast is stronger.

Everlast makes metal roofs and sides that are substantially stronger than it's competition. Everlast II does not buckle as easy during erection, less popping and buckling while walking on it. Higher wind and snow loads. More attractive.

Glu-Lam Post

...another quality product from Rigidply Rafters used in CONESTOGA Buildings.

- Stronger than solid 6x6 posts
- Straighter than solid 6x6 posts
- More uniform and Completely treated---
- .60 CCA throughout the #1 structural 2x6's that are embedded in the ground.....
- #2 and better structural wood for construction above ground for pure appearance and greater overall strength.

The waterproof glue is the strongest binder and component---even stronger than the wood! Designed in Germany, improved, and proven since the early 1900's!

BEEF TIPS

Buying bull calves can be a sound practice if they are properly selected, using EPDs, performance data and visual appraisal After selection proper management and development are necessary, including consideration of herd health, nutrition and environment Proper development can have a positive impact on herd fertility since low fertility means fewer calves

Imported from Holland, ORLANDO is a black 17.1 Hand Dutch Harness Horse Stallion.

The Dutch Harness Horse is a wonderful horse to cross with existing breeds of horses used for driving and work. Dutch Harness Horses have been bred in Holland for over 80 years. The sole purpose is to increase trot and stride, thus producing driving horses that move more efficiently and cover more ground with less effort.

Exciting opportunities exist for the serious breeder looking to be involved with the induction and infusion of these great horses into today's breeding programs.

ORLANDO is standing at Mogadore, Ohio for the 2003 breeding season, shipped semen is available. The 2003 introductory stud fee is $1000.00 and includes a live foal guarantee.

GIVE'EM HELP WITH PRO-LIX
the profitable liquid feed for your cattle

PRO-LIX LIQUID FEED
They'll give it right back to you, with interest, in:
- Healthier Calves
- More Economical Production
- Better Reproduction Performance

PRO–LIX delivers the protein, vitamins and minerals your cattle need-when they need it and in the amounts they need. It increases cattle weight, fosters healthier calves and often helps to produce more calves. PRO-LIX is an extremely smart investment in the beef or milk that produces your profits-all year long.

Announcing:
Crude Soy Oil Now Available
With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil
A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations.

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:
- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets.
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds.
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems.

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:
- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat.
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs.

Other Soy Products Available:
- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil.

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program
- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40.
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

IT'S TIME TO THINK SPRING!
ALL NATURAL - HARDWOOD MULCH

We offer a premium quality, all-natural, hardwood mulch perfect for landscaping and home gardening applications. We never use demolition material or chemicals - so our customers can rest assured that there are no contaminates in our product that could harm plants or flowers. Our mulch is double ground and screened and naturally composted to produce a very rich dark color and fine consistency.

Large quantities available for pick-up or delivery. We are only 30 minutes from Harrisburg and are conveniently located off of a major highway. Call for product samples and pricing info.

ONCE IN A LIFETIME OPPORTUNITY
1950's STYLE CAFE AND GARAGE

Unique cafe, garage, and home all in one. Cafe and garage is a newly constructed 3200 sq. ft. building built in 2001. The building is designed in the 50's style. Garage has a car lift and a wash/recon bay. Cafe has indoor seating for 41 and outside area for picnic tables. Cafe offers a full service menu with takeouts.

Included is a 2 story, 4 bedroom home and a recently renovated barn. House has a new well, roof, septic system and electric service. The property is fenced with a new hi-tensil, electric fence.

This established turnkey operation is located on 8 1/2 acres with over 1000 feet of creek frontage in a peaceful setting in beautiful Juniata County, Pa. The business would be ideal as a family operation. This is a great opportunity to live where you work. Alternately, the business could be operated and the house rented out for income. Has a lot of potential for growth such as a bed and breakfast and/or a campground by the creek. If you ever dreamed of owning your own business, don't miss this opportunity.

Owner is relocating Will sacrifice all for $375,000 Phone 717•463-9900 Tues thru Sun 8am to 8pm for an appointment to see this mini-estate Ask for Connie

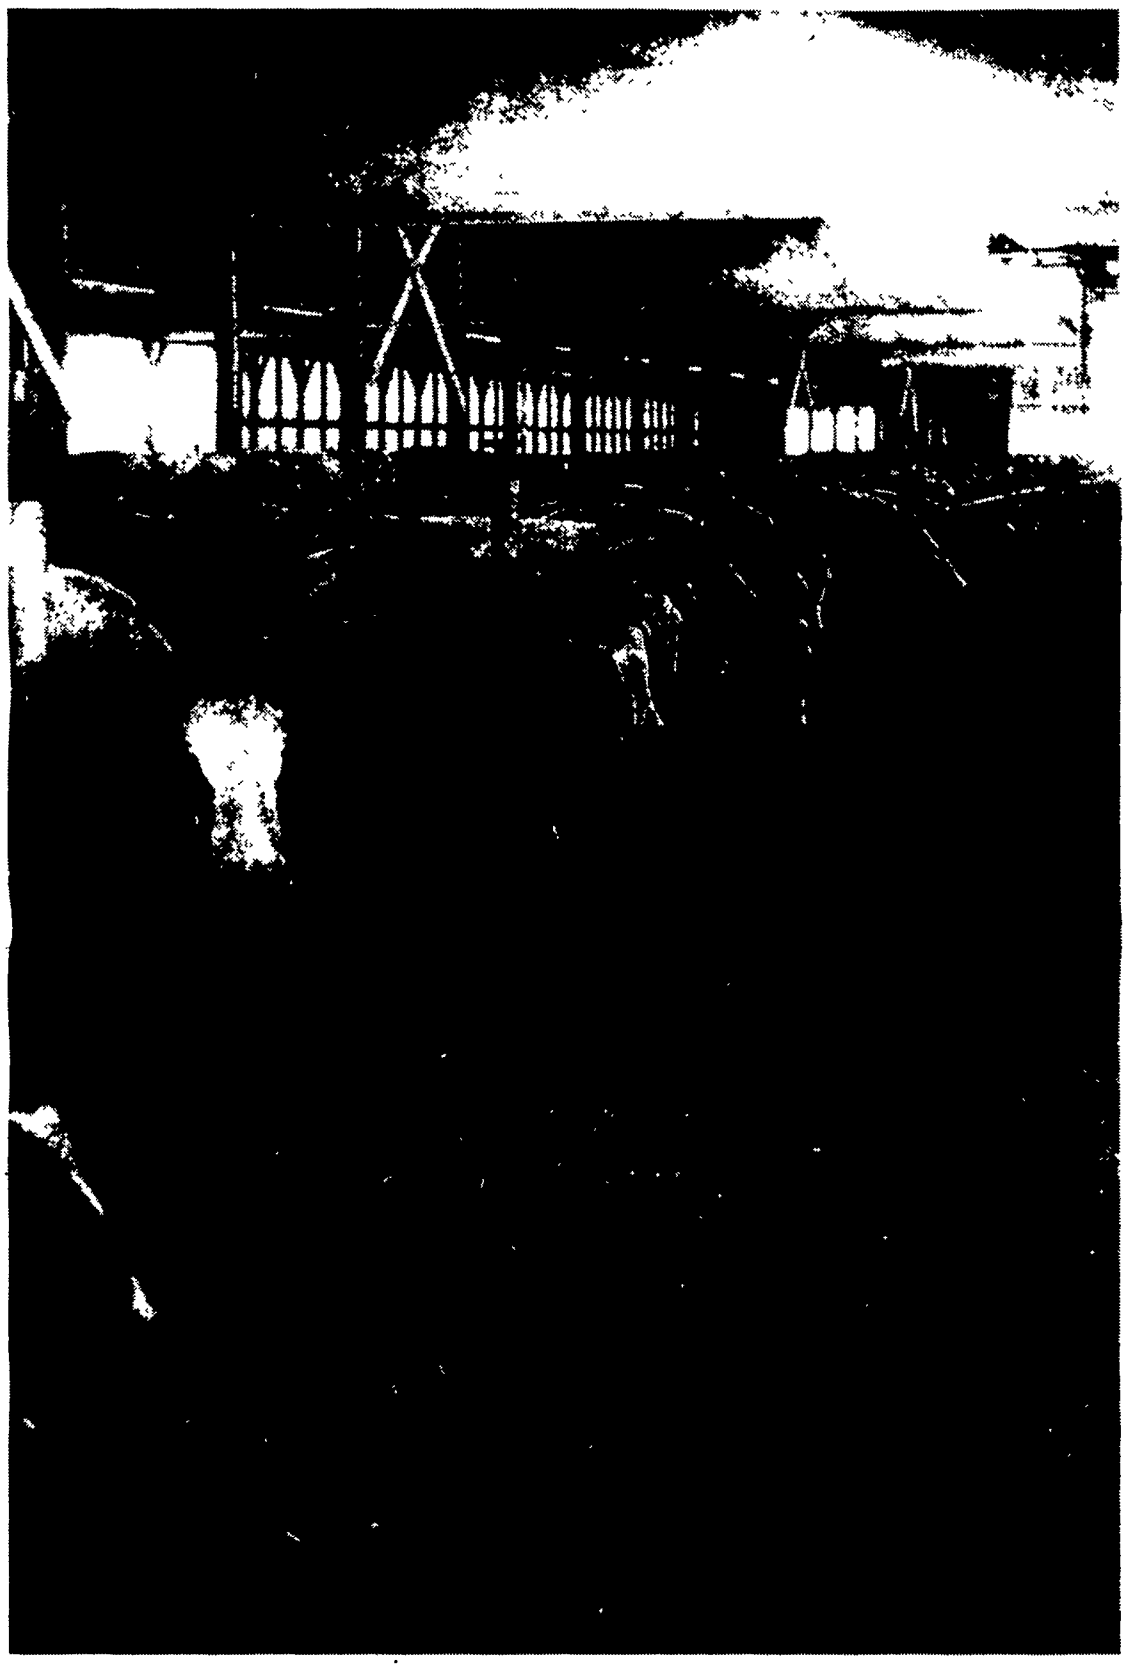
DAIRY RESEARCH PROGRAM

• New Applications • Product Development



Initial development work is conducted at the Ruminant Intensive Research Unit at the Decatur, IN Research Center. At this facility, with 20 cannulated lactating cows, research emphasizes the development of products and feeding programs that improve rumen function.

From this initial development work, products with commercial applications are evaluated at the Twin Oaks Dairy, a 500-cow dairy unit at Emmittsburg, MD.

The Twin Oaks Dairy field research is a key segment of the successful dairy feed product development program for Alliance Nutrition. At this facility, individual cow identification, daily milk production and weekly measurements of milk components enable us to monitor and evaluate individual cow response to the ingredients, feed products and feeding programs being tested.

This data is used to validate the commercial success of the Alliance Nutrition dairy feeding programs and enhances the confidence of commercial success of these products and programs for our dairy customers.

Community Supported Agriculture In Full Swing At Fulton Farm

DAVE LEFEVER

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Chambersburg-area residents who want fresh, locally grown food can find it just about all year long at Fulton Farm on the campus of Wilson College.

Customers buy seasonal shares in the community supported agriculture (CSA) operation and receive a weekly supply of "certified naturally grown" vegetables in return.

"Certified naturally grown" is a relatively new designation, meaning food produced in compliance with certified organic standards but without the paperwork and certification fees to back up the claim. In this case, neighboring farmers inspect the operation.

That system makes a lot of sense on Fulton Farm, according to Matt Steiman, farm manager.

"There are those of us who don't have time for all the paperwork or money for the fees, yet still grow by the same methods," Steiman said.

The cost and time required for organic certification would be prohibitive for a small farm like this one, where most of the produce is picked up by customers on the farm, Steiman said. Visitors are welcome to see any aspect of how their food is grown — and many of them do.

"It's great here," said Donna Nordin of Fayetteville.

Nordin and her two children, Bailey, 5, and Leo, 2, took a casual tour of the greenhouses and farm on April 29, the first CSA pickup for the 2003 growing season.

"We eat a lot more vegetables since we get them every week," Nordin said.

Steiman and his partner, Jenn Halpin, are responsible for growing and distributing produce for about 90 CSA members and their families from April through November. About 30 members con-

BRICKERVILLE (Lancaster Co.) — Perhaps it is that corner of the yard that could use a new look.

Maybe it is the section of the deck that would lend itself to an added attraction.

Possibly it is the appeal of having colorful fish and throaty, croaking frogs on the property.

Whatever the reason, homeowners are lining up to put in liners and begin ponds in their backyards.

An Increasing Trend

Brian Smith, water garden manager at Esbenshade's Greenhouses and Garden Centers, describes the interest as "an ongoing trend that's been increasing over the last 5-10 years," he said.

"I think people are spend-

With Consumers, Product Integrity Critical To Survival Of Organic Label

BIRD IN HAND (Lancaster Co.) — For consumers to rally around the organic ideal, first there has to be integrity and trust in the process, according to Leslie Zuck, executive director of the Pennsylvania Certified Organic (PCO) Association.

Zuck spoke at PCO's Organic Standards and Production Workshop in early March at the Bird In Hand Family Restaurant.

Ensuring that trust with consumers often takes time and can be involved, but inspectors are necessary to ensure the "viability of the system you have developed," said

Fish Hatchery Finds Opportunity In Niche Market

MERCERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — If any other farm family would see that 300 of their acres are under water, they would call it a disaster.

For some operations, however, land under water is the necessary element to grow the operation's cash crop: fish.

At Mount Parnell Fisheries, Incorporated, the fish — saved by their flashy colors and translucent fins — are not headed for a grocery store or seafood market.

The business sells 15 types of ornamental fish to distributors who then merchandise the fish to pet shops or water garden centers.

The 300 acres of water include more than 300 ponds ranging from a quarter acre to six acres in size.

Approximately 60-70 distributors buy the fish. "Most of our customers get fish 52 weeks a year," said Mike Rice, manager of the family business.

Thirty percent of the fish are exported to countries such as the Netherlands, Germany, Belgium, Spain, the United Kingdom, Mexico, Canada, and Puerto Rico, besides the continental U.S.

Half of the crop is feeder fish — the smaller, more modest "Comet" goldfish that owners feed to their larger, tropical fish.

Zuck.

To do that, inspectors have to visit each and every farm that applies for the PCO label. They have to "walk the farm and check for overall soil erosion, crop health, look at the cows, examine the buffers," and other things, Zuck noted.

In the end, the recordkeeping and other processes are often similar to standard records. All the work is done in an effort to preserve the integrity of the organic label.

For growers who worry about having all the paperwork ready, Zuck assured about 85 producers who attended the workshop and seminar that you "don't have to have everything 100 percent ready when we get there, so that's less stress for you," she said.

Growers must pay a fee, depending on overall organic sales, and must be certified on an annual basis to sell their organically produced items, which can command significantly better dollars at the wholesale and retail levels.

To be certified, producers must prevent the application or use of prohibited materials, including pesticides, nonorganic fertilizers, hydrated lime, ground up wallboard for gypsum, and various livestock health materials.

Producers must also meet approved crop rotations and have a plan for rotation.

They must also have a plan to improve and maintain soil organic material and overall tilth.

Producers must also consider the number of feet of buffer area near roads, which are exposed to prohibited pesticides, and nonorganic neighboring farms.

An inspector will visit the farm and tour the fields and check out the buildings, "even those not used for the product," said Zuck. The inspector will look at the crops to see how healthy they are.

"We can't look over your shoulder all the time to see if you have prohibited materials," said Zuck. Much of what they count on is the good faith of the applicants.

However, for those caring for animals in an organic system, if there is an emergency where the animal's life is compromised, then the producer can use the material.

The Organic Materials Review Institute (OMRI) provides lists of allowed and prohibited substances. In the end, after the process is approved, producers must have on their label "Certified By Pennsylvania Certified Organic" below or near the name or address of the last operation that produced the product.

Zuck pointed to one farmer who had a pallet of unapproved fertilizer in a shed. Fortunately, the producer was able to document that the material was registered to an uncle.

Producers must show good faith in trying to use organic inputs, from seeds to fertilizers, and animal health products as well. Every attempt must be made to ensure the organically produced label, including use of transplants and many grower materials.

The integrity must be maintained to ensure consumer confidence. Zuck pointed out a case where a large-scale Georgia broiler grower was allowed to label organic chicken that was not in fact managed organically.

USDA has the power to enforce material sold in stores that is labeled organic or sold as organic that isn't. Retailers can face fines of $10,000 and up to five years in jail for violations.

Farms that want to try to "prequalify" as organic farms can't do so because inspectors are not allowed, according to USDA, to tell producers how to overcome barriers to certification.

Seed must be untreated, with the presence of no genetically modified organisms (GMOs). Growers must attempt to go after seeds and seedstock material that is organically certified. Treated seed, usually sprayed with a fungicide, noted Zuck, is "not allowed in any way or under any circumstances."

Pennsylvania Certified Organic Association staff and board members gathered in Bird In Hand in early March. Front, from left, Penny Sandoval, certification director; Ned MacArthur, secretary; and Sabine Carey, certification assistant. During a special workshop for organic crop growers, including vegetable and fruit producers, growers from Indiana, Schuylkill, Berks, Dauphin, Lancaster, Perry, Lehigh, and Chester counties gathered to review the certification process with Sabine Carey, PCO certification assistant.

As one grower from Perry County pointed out, "It's the little things that are not there that are important," focusing on the importance of micronutrients to good organic soil health.

Carey pointed out the OMRI products list overview and went over various forms, including the field and pasture records worksheet and organic system plan general information.

Carey pointed out the following to about two dozen growers who attended:

- Growers need to look for organic seeds, including organic inoculants.
- Look for non-GMO seed, and use only seed bred through traditional hybrid methods.
- Organic seedlings should have records of where they were purchased.
- Have a soil fertility and erosion plan in place.
- Watch application of composted manures to ensure they are applied to prevent human consumption on final product.
- Have water diversion and buffer systems in place.
- Crop rotational plans are critical.
- Weed management plans are critical.
- Pest management plans must include pest control adviser and scouting information.
- Water quality is critical, and water testing is essential.
- Maintain boundary integrity, especially if nonorganic neighbors use Bt and GMO crops.
- Producers need to keep track of split and parallel production, ensure equipment is not contamination with inorganic material, and crops are stored properly to prevent contamination.
- Record keeping, including field maps, activity logs, and historical documents, remains critical.

Last year, according to Leslie Zuck, PCO executive director, 251 farmers and processors were certified with the PCO label, including 84 dairy, 100 produce and orchard growers, and more than 100 crop farms. About 35-40 food processors and feed mills were PCO certified.

According to Zuck, there are plans to have two meetings per year for PCO updates and reviews, including one in the eastern half of the state in Lancaster County and one in the western half.

Future Of Nursery Industry May Lie In A Greenhouse

COLUMBUS, Ohio — On the Ohio State University agricultural campus sits two new buildings that university horticulturists are banking will change the face of nursery stock production in Ohio.

With roll-up end walls and sidewalls and plastic curtains for a roof, the buildings look anything but a typical greenhouse. But the structures, known as retractable roof greenhouses, have helped nursery operations in the south, southeast, and Pacific Northwest become more profitable and efficient, and has increased the industries' sustainability. Hannah Mathers is helping Ohio nursery growers to do the same.

"Retractable roof greenhouses make a lot of sense for container and nursery stock production," said Mathers, an Ohio State University nursery and landscape specialist. "It gives you the flexibility of allowing the building to be a greenhouse or an outdoor environment. Sometimes you want your material in a greenhouse and other times you don't."

Construction of the buildings, one with a flat-roof and the other with a peaked-roof, began last summer with the help of a $10,000 grant from the Ohio Nursery and Landscape Association. The retractable roof greenhouses are the first of their kind to be used for nursery production in the Midwest.

The idea of natural ventilation is the driving innovation behind retractable roof greenhouses. The design allows a grower to retract up to 90 percent of the roof, guaranteeing that temperatures never rise above ambient. The ability to retract the roof and roll-up the sides allows for better temperature and humidity control and improved wind and light conditions.

Stephen Myers, chairman of Ohio State's department of horticulture and crop science, said retractable roof greenhouses would not only benefit the nursery industry, but would also be useful in other agricultural areas.

"It think the application of retractable roof greenhouses will expand into other crop industries like vegetables and fruit, as well as interfacing with pest management programs," said Meyers. "For example, hail is a problem for crops. You can just hit a button and close the roof. If birds are a problem with cherry trees, close the roof. If it's too hot, close the roof. You can really do a lot of things with it that can be to a grower's advantage."

The justification of retractable roof greenhouses in Ohio is already being met with some skepticism in the nursery industry, but Mathers is looking to change public opinion by demonstrating their usefulness, efficiency, and affordability through a series of research studies.

One that is generating the most attention is a project funded by a $58,000 16-month USDA/Ohio Department of Agriculture (USDA/ODA) Specialty Crop Block grant to develop an Ohio tree liner production system. Mathers and Dan Struve, an Ohio State horticulturist, are the authors of the grant and applied with the Ohio Nursery and Landscape Association to obtain the USDA/ODA funding.

The study analyzes the feasibility of growing tree seedlings to "whip" height — four to eight feet tall and a ½ inch to ¾ inch in diameter — to be sold as tree stock to other nurseries in Ohio and other parts of the nation. The Ohio nursery industry does not grow its own whips because the growing season is too short. Nurseries obtain whips from the Pacific Northwest,

'Overthinning' Not A Word To Peach Orchardists

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Listen to orchard managers sometimes. One thing you learn: you can never take too many peaches off during thinning.

According to Ken Kauffman, who maintains about 35 acres of peaches in Bird In Hand, "I would suggest to the novice grower the word 'overthin' should not be in his vocabulary."

As long as a "3-inch peach is irresistible to a housewife or tourist," he said, "then thin (the peach trees) hard."

Kauffman spoke along with four other growers at a panel on peach thinning in early February during the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Convention at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

Peach thinning, according to David Benner, El Vista Orchards, Fairfield, is a large expense, "and nobody looks forward to doing it." Benner noted the importance of proper employee training as they go and noted that he is willing to spend money to get proper thinning.

Dr. Kathryn Taylor, University of Georgia, provided a research update at the convention.

Proper fruit tree is critical, according to Doug Zee, Zee Orchards, who grows his own label of "Zee Best Orchards" in New Jersey. Zee, who farms 500 acres in Gloucester County, said growers should always plant "medium to large" varieties.

"If it's not going to be a large peach, don't plant it," Zee told those who attended the conference. "If it's only a medium peach, don't plant the thing."

Zee noted the importance of "getting fertilizer for the tree" early on, one of the cheapest things you can do, he noted. "Have (nutrients) ready for the tree when it is blooming."

Zee also spoke about his experience with ammonium thiosulfate, at a rate of 3.5 to 4 gallons per acre, as a bloom thinner. He cautioned growers to avoid cold, wet weather when applying the chemical thinner.

Mark Rice manages 800-900 acres of orchards, with about 50 acres in peaches. Rice lost about 100 acres to plum pox virus in 2001. What he grows is sold to Rice Fruit Company for packing.

Rice noted that he begins thinning the last week of May and watches carefully to see what's on the tree. Early June is also a good period to thin.

"Guys clap their hands when they see the thinner coming out of the barn," noted Ken Kauffman of Kauffman's Fruit Farm. A mechanical thinner, purchased in 1993, knocks off about 40-50 percent of the blossoms.

When it comes to hand thinning, Kauffman noted that waiting until the June drop is too late. He asks the thinning crew for about 10 inches between blossoms. "Ask for 10 inches of space between fruit, you'll get maybe 8 inches," Kauffman noted.

Kauffman said the crew thins the early varieties twice. Early and complete thinning is a must for early varieties.

Zee uses a trunk shaker for the larger trees. A trunk shaker costs about 95 cents a tree in labor costs, and with a special mechanical thinner, a crew can do it for about 50 cents per tree.

Bob Best, grower from Hackettstown, N.J., with 15 acres in orchards, said managers have to go out in the orchards and "know what's going on. You have to know your varieties, too."

Rice noted that last summer the orchard used a cherry shaker to help thin the trees.

Best used a chemical thinner. He went up one night when the peaches were at 90 percent bloom and put the material on at a 6-quart rate.

"I am very happy evaluating how it affects each variety," Best said. "It affects each variety differently."

Best outlined several varieties. Thinner worked well on several of them, including excellent results on Harmony, in big demand at the retail level, and on PF-5, an early variety. "It clobbered them," he said. "I wouldn't hesitate to do it again."

"The secret is to get as much off the tree before pit hardening as you can," Zee noted.

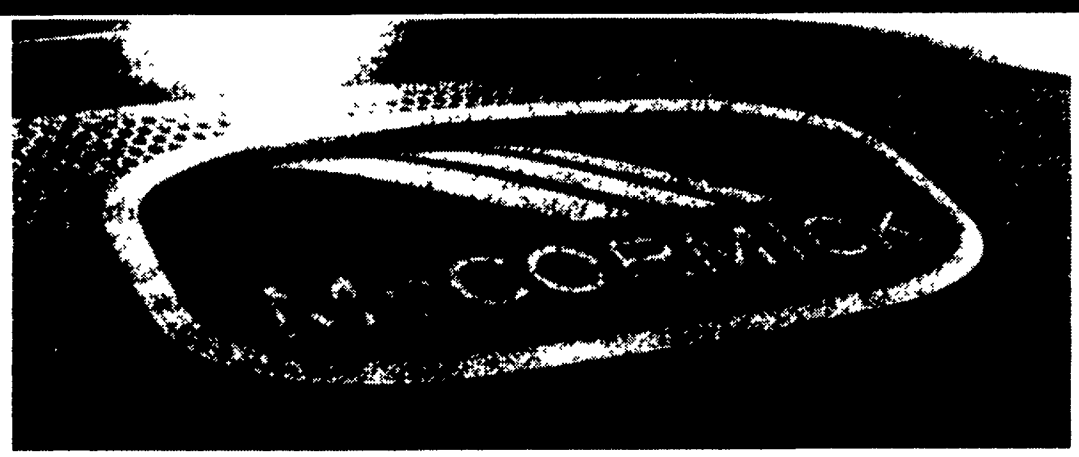
BINKLEY & HURST BROS. INC. OFFERS COMPACT YET POWER ORCHARD & VINEYARD



The McCormick F Series tractors (54-93 engine hp) engineered specifically for vineyard and orchard operations where compact design, maneuverability, power and stability are essential.

The F series' model variations include low clearance, long wheel base and wide wheel base options as well as deluxe cab or ROPS configurations to fit any production requirements. All models are powered by Perkins new-generation 3- and 4- cylinder engines. F series tractors feature a smooth, simple speed shuttle transmission with available creep and underdrive options, to provide maximum control.

Additional features:

- Hydraulic controlled PTO lever
- Integral Braking System (IBS)
- 55-degree turning angle
- Quiet cab for operator comfort
- L/XL/GE variations available (Wider Tractor / Long Wheelbase / Ground Effects-Low Profile)

Future Of Nursery Industry

mainly Oregon, then grow them on a larger stock.

"Many larger nurseries in Ohio export 70 percent of what they grow in nursery stock. Ohio is well positioned geographically to increase its market. It's a shipping hub," said Mathers.

Ohio growers import approximately $14 million worth of tree liners from the West annually at an average cost of $15 per liner. It is estimated that Oregon liner sales into Ohio and surrounding states total $50 million a year.

"Ohio growers can capture that $50 million market, and that's just a conservative estimate, and they can do it with retractable roof greenhouses," said Mathers.

She said the gold mine with using retractable roof greenhouses in Ohio tree liner production is that a grower can extend the growing season. Oregon's growing season is 225 days, while Ohio's is only 156 days. "All we are looking to make up is 75 days," said Mathers. "Using retractable roof greenhouses, we can start with growth in March rather than waiting until June. There's the 75 days made up for right there."

Mathers said with retractable roof greenhouses, seedlings can be grown into whips under full cover through fall, winter, and early spring and, when conditions become more favorable, retract the roofs and/or walls and turn the nursery stock into a commercial production site without ever having to move the trees.

Such convenience, said Mathers, decreases labor and equipment costs. The greenhouses are also affordable to build, costing only $1 a foot for flat-roof houses and $3 foot for peaked-roof houses. "When the average price of a liner is going for $15, it makes economical sense to build a retractable roof greenhouse," said Mathers. "There is a considerable profit to be made here and the thing that many growers don't realize is that it's doable."

One argument behind the use of retractable roof greenhouses in Ohio is whether or not they'll stand up to the state's wintry conditions. "Whether the roofs will stand up to snow and ice is something we won't know until we try it. During winter I'd like to think that we'd just retract the roof and let the snow cover the stock, providing insulation during winter — much like you would find in a natural environment," said Mathers.

The researchers are working with red oak, red maple, yellow wood, and magnolia seedlings and are hoping to have their first whips by this spring.

The wholesale nursery industry in Ohio is worth about $580 million. The landscape, garden center, and nursery sectors combined are worth approximately $2.5 billion annually. Nursery production is estimated to be the fourth largest agricultural industry in Ohio, behind corn, soybeans, and dairy.

'Overthinning' Not A Word

Best. "You have to do it yourself and keep real good data, observe them. It will be a help — not a cure."

At the conference, Dr. Kathryn Taylor, Department of Horticulture, University of Georgia, spoke about the work on new and existing peach varieties in the state.

Georgia peach production, Taylor noted, peaked in the 1920s, then declined through the next six decades. The lowest point came in the 1990s, especially with the terrible freeze in 1996. "That had a tremendous impact on the survivability of growers," said Taylor.

Consolidations have left the industry in the hands of seven growers/packers, representing 96 percent of the state's peach tree acreage.

Since 1999, there has been some growth in the state's peach industry. No major frosts have occurred, said Taylor. Some of the issues growers have had to face include the Guest Worker and H2-A Program with migrant workers, adopting management expert systems, and looking at improved varieties.

The peach industry in Georgia is centered in the town of Fort Valley in Peach County, Georgia. Georgia has a very complex plum pox virus testing program and monitors thousands of samples yearly.

Research is looking at peaches for wholesale measuring 2.5-2.75 inches in width, with a good balance of acids and sugars, proper coloring, high soluble solids (14 percent), improved disease resistance, and other factors. Varieties include Gulfprince, Gulfking, Gulfcrest, Fireprince, Flameprince, and others.

The Georgia Peach Council is located at P.O. Box 1031, Fort Valley, GA 31030. Taylor noted the work of the council in improving the viability of peach growing for individual growers and marketers in the state.

This year, the state is planting another 1,500 acres, which equates to about 165,000 trees using new orchard management systems and technologies.

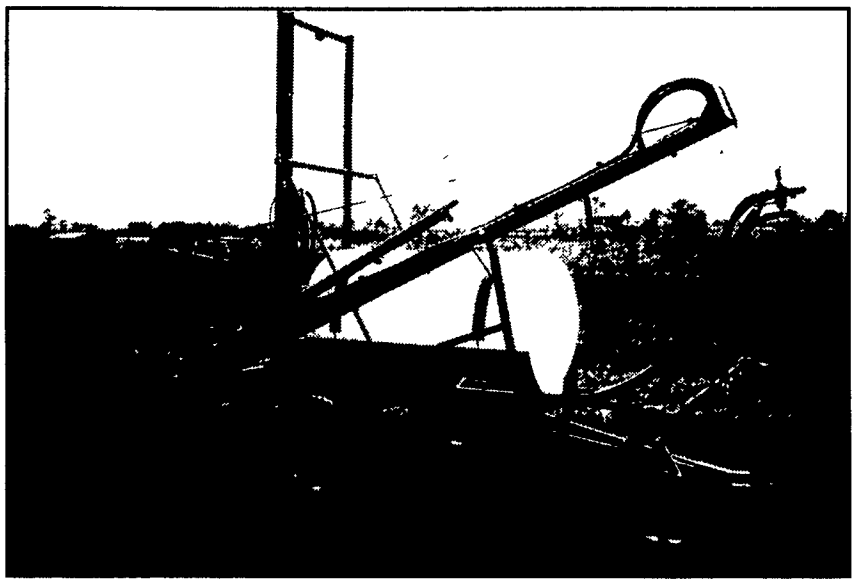
High Pressure Produce Sprayers
Trailer or 3 Pt. Hitch Models



Zimmerman's manufactures several different model sprayers designed for produce spraying. They are built for the small farmer that cannot justify a large expensive sprayer. Trailer models are available with a 200 or 300 gallon tank and 3pt hitch models with a 110, 150, 200 or 300 gallon tank. The 25' single sided boom has 7' plus clearance and requires a minimal amount of drive rows because of the wide span. It also has a hydraulic cylinder that allows the operator to level the boom from the tractor seat. A Hypro high pressure diaphragm provides up to 290 p.s.i. and non-drip nozzle bodies keep chemical loss minimal. Stop or call Zimmerman's today to see how we can help you with your spraying needs and improve your profit margin.

Underwater Lights Enhance Water Garden's Nighttime Beauty

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Underwater lights in ponds can enhance the aesthetics of something already beautiful, according to an industry expert.

Underwater lights "transfer your pond at night," said James Pontz, Pontz Landscape Service, Lancaster.

Pontz spoke about his experience with low-voltage underwater lighting to about 50 members and guests of the Aqua-terra Club of Central Pennsylvania in March at the West Lancaster Fire Company.

Pontz, president of Pontz Landscape Service, noted Aquascape Designs, Batavia, Ill. manufactures pond equipment. The lighting systems Pontz uses in water garden designs are by "Nightscaping" By Loran Company, Redlands, Calif.

(Pontz is sponsoring the fifth annual Water Garden Twilight Tour on Saturday, June 21, from 6 p.m.-10 p.m. at a dozen water gardens in Lancaster County. Proceeds benefit the Chester E. Pontz Memorial Scholarship Fund.) Underwater lighting can do a lot to increase the natural beauty of a water garden. Earlier types of lighting were conceived for the water gardener about 16 years ago. Now, about 75 companies in the U.S. make some type of low-voltage lights, Pontz said.

The lights are available in different shapes and sizes. Most are tube-enclosed, water-sealed, and are placed in such a way to conceal the fixture. "Just the front of the light is showing" in the water, noted Pontz.

One system is "envelope lighting" under water flows. It throws light from behind the falls. The single tube light is a simple 10-watt bulb, but "it throws a lot of light out," said Pontz.

The other is a lily pad lighter with a light tube attached to the underside of a lifelike lily leaf. The lightweight cord can allow the leaf to float. The 10-watt bulb apparatus costs about $45 retail.

Pontz provided a slideshow detailing how lights are placed in such a way as to enhance the beauty of several ponds.

A transformer takes a typical house current down to 12 volts, similar to a car battery. The voltage is low enough that it is completely safe in water.

As for designs on the underwater lights, "people are trying to 'outdesign' the next guy," said Pontz. The water gardening and lighting business is a "very fast-growing, very popular hobby" for gardeners.

Extensive lighting in the ponds and around the water garden area "takes a lot of time," Pontz said. "You have to take that into consideration. But as for landscape lights, you name it, they have it."

Some designs can be complex and incorporate many different fixtures, with as many as 30 different light bulbs ranging from 5 to 50 watts.

In the end, underwater lighting "offers you a lot of possibilities, not only for your pond, but for your whole yard. And the low-voltage lighting is very safe. You can walk in the pond and feel, at most (if not properly installed) only a tingling sensation."

Aqua-terra Club of Central Pennsylvania has about 100 members on the mailing list. The club, which began in September last year, meets about every other month.

The estate itself includes 1.25 million gallons of water.

Another meeting of the club is scheduled Tuesday, May 20 at the residence of Jeff Mull, Landisville. For more information, contact either club cosponsor James Pontz at (717) 285-3510 or Tom Ziegler, Ziegler's Greenhouse and Aquatic Nursery, (717) 285-4998. The club's address is P.O. Box 95, Mountville, PA 17554.

Pa. 2002 Aquaculture Census

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania producers of aquaculture products reported sales totaling $9.1 million in a census of aquaculture conducted in January 2003 by the Pennsylvania office of the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Sales of food fish comprised 81 percent of the total sales with the remainder of the sales made up of sport and game fish, baitfish, crustaceans, mollusks, ornamental fish, and other animal aquaculture (tadpoles, frogs, trout eggs, etc.).

UNDERSTANDING YOUR CUSTOMER'S PERCEIVED RISK

John Berry
Penn State
Marketing Agent

Perceived risk is that level of risk a consumer believes exists regarding the purchase of a specific product from a specific retailer, whether or not that belief is actually correct.

In order to make a sale, you must overcome the customer's perceived risk. The more important the purchase is to the customer, the greater the perceived risk. As an illustration, if a customer is considering buying sweet corn for dinner tonight, the perceived risk is relatively low. If they are buying corn because the boss is coming over for dinner, the perceived risk goes up.

Perceived risks are also greater if the customer has not dealt with you as a retailer before. New or unbranded items, such as produce, also raise perceived risk. As the cost of an item goes up, so does the perceived risk. Being on a tight budget, having little experience in purchasing the item, and having many alternatives to chose from all raise perceived risk.

There are six types of perceived risk:

• Functional. Will the product perform as I expect? If the customer is buying sweet corn, this means, "Will this corn be as good as what I remember from last year or what I had last week?" If the customer is buying petunias, the risk is, "Will they make my garden look the way I want it to look?"

• Physical. Can the product hurt me, my children, or my pets? The use of pesticides in the production of food crops is frequently the concern here, but ornamentals that bear poisonous fruit can also be a concern.

• Social. What will my peers think? If customers are buying sweet corn to eat in the privacy of their home, the risk here is low. If they buy petunias and plant them in the front yard and petunias are socially out this year, it's like having a big sign in your yard for five months saying, "geek lives here."

• Psychological. Am I doing the right thing? This can be a strong motivator in plant sales for the environmentally concerned or an impossible obstacle for the truly paranoid.

• Financial. Can I afford the purchase? This is not a major problem for most people buying sweet corn or petunias. It is a major obstacle for customers considering a specimen plant or flowering trees that may cost $80 to $200.

• Time. How much time and effort may I expend to make this purchase? This may be the greatest perceived risk for the plant and produce retailer to overcome. Picture your potential customer in their car thinking, "Do I want to pull into that crowded parking lot? Do I want to stand in that line for a dozen ears of corn?" This is scary! Many of the stands I visit fail to overcome this perceived risk. Their potential customers drive by.

What do you do to overcome perceived risk? You encounter examples every day. Why is a new car guaranteed for three years or 36,000 miles? This guarantee helps overcome the customer's functional perceived risk. Why does the MacDonald's sign say billions and billions sold? It reassures the customers that the food will taste like they expect it to, it won't hurt them, and it's socially acceptable.

The customer feels that he or she must be doing the right thing, because everyone else is doing it, too. Why do supermarkets have express checkouts? These special facilities make the customer think that the time risk is low.

In our roadside stands and garden centers, we can guarantee produce quality or the survival of costly perennials. We can reassure the customer our produce is fresh and pesticide free or picked today. We can give personal endorsements, like a sign that says 'Sweet Corn-Best of the Season" or "Yellow Tomatoes-Bill's Favorite." We can display information about the nutritional value of fruits and vegetables or the environmental value of planting a tree or flowers.

Most of all, we can watch for the hesitant customers and give them an encouraging word. After all, they are only concerned about perceived risks.

Ponds Meet Small Farm Needs

Jim Ochterski
Schuyler County
Extension Educator

Ponds can provide many benefits to small farms in New York if properly built and maintained. Many small-farm operators struggle with the demands of production coupled with limited time because of off-farm employment. By prioritizing the maintenance aspects of ponds, and preventing problems before they start, small farm operators can maintain a safe, clean, and dependable supply of water for agriculture uses and recreation. This article provides guidelines for agriculture uses of ponds on small farms — the recommendations apply to all sizes and types of agriculture operations.

Irrigation

Farm ponds are now an important source of irrigation water, particularly for small farms with permanent crops such as brambles, fruit trees, trellised fruits, and nurseries. Field crops and vegetables can also be irrigated with pond water during dry seasons. Irrigation is critical to meeting high yield goals and should be employed to meet the crop's peak water use rate. Pond capacity must be adequate to meet crop requirements. Water requirements vary by crop, season, and weather conditions. Small farm operators should plan on applying water in the most critical stages of production to ensure high yield while retaining adequate supply in the pond.

For many fruits and vegetables, bud stage and fruit enlargement are priority irrigation stages. In assessing a pond's potential as a source of water for irrigation, determine the actual dimensions of the pond: length, width, and average depth. Multiply these numbers to determine the rough volume of the pond in cubic feet; to convert to gallons, multiply by 7.5.

The pond should have a history of maintaining consistent water depth through the summer. Ponds whose levels fluctuate considerably will require an irrigation intake that can be adjusted to match water levels. The required storage capacity of a pond used for irrigation depends on water requirements of the crops to be irrigated, rainfall expected during the growing season, efficiency of the irrigation system, losses because of evaporation and seepage, and the expected inflow to the pond.

The second component of irrigation assessment is recharge. Ponds whose levels fluctuate considerably are typically sourced by runoff, rather than springs. Monitor the pond after heavy rainfall for sediments, cloudiness, and silt. These particles provide evidence of an unstable recharge process that may not be dependable over time. Runoff entering the pond should be free from road surface contaminants, manure, septic effluent, and floating debris.

Nutrients entering the pond from runoff or groundwater can be detected with a water test or by excessive growth of algae and weeds. Proper site selection for new irrigation source ponds is essential. Test pits will provide the most direct evidence of the water storage capacity of a particular site. Additional information can be derived from topographic maps, soil surveys, aerial photos, and onsite observations. These products and services are often available from local NRCS or Soil and Water Conservation District offices.

Pond water used for irrigation must be filtered to prevent clogging by suspended particles, plants, and chemical precipitates, particularly in trickle irrigation systems. An irrigation pond should be at least 10 feet deep to create a zone halfway between the surface and silty bottom to draw in water that is relatively contaminant free. Herbicides used for aquatic weed control pose a hazard to plants being irrigated from the same source of water. Follow label restrictions on aquatic herbicides and consider using non-chemical methods for aquatic weed control in irrigation ponds.

Field And Orchard Spraying

Ponds can be used as a source of water to mix chemicals for crop protection. The amount of water needed for spraying is small, but it must be available when needed.

If possible, develop a consistent method of conveying water from the pond to the spray tank. A series of check valves will prevent unintentional contamination of pond water while a tank is being filled. Pond water is not recommended as wash water for tanks because of runoff and bacterial contamination of the equipment and hoses.

Recreation

There are many nonagriculture uses of ponds, including swimming, boating, fishing, nature exploration, and aesthetics. The view of a well-maintained pond can be pleasing for non-farm neighbors and your community. The recreational uses of a farm pond must be compatible with agriculture uses.

Identify your goals for the pond before making decisions that will compromise other uses. Some small farms gain supplemental income by providing fee access to ponds for

Recycling Agricultural Plastics: New Report Encourages Alternatives To Burning, Burying, Dumping

Lois Levitan
Environmental Risk Analysis Program
Cornell University

"Recycling Agricultural Plastics In New York State" is a new 30-page report about recycling options for agricultural plastics. It addresses concerns about the environmental health effects and other liabilities of burning, burying, or dumping plastic wastes on farms by describing off-farm recycling and re-processing alternatives.

Plastics are being used increasingly in all sectors of agriculture. Plastic products are being substituted for the longer lasting materials previously used because they often cost less and improve production efficiency (e.g., plastic silage bags result in better feed quality).

However, as with many throwaway products, disposal is a problem. Surveys indicate that more than half the agricultural plastics in New York State are disposed of by open burning, which releases high levels of polluting emissions. Most of the remainder is buried or dumped on-farm. Emissions from open burning are much greater than from controlled incineration and these emissions pose risks to human health.

"Recycling Agricultural Plastics In New York State" identifies major uses of plastics on New York State farms, recycling technologies that are viable or that may be realistic in the near future, technical and infrastructural issues, and processes, agencies, and individuals involved. It addresses concerns of the agricultural, environmental protection, public health, and economic development communities.

The report was written by Lois Levitan and Ana Barros of Cornell University's Environmental Risk Analysis Program. The full report, a one-page executive summary, a bibliography with hyperlinks to full text of all references, and a photo gallery of agricultural plastic uses and recycling equipment is posted to the Website of the Cornell Environmental Risk Analysis Program: http://www.cfe.cornell.edu/erap/C&ER, or call (607) 255-4765 to order a print copy.

recreational purposes. This is a sound practice, but has liability and maintenance obligations to consider.

Generally, pond owners must eliminate and warn against hazards around a pond. This might include fencing off pond edges, supplying rescue devices, and establishing regular hours and rules of access. Recreational ponds used for income should be dedicated solely to that purpose and thus are not available for agriculture uses.

Fulton Farm

tinue to pick up root crops and leafy greenhouse vegetables during the winter months as well.

The CSA shares cover about 75 percent of farm expenses, with extra crops going to the dining hall at Wilson College and the local farmers' market.

Since CSA members are in effect buying produce in bulk, the farm is often able to beat retail prices by 10 to 20 percent.

The farm employs five full-time workers year-round, and recruits some extra part-time help from college students and interns. Some of the CSA members also help on the farm. The goal is to supply a total of 135 CSA members during growing season, according to Steiman.

The farm also serves as an educational venue for students taking environmental courses at Wilson College. Steiman has even taught a physical education class on the farm called "Gardening for Fitness and Pleasure."

Two passive-solar greenhouses, seedling hotbeds warmed with composting horse manure, and a strong commitment to innovative growing methods are keys to the operation.

The CSA was started eight years ago by Steve Moore, now the resident farmer at Sonnewald's Natural Foods, Spring Grove, York County.

Moore built the first greenhouse on Fulton Farm. He happily made use of the convenient and abundant supply of horse manure from Wilson College's equine program to enrich the soil in the greenhouse and seven acres of produce fields.

Composted horse manure is still the major fertilizer on the farm, along with the green manures from cover crops and the occasional application of lime.

Steiman avoids using plastic mulch for weed control, partly because of his concerns about disposing of the plastic at the end of each season. Another reason is that he loves fine-tuning cover crop systems to find the best combination for suppressing weeds and building up the soil.

Steiman is conducting an experiment testing weed control and moisture-conserving properties in cover crop systems for vegetable production. The mix of annual rye and hairy vetch pictured here will be rolled down in early summer. Steiman will then plant tomatoes in the residue mulch.

"Cover crops are kind of my hobby," he said.

Steiman is conducting an experiment through a grant from SARE (USDA's Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education program) on the effectiveness of a combination of annual rye and hairy vetch cover crop.

He sowed the rye and vetch together in test plots last fall. When the two crops near maturity in early summer, he will roll them down and plant no-till tomatoes directly in the mulch.

Steiman hopes the system will serve multiple purposes.

"Ideally, this will keep the weeds down, keep moisture in, and keep the fruit drier," he said.

Steiman's usual method has been to mow a cover crop of rye twice in spring and early summer, then chisel plow and disc harrow the field before planting tomatoes.

The new no-till cover-cropping approach should conserve time, fuel, and organic manner, according to Steiman. But the key to success will lie in how well the system controls weeds in the tomatoes.

"I'm always trying to figure which tools will be easier on the soil and get the job done more effectively," he said. "If it can keep the weeds down, it's a good system."

CSA member Donna Nordin of Fayetteville takes a walk with her children, Bailey and Leo, through one of the greenhouses on Fulton Farm. "It's great here," Nordin said. "We eat a lot more vegetables since we get them every week."

Steiman will also be applying the new method to a crop of winter squash this season.

Other cover crops Fulton Farm uses with success include wheat, oats, crimson clover, and Austrian winter pea.

These hens provide pastured-poultry eggs to CSA customers as well as educational opportunities to students and farm visitors. Chicken breeds include Speckled Sussex (held here by Steiman), Rhode Island Red, Barred Rock, and Silky. The new portable henhouse is in back.

Beneficial insect populations are encouraged on the farm. In addition to naturally-found types, such as aphid-loving lady bugs, Steiman also purchases some species for targeting other problem pests. Pediobious wasps, for example, "worked really well" last year in controlling Mexican bean beetles in the green bean crop, he said. The wasps lay eggs in the larvae of the bean beetle and effectively parasitize them.

A $100 purchase of the parasitic wasps did a good job controlling the bean beetles in about 3,000 row feet of green beans, Steiman said.

In another example of its commitment to environmentally-friendly production, Fulton Farm is gearing up to make biodiesel fuel from used vegetable oil from the kitchen at Wilson College.

With the help of an engineer friend and a conical tank equipped with a circulating pump, Steiman will be able to produce 50 gallons of the renewable fuel in a day's time. The process uses methanol and a small amount of lye to separate glycerol and other substances from the vegetable oil, leaving pure biodiesel.

He plans to use the fuel to power the farm's irrigation pump, and will consider putting additional diesel-powered equipment to use on the farm. If the biodiesel project proves successful, Steiman said he would consider purchasing a diesel car, as well as selling the fuel to neighboring farmers, truckers, and diesel vehicle owners.

In another new project, Steiman built a portable hen house this winter using the chassis of an old wagon purchased locally for $10. He has started a flock of about 20 layers, including Rhode Island Reds, Barred Rocks, Speckled Sussex, and Silkies. The pastured birds provide a learning experience for farm visitors and also some eggs for CSA members to take home with their veggies.

While the CSA concept fosters strong customer loyalty and creates an efficient method for distributing produce, Steiman said the system also has its challenges, especially when the regular season rolls around in late April.

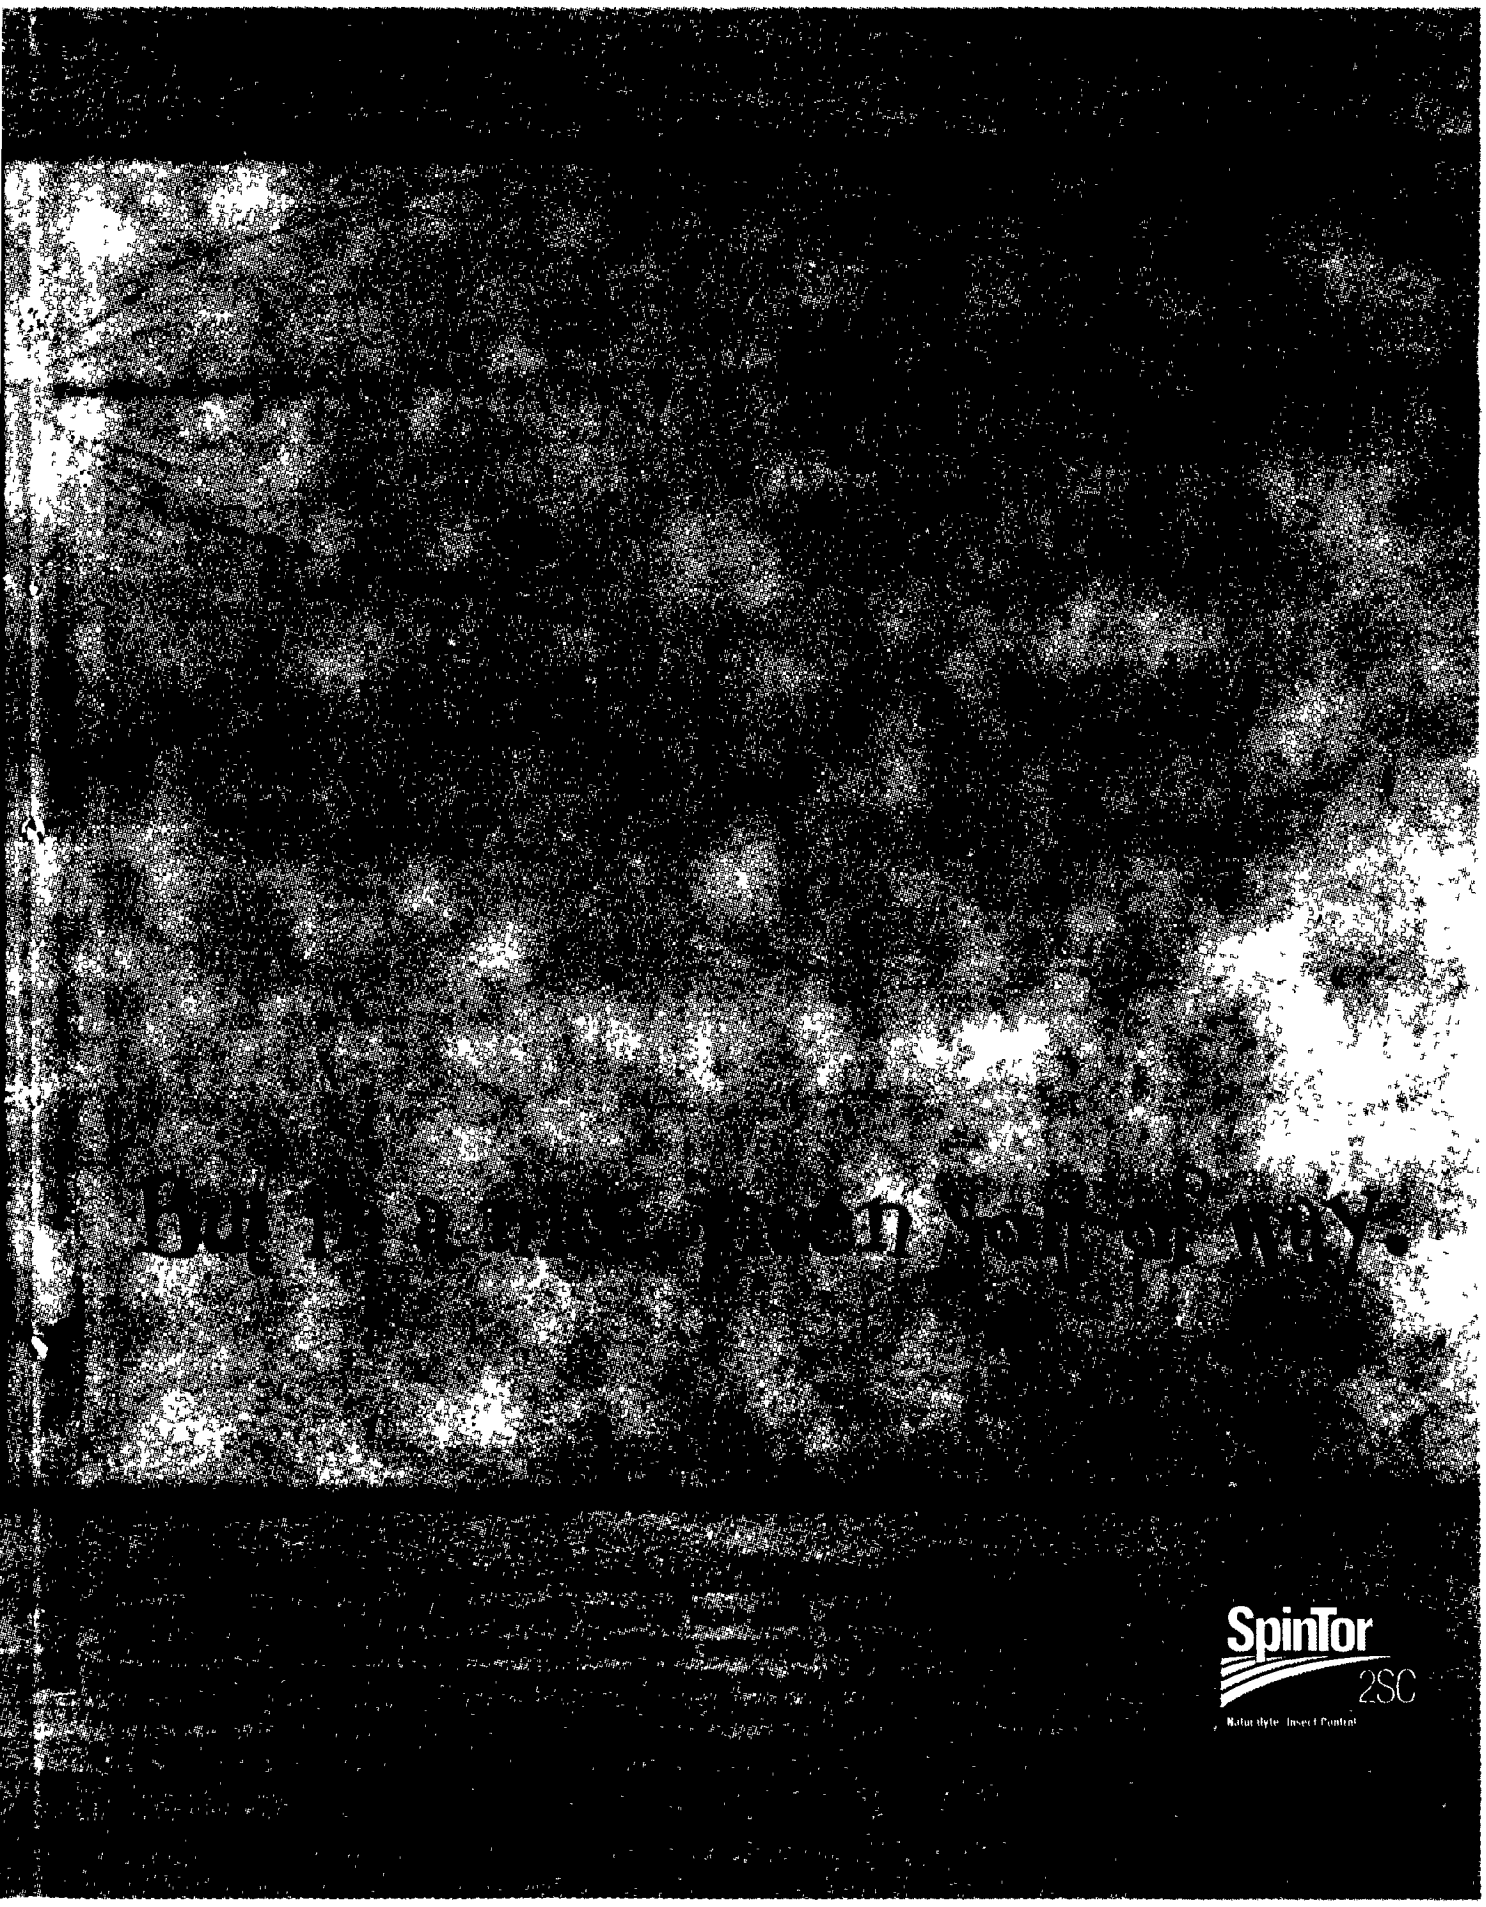
"The tricky thing with a CSA is that we have to pick a start date and have everything come together all at once," Steiman said on the first day of the regular CSA season. "The spinach was ready two weeks ago and the radishes are ready now."

Regardless of the timing glitches, CSA members arrived through the afternoon to fill bags and baskets with their weekly share of spring onions, spinach, mixed greens, tat soi, and white icicle radishes.

As the season progresses, their choices will widen to include carrots, peas, broccoli, strawberries, rasberries, cabbages, beets, tomatoes, sweet corn, beans, melons, cucumbers, garlic, pumpkins, potatoes, winter squash, and onions.

Composting horse manure in the trough underneath the seedlings provides heat to grow the young plants in winter and early spring.

Waste fryer oil from the kitchen at Wilson College is converted into biodiesel. The fuel in this sample can be seen at the top of the jar, above the glycerol on the bottom layer. Steiman plans to use the fuel to power the farm's irrigation pump as well as other uses on the farm.



Have A Place For A Pond?

ing more time at their home" and are looking to improve their home and yards for when they come job from job stresses.

Consequently, Smith recommends picking a spot "close to the house, so you can enjoy it more.

The area should also have at least six hours of sunlight a day and not a lot of tree cover close so debris such as leaves and twigs will not be as much of a problem.

The pond should also be located to a source of electricity, which is necessary to power the pump, lighting, or perhaps an ultraviolet clarifier, which kills algae with ultraviolet radiation from the bulb.

Anyone considering installing a pond will have to also think about what depth the pond should be, since some townships will require a fence for a pond more than three feet deep.

Fish, however, "winter more reliably in water at least 30 inches deep," said Smith.

Also, "bear in mind what will it fit into your landscape," he said. "If you have a perennial, colonial-type garden, a pond with Japanese features will not necessarily be appropriate."

Money is another consideration. An on-deck, 35-gallon pond with the filter and fountain will run about $100.

The average pond, however, is six foot by six foot and holds 500 gallons of water, estimates Smith. This setup runs about $1,000 complete with fish, plants, a pump, liner, and filter.

Although preform ponds are available, liners are actually easier and more durable. Made of heavy-gauge rubber, the liners are flexible and not affected by ultraviolet light.

"It conforms to any shape you dig, and can be molded around a rock or root," he said. Liners also come with a 20-year warranty for holes.

Liners, which come in precut widths, are about $8 a linear foot.

The smallest is 10-foot wide, although choices range up to 50 feet and lengths to whatever the installer needs.

As for shape, pond owners tend to prefer the kidney or hourglass contours. "There are very few that are perfectly round or perfectly square."

Once the hole is dug, the rest of the pond can be installed in a day or two, said Smith, although "it is best to let it sit for a day or two with the water in it and the pumps running before putting the fish in."

Whereas there are two schools of thought on stones versus a clean pond bottom, said Smith, he recommends not placing stones on the bottom of the pond.

"It is easier to clean, it doesn't hold debris like a rock bottom, it's easier to view fish, and it retains heat better for tropical plants. However, it's a debate among pond-keepers. There are pros and cons to both."

Why Plants?

Smith advises that 60-75 percent of the pond's surface be covered with floating plants such as lilies, water hyacinths, or water lettuce. This helps to shade the pond while the hanging roots absorb nutrients to keep the water clear, he explained.

Additionally, fish nibble at the roots and hanging foliage while they are protected from predators.

Aquatic edge plants — vegetation that lives in six inches of water to boggy, moist soils — include irises, cattails, and rushes. "They give height, additional levels, and color around the ponds," he said. These plants sit in pots on the pond's shelves.

Commercial soils feature chips of baked clay so that the water will not cloud if the pot is disturbed.

Comets, fantails, Shubunkin, and Koi brighten up the waters of many ponds across the county. Prices run from 25 cents for the small golden Comets to $90 for the larger, splashily-colored Koi.

Also, tadpoles and selected species of snails provide clean-up duty for the pond's algae.

They are useful, said Smith, since they help keep the algae under control with minimal use of chemicals.

Customer Interest Growing

Dave Frehafer, turf and supply manager at the Lititz branch of Stauffers of Kissel Hill, has seen customer interest grow in ponds in the 14 years that pond supplies have been available at the store.

"Before that we just had fountains," said Frehafer, "then we started adding aquatic plants and pumps and filters."

Besides bulk liners on the roll, the store also has a larger selection of plants and has a year-round selection of fish.

Frehafer is also a member of the Lancaster Aquarium Club, where a few pond owners are also members.

The liners, said Frehafer, have become heavier duty and have grown as customers began installing larger and larger ponds.

"We've gone from liners 15 to 25 feet wide — we keep having to go to bigger size rolls. Now we have the biggest pond form we can get," he said.

Filters have also had to stretch to keep up with customer demand. "We're carrying filters for 1,000-, 2,000-, and 3,000-gallon ponds," he said. "People started out small, decided they liked it, and added more and larger ponds," according to Frehafer.

The attraction, he said, is the soothing presence of the ponds. "People set up benches around the pond or eat breakfast out beside it," he said.

Lighting may also work to create the mood of the pond. Some owners opt for underwater lighting or lighting around the pond for night observation. There are even tropical night-blooming lilies, he said.

Vividly-hued Koi are bred for their color.

Nick, 3, and Adrianna Spatafora, 2, Lititz, are eager helpers when it comes to feeding fish.

Have A Place For A Pond?

A starter pump and filter kit runs $129 at Stauffers of Kissel Hill.

Winterizing The Pond

After Halloween, once the temperature reaches below 50 degrees on a regular basis, pond owners should begin to prepare their pond for winter.

Frehafer recommends that owners should pull out all the potted plants, clean off the dead foliage, and cut back the healthy foliage. "If plant roots have broken through the pot, repot with aquatic potting soil or heavy grade topsoil," he said. Plants could also be fertilized deep into the soil medium.

While the plants are pulled out, it is a good time to skim the bottom of the pond, he recommends.

Next, put the plants on the bottom of the pond for the winter.

In The Spring

Once temperatures warm up to a consistent 60- or 70-degree range, the plants can be brought to the surface and again checked, the dead foliage removed, split pots replaced, and returned to their shelves to begin growing in the spring sunshine.

Coming off of a winter with slowed metabolisms, the fish should not be fed "until the temperature reaches 55 degrees for at least a week," said Frehafer.

Another worry for pond owners at this time of year are the fish lost over the excep-

PLNA Celebrates Arbor Day

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Landscape & Nursery Association (PLNA) celebrated Arbor Day 2003 by providing evergreen seedlings to Pennsylvania's state government officials.

The celebration was a partnership with State Representative Ron Marsico (District 105-Dauphin County), a former landscape contractor and long-time friend of the industry. Marsico was the prime sponsor of House Resolution 161, which recognized April 25, as Arbor Day.

PLNA secured the evergreen seedlings through generous contributions from three member firms: Abraczinskas Nurseries, Catawissa; Musser Nurseries, Indiana; and Henninger Nursery, Kempton.

The seedlings were packaged and distributed to members of the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, the Pennsylvania Senate, Pennsylvania Governor Ed Rendell, and Pennsylvania Lieutenant Governor Catherine Baker Knoll.

The fish may have adapted to a milder climate during the past three winters, said Frehafer, and the pressures of this winter caused greater-than-usual loss, as customers are reporting.

"We're anticipating that people are going to need more fish than ever this year," he said.

In addition, "in the spring, everybody's pond turns green," said Frehafer. "It's really nothing to worry about."

Pond plants, barely out of their soil with new shoots, do not filter sunshine, which the quick-growing algae takes advantage of. The algae takes over for a period of time until the plants start growing and the water clears.

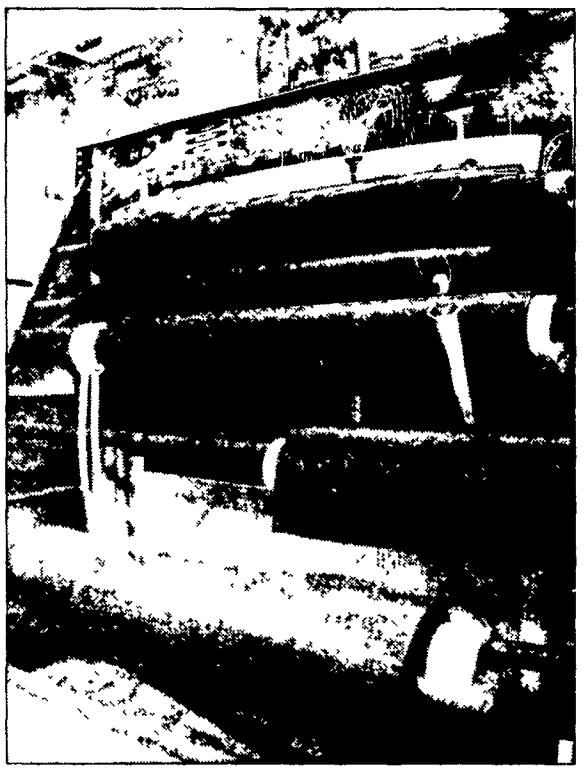
Plants are an integral piece of the pond's ecosystem. Oxygenating plants, for example, provide oxygen, food, and a place to lay eggs for the fish, and use up a lot of nutrients quickly, which inhibits algae growth.

Examples of these "bunch plants" are Anacharis, Cabomba, Millfoil, Hornwort, and Parrot's Feather.

Most of the floating plants are tropical and will need to be purchased each spring. "It's even tough keeping them in the greenhouse over winter," he said.

Frehafer will be organizing a pond tour, part of three tours in the Lancaster, Harrisburg, and York counties that features ponds from those areas. The tour provides a chance for pond owners to share ideas and answer questions of interested participants, he said.

For information about the tour, call (717) 626-4771.



Liners have gotten not only bigger but also more heavy duty over the years.

In addition to liners, preform ponds are available.

NFU Board Defends Integrity Of Organic Standards

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Farmers Union board of directors commended Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., and Rep. Sam Farr, D-Calif., for their efforts to uphold the integrity of federal organic standards. The legislators are working to repeal a recently passed law that would weaken standards for organic meats.

A measure included in the FY-2003 omnibus appropriations bill would allow livestock producers to label their products "organic" even if they use conventional, nonorganic feed. This approach was considered and rejected by USDA in June 2002 and opposed by the organic industry.

In a letter to the co-authors, the NFU board stated, "Legislative language granting a waiver for organic livestock producers to use conventional feed damages the very framework of the organic standards, and the legitimacy of the organic farming industry."

In October 2002, the USDA implemented federal organic standards which stated only organic feed could be fed to animals in order to label them organic. According to NFU president Dave Frederickson, these standards provided a reliable structure for organic producers to protect the integrity of their sector and for consumers to trust the organic seal.

"After years of thorough discussion and debate, the federal organic standards implemented in October 2002 provide a reliable structure to the fastest-growing sector of production agriculture," Frederickson said. "Efforts to weaken these standards would have a dramatically negative impact on organic production."

Corn: To Grow Or Not?

Sage Advice On Crops, Marketing For Beginning Farmers

George DeVault

Never mind that he is based in Des Moines, Iowa, the heart of the western Corn Belt.

Never mind that 90 percent of the 440,000 people who read his magazine grow at least some corn, or that the best Midwestern growers can net $95 to $175 an acre on corn, plus $30 an acre from the federal government.

When it comes to getting started in farming today, Successful Farming Business Editor Dan Looker has this advice: Don't grow corn!

"That net income of roughly $200 an acre pales in comparison to what an acre of established raspberries might produce in Pennsylvania," Looker told a crowd of about 200 at the Ninth Annual New and Beginning Farmer Workshop in Grantville.

"Why you don't need to grow corn to get started in farming" was the title of Looker's Keynote address at the popular conference sponsored by Pennsylvania Farm Link. By a show of hands, about 95 percent of the people in the audience said they wanted to become farmers.

"The title of my talk today was inspired by my experience at The New Farm," said Looker, who worked at the magazine in the early 1980s. (Although New Farm folded as a magazine in 1995, it was just revived as a Webzine by the Rodale Institute at www.newfarm.org).

"One of the people on the Rodale Press staff owned a small raspberry farm that was profitable. It provided some part-time income that supplemented his salary at Rodale. But what he really wanted to do was to someday have enough land and the machinery to grow a crop of corn. Even in those days, it didn't seem like you were a real farmer unless you could grow corn."

Nothing could be further from the truth, according to Looker and all the other workshop speakers. Growing corn does not a farmer make. In fact, with low commodity prices and rising production costs, corn can easily break a farm.

"According to Dick Funt, a small fruit specialist at Ohio State University, established raspberries can return $1,000 an acre or more over costs. His numbers make you wonder why anyone would want to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars in machinery to grow corn that might net you $200 in one of those rare years when you have a good crop and most of the world doesn't. According to Funt, raspberry farms have the potential to return about 12 percent on your investment. That's a lot more than the three to five percent that investors in Midwest corn ground might expect these days," Looker said.

Of course, raspberries are not an instant key to success. It takes a few years and maybe $6,000 to establish an acre of raspberries with trickle irrigation. So, raspberries may not be for everyone, but there are plenty of other profitable crops you can produce.

"If you can rent a small plot of land, you may be able to sell vegetables in the summer and pumpkins in the fall," Looker said. "If that goes well and if you have long-term access to land, then Dick Funt suggests moving into pick-your-own strawberries, which reach full production in three years. And, eventually, raspberries or blueberries may fit in."

Looker knows a lot about beginning farmers. After moving from The Des Moines Register to Successful Farming magazine, he wrote an entire book about people getting started in farming. It's called "Farmers for the Future." Even though the book was published in 1996, Looker said most of the farmers he featured are still in farming today, although maybe not exactly in the way they thought they would be in the beginning. That, Looker and the other speakers said, is because getting started in farming today requires flexibility and a diverse mix of high-value crops that may include:

- Pastured poultry, for both meat and eggs.
- Controlled grazing of any kind of livestock to help keep capital investment and production costs low.
- Organic production.
- Vegetables.
- Dairy goats.
- Farmstead cheese.
- Agritourism, or entertainment farming, as some call it. That can include everything from corn mazes and hayrides through you-pick pumpkin patches to fee fishing and hunting and even running a bed and breakfast on your farm.

"We need to look at living and working on farms in the broadest possible ways. Land can be used for more than producing food. Pennsylvania is blessed with a lot of beautiful farms that would appeal to city folks," Looker observed. Having a good Website for your farm is essential to success in any kind of agritourism, since so many city people plan their vacations with the help of the World Wide Web. Two-thirds of Americans now have Web access. They spend an average of 10 hours a week on line, and only two hours a week reading the newspaper.

While crop and enterprise mix can and will vary greatly from farm to farm and region to region, all of the speakers said there are timeless "guiding principles" that can help any beginning farmer. Here is a sampling:

- Start small and go slow.

Today, Charles Conklin produces 300,000 pounds of trout and largemouth bass a year at his Pocono Mountain Fish and Seafood Company. He started the business 31 years ago — with just 100 fish.

"By starting slowly, I mean doing your homework before you ever put a seed in the ground. Chip Planck, a college professor who became a vegetable farmer outside of Washington, D.C., has put how you should do this in the right order," Looker said, quoting Planck from "Farmers for the Future:"

- "The best ag school of all is your own farm. The next best, working at another farm for money. The next, working at another farm for no money. The worst, an ag school where you must pay them."
- Make sure your first customers are satisfied. There is no better advertising than word-of-mouth.
- Don't try to do everything.

"A lot of these agritourism businesses are very time consuming, just as is a lot of direct marketing," Looker cautioned. "I've visited some CSA farms that raise and market 40 or 50 different vegetables. That variety is part of the appeal over the blandness of supermarkets. But I can't imagine doing that and then having to cook breakfast and wash bedding for tourists every day on top of that.

"Agriculture is becoming more specialized but also a lot more diverse these days. Our system of food production includes Joel Salatin's system of pasture poultry production and Tyson Foods. No facet of this is simple. Some of it, including pasture farrowing and organic vegetable production, is far from simple. There are good reasons why many farmers would never try either one."

- Sell everything directly to consumers. Eliminate middlemen and put the whole food dollar in your pocket.
- Find a mentor.
- Work for a large-scale farm, a summer at a confinement hog operation. You'll learn what they're doing wrong — and what you can do better.
- Join a trade group such as the North American Farmers Direct Marketing Association (www.nafdma.com) to meet people in the same type of farming and exchange ideas.
- Don't rush out and buy land.

"Buying land these days would be economic suicide for many young farmers," Looker said. "Land prices have hit all-time highs in many areas. It's probably best to start out renting. This is where the linking programs may be able to help you."

Corn: To Grow Or Not?

Instead of buying land, Charles Marshall from the federal Farm Services Agency advised beginning farmers to "put your money into income-producing things. You have to reduce the amount of money you need. Do not buy land at the outset."

• Use credit sparingly — and wisely.

• Save your money.

"Don't go out to eat, buy new cars or a lot of new clothes," advised Brian Moyer, a Berks County pastured poultry producer. "Go to the store very little. Make do with what you have."

• Add value to what you produce.

"Value-added is where farmers here in Pennsylvania and the rest of the Northeast can beat the socks off of those of us in the Midwest who raise corn," said Looker. "We may have some of the best soils and flattest fields on earth, but you've got millions of potential customers."

Holley Moyer, Brian's helpmate, said she does that by turning her goat milk into several different kinds of "pot cheese," which is exempt from food processing laws. Just one gallon of milk produces one pound of cheese that retails for $14, which is more than most dairy producers receive for milk by hundredweight.

The Moyers first bought goats to reclaim overgrown land.

• Buy crop insurance, advised John Berry, Extension marketing specialist for southeastern Pennsylvania. It is a good risk management tool, comparable to homeowners, health and auto insurance.

• Explore the financial, land, housing and other resources of your extended family before turning to lenders and real estate agents.

Federal farm programs, the speakers said, won't do much for beginners since they mostly help larger, established farms that are getting bigger and pushing land prices higher. That's especially true of commodity programs.

Hog production, once a traditional "mortgage burner," is also risky for beginners, unless they specialize in pastured or organic production and direct marketing, usually to some niche market.

Successfully getting started in farming today all comes down to learning to be a successful entrepreneur, not just an agronomist or tractor driver, concluded Marion Bowlan, executive director of Pennsylvania Farm Link.

Key personality traits include passion and persistence, good health and lots of energy, creativity and innovation, independence and self-reliance, good intuition, self-confidence, market awareness, lack of need for status, acceptance of challenge and a strong work ethic.

As what she called a "calculated risk-taker," you'll no doubt figure out pretty quickly on your own that corn is definitely not the place to start.

New Soil Bacterial Disease Of Geraniums/Tomatoes

Eric Oesterling, from a talk by Dr. Seong-Hwan Kim at Mid Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Conference, Hershey, Pa.

I heard a very interesting talk at the Mid-Atlantic Fruit and Vegetable Conference that I feel I need to share with vegetable growers in Pennsylvania.

Dr. Seong-Hwan Kim, plant pathologist supervisor at the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, has identified a disease on greenhouse geranium cuttings that he fears could threaten tomatoes and potatoes in Pennsylvania fields.

It is a bacterial disease caused by Ralstonia solanacearum (=Pseudomonas solanacearum, =Burkhordeia solanacearum). In April 1999, a Pennsylvania geranium grower lost 10-40 percent of seven different varieties of Guatemala-propagated geraniums because of R. solanacearum. This was the first occurrence of the disease in Pennsylvania.

In March 2000, one greenhouse lost a few plants of Michigan-propagated geraniums, and in April 2000, another greenhouse lost 20 percent of geraniums that were also from Michigan. More recently the disease has been discovered on geranium cuttings originating from Kenya.

The disturbing things about this disease are: It is caused by a bacteria which attacks the roots and stem of not only geraniums, but also tomatoes, eggplants, and potatoes. It is possible that this strain of the bacteria can overwinter in Pennsylvania soils. Let me emphasize that to this point there is no evidence that the disease is established in Pennsylvania soils — it has been found only in greenhouses on geranium cuttings that came in from out of state or out of the country. The obvious concern is that the disease could move from geraniums to tomato transplants in the same greenhouse and then have infected tomatoes planted outdoors. As a soil-borne bacteria, it would be difficult to control in the field. Symptoms include yellowing and wilting of affected plants caused by a root rot. It does not cause leaf spots.

The geranium isolate of R. solanacearum found in Pennsylvania greenhouses belongs to the low temperature biotype, Biotype II/Race 3, which is a quarantine pest in Canada and Europe. Biotype II is the biotype usually found on potatoes or tomatoes in temperate climates (Hayward, A.C. 1976, In Proc. 1st International Conf. and Workshop on the Ecology and Control of Bact. Wilt Caused by Psedomonas solanacearum. E. L. Sequeira and A. Kelman). All geranium isolates from both 1999 and 2000 were tested and found to be the low-temperature biotype, Biotype II (Kim, S.H. unpublished data).

Tomatoes and eggplants appear to be much more susceptible to the geranium isolates of R. solanacearum than are geraniums (Kim, S.H. unpublished data). Tomatoes and eggplants should not be grown in greenhouses with geraniums that were propagated in regions where Biotype II is known to occur (such as Mexico, Central America, the Caribbean, Africa, and South America).

Further studies are needed. The bacteria should not be released near tomato and potato fields because Biotype II has the potential to be an invasive species that can survive outdoors in Pennsylvania. Once established, chemical control would be very difficult. Crop rotation away from tomatoes, potatoes, eggplants, and other solanaceous crops in a given field for at least two years would work to reduce or eliminate the bacteria in that field — as long as nightshade weeds were also eliminated.

If you encounter an unexplained wilt on geraniums (especially cuttings originating from out of the country), contact Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture plant inspectors or your Penn State extension agent with a background in horticulture.

Secretary Supports Aquaculture

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Designee Dennis C Wolff announced the opening day of trout season. In support of the Pennsylvania Aquaculture program, the Department of Agriculture encourages everyone to eat more of the commonwealth's fresh and healthy farm-raised trout.

"Research has proven that farm-raised trout contribute to a healthy diet," Secretary Wolff said. "Trout season provides the community with a perfect opportunity to enjoy the benefits of eating one of Pennsylvania's fine agricultural products fresh farm-raised trout."

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA) is working to ensure that Pennsylvania waterways are filled with farm-raised fish. In order to reduce effluents and potential pollutants in trout, PDA asked Zeigler Brothers, Inc. to perform an experiment. In cooperation with The Pennsylvania State University and the Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission (PFBC), Zeigler Brothers, Inc. conducted a study called "Trout Feed Evaluation: Integrating Waste Treatment Criteria." In the experiment, trout feed formulations were studied at Penn State's Rockspring Research Center. On March 23 697 rainbow trout raised during the study were donated to a PFBC Cooperative Nursery in Montour County. This study is one of many that have been conducted in order to preserve the nutrition content of Pennsylvania's farm-raised fish.

For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture at (717) 783-8462. For a free brochure or a trout cookbook, contact the U.S. Trout Farmers Association at (304) 728-2189.

Community Supported Agriculture Brings Fresh Produce to Consumers

CSA Directory Available Online

MILLHEIM (Centre Co.) — Pennsylvania's portion of the national Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) online directory was recently updated through a partnership with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA), the Robyn Van En Center for Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) Services, and the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture.

"The term CSA describes a mutually beneficial relationship between the farm and the people who consume the food the farm produces," said Sam Cantrell, owner of Maysie's Farm CSA in Chester County.

CSA farms are based on a shareholder system. Generally, CSA farmers like to secure shareholders by the beginning of March each year so that they know how many seeds they need to buy and can start planning their crops.

For the price of a share, generally $300-$650, consumers receive fresh produce each week during the local growing season (late spring- late fall). While share sizes can be adjusted, a weekly share generally provides enough produce for a family of four, or two adult vegetarians.

CSA shareholders accept risks and successes as part of their investment. Shareholders bear, with the farmer, the financial commitment involved with farming. If there is crop damage or drought, shareholders will receive less produce. In contrast, when there is extra produce due to an abundant harvest, they receive more than a regular portion of that particular type of produce.

While CSAs all work a little differently, they have a couple of general principles:

- Be a supply source for organic produce raised with minimal pesticides.
- Create a market for local farmers, thus sustaining the local community.
- Form a relationship between consumers and their food source.
- Provide a weekly delivery or pick-up point during the growing season for customers to get fresh produce.
- Produce is generally picked less than 24 hours before delivery.
- Provide opportunities for shareholders to visit the farm and participate in growing and harvesting the produce.

Consumers can locate the CSA closest to them by going to www.csacenter.org and selecting "directory."

The directory is maintained by the Robyn Van En Center for CSA Resources located in the Fulton Center for Sustainable Living at Wilson College in Chambersburg. The directory is a national listing of CSAs.

"We are excited to partner with other organizations to promote the growing number of CSA farms in Pennsylvania," said Stephanie Reph, coordinator, Robyn Van En Center.

"We often get questions from people looking for CSAs and we direct them to the Robyn Van En Center. The online directory is easy to search and points prospective consumers in the right direction," said Kate Gatski of the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture.

"CSAs are a smaller, but very important group of farmers. They provide a value-added service to consumers in Pennsylvania and cater to a niche market," said Dave Bingaman, chief of PDA's Division of Conservation and Agricultural Technology Division.

Christine Wise, partner in Friends Farm CSA, Blair County, spoke about her positive experiences with community supported agriculture.

"My husband and I have had our CSA for nine years," Wise said. "We have a CSA for the sense of community it brings and because it encourages people to become involved with the food they eat. Our CSA shareholders are simply amazing and provide us with moral and emotional support. During the drought last year, one member sent us a gift certificate to a restaurant to keep our spirits up. The members give us a lot of encouragement because they know that we're doing our best. In return, we give them the best produce in their CSA shares."

Pa.'s 2002 Trout Production Valued At $4.56 Million

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's 61 commercial trout growers sold 1.64 million pounds of trout, valued at $4.56 million, during 2002, ranking fifth nationally behind Idaho, North Carolina, Washington, and Arkansas, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service (PASS).

This was down from the 1.88 million pounds valued at $4.89 million sold in 2001. In addition to those sold, an estimated $5.9 million worth of trout were distributed for conservation and recreational purposes throughout the state, primarily by state hatcheries, cooperative nurseries, and private fishing clubs.

PASS, a joint operation of the National Agricultural Statistics Service and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, compiles data on Pennsylvania food and fiber production as part of a nationwide effort.

Sales of trout 12 inches or longer by the state's growers totaled 1.41 million pounds, or 86 percent of the total production sold during the period. This was down 230,000 pounds or 14 percent from the same period a year ago. Averaging $2.64 per pound, compared to $2.50 last year and $1.07 nationally, the 12-inch and larger trout were valued at $3.72 million. Fee and recreational sales accounted for 63 percent of the production, and restaurant and retail sales accounted for another 19 percent.

Sales of trout 6 to 12 inches long by Pennsylvania growers totaled 550,000 fish, or 221,000 pounds live weight during the period. This was down 11,000 pounds or 5 percent from the same period a year ago. At an average of $3.50 a pound, compared to $3.20 last year and $2.50 nationally, sales of 6- to 12-inch trout were valued at $774,000, with 75 percent of the volume sold to fee and recreational establishments.

Sales of trout 1 to 6 inches long by Pennsylvania growers totaled 220,000 fish, or 7,000 pounds live weight during the period. This was up 1,000 pounds or 17 percent from the same period a year ago. At an average of $298 per thousand fish, compared to $237 last year and $156 nationally, sales of 1- to 6-inch trout were valued at $66,000.

Trout distributed for restoration or conservation purposes, primarily by the state fish commission but also by private fishing clubs, included 5.61 million fish 6-12 inches long.

Total losses of all Pennsylvania trout intended for sale were 1.02 million fish during 2002, with 75 percent being lost to predators and 18 percent lost to drought.

The National Agricultural Statistics Service surveyed commercial trout growers in Pennsylvania and 19 other states: Arkanasas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Idaho, Maine, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, New York, North Carolina, Oregon, Tennessee, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. Information was collected by mail, telephone, and personal interview.

For the 20 selected states, the total value of all sales, both fish and eggs, received by trout growers during 2002 totaled $69.6 million, a decrease of 9 percent from 2001. Nationally, sales of fish totaled $65.2 million for 2002, while egg sales totaled $4.45 million. The state of Idaho accounted for 47 percent of the total value of fish sold.

Farm Pond Management CD ROM Available

ITHACA, N.Y. — Funded by a grant from the Cornell Small Farms Program, a new pond management resource is now available through your cooperative extension office. The "Commercial Farm Pond Management CD ROM" is a compilation of fact sheets, publications, Internet links, and other resources to provide up-to-date information about ponds on farms in New York.

The CD is being made available to cooperative extension offices for free, and farmers can access the information either electronically or in print form, by making arrangements with your local CCE office.

Northeast SARE Names Five Sustainable Farmer Educators

BURLINGTON, Vt. — The Northeast Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education (SARE) program has named five farmers as Sustainable Farmer Educators.

These farmers are paid a SARE stipend to travel, talk, and share their knowledge as they continue their farming operations. As time allows, they will be available to speak at meetings, conferences, and field days, talk to individual producers, and generally support the region's farmers as they move toward agriculture that is profitable, environmentally sound and beneficial to communities. The program, now in its second year, has proved to be an efficient way to connect farmers and strengthen the farm community.

James Binsberger of Homestead Orchards in Perkasie, Pa., has expertise in farm-based marketing, including bakery and deli sales, and is a practitioner of agritourism, which allows the farm to become a destination in its own right. Binsberger has offered farm tours, hay and pony rides, seasonal events like corn mazes and pig roasts and a range of activities for families with young children. He has spoken at conferences and worked directly with farmers for many years. He can be reached at (215) 257-9286 or hoi@netcarrier.com

Jack Gurley of Calvert's Gift Farm in Sparks, Md., runs a profitable organic farm on less than five acres. The farm products are marketed to area restaurants, distributed to shareholders of his community-supported farm, and also sold at two farmers' markets. Much of Gurley's experience is with developing new markets and products. He also focuses on how a very small farm can support a comfortable lifestyle. He has given talks and presentations on organic farming both in Maryland and nationally, and he can be reached at (410) 472-6764 or giftcal@aol.com.

Courtney Haase of Nunsuch Dairy and Cheese in Bradford, N.H., runs a small, award-winning dairy and is also founder of the Small Dairy Project, which gives farmers access to both knowledge and equipment, specifically a small pasteurizer that can be used for adding value to milk. Haase also gives cheese-making workshops and has experience talking to farmers about direct marketing dairy products, licensing, and processing issues. She can be reached at (603) 927-4176 or nunsuch@conknet.com.

Gregory (Dale) Neufeld of Meadowbrook Farm in Towanda, Pa., is a dairy farmer with knowledge about managed grazing and pasture management, the use of different composts on grazing land, and seasonal dairying to reduce labor and production costs. Neufeld has also explored solar watering systems and pastured poultry. He has met with graziers and dairy farmers in Pennsylvania and New York and has presented at several regional conferences. He can be reached at (570) 265-4072 or at neufeld@cableracer.com.

Eero Ruuttila of Nesenkeag Farm in Litchfield, N.H., is the director of New Hampshire's largest certified organic vegetable farm, which provides fresh specialty food to chefs and for wholesale distribution and also sends produce to area food banks. A background in farm management, as a certified organic inspector, and as a local-produce buyer for a large consumer food coop. He has been a speaker at meetings, conferences, and farmer-to-farmer events over the past two decades. He can be reached at (603) 886-8215 or pianofarm@tellink.net.

These five join ongoing Sustainable Farmer Educators Steve Groff, Elizabeth Henderson, and Larry Shearer. Conference planners, extension, and farmers are encouraged to get in touch with the Sustainable Farmer Educators to arrange a talk or a meeting or to learn more about their area of expertise. The goal of the program is to disseminate knowledge and to support farmers as they adopt and improve their sustainable production practices. Video Helps Growers Develop Marketing Strategies

ITHACA, N.Y. — Because farmers face a competitive and volatile market, growing a high-quality product may no longer be enough to guarantee financial success.

A new video shares the experience of managers of eight farms, who show how the right combination of products, customers, and marketing strategies can help build financially rewarding businesses.

"Farmers and Their Diversified Horticultural Marketing Strategies: An Educational Video on Innovative Marketing," NRAES-139 ($15 plus S&H/sales tax, 49-minute video, 1999) profiles vegetable, fruit, and horticultural growers in Maine, Massachusetts, New York, and Vermont who have pursued a variety of rewarding approaches adapted to their unique products and conditions.

The video was produced by Vern Grubinger, director of the Center for Sustainable Agriculture at the University of Vermont and vegetable and berry specialist for University of Vermont Extension.

The growers interviewed for the video successfully sell their products through a broad range of retail and wholesale outlets: roadside stands, farmers markets, large-scale community-supported agriculture organizations, multiple markets, internet sales, pick-your-own businesses, restaurant sales, and wholesale cooperatives. In their own words, the growers summarize the history of their marketing efforts, explain why their chosen strategies suit their products, geographic conditions, and personal goals, and reflect on how they have developed good relationships with loyal customers. The video will help both new and established growers and their advisors carefully consider the marketing options for their particular situations that can enhance income and promote the sustainability of their farms.

Contact NRAES, Cooperative Extension, P.O. Box 4557, Ithaca, NY 14852-4557. Shipping and handling for one copy is $3.75 within the continental U.S. New York residents add 8 percent sales tax (calculated on both the cost of the video and shipping and handling charges).

Strawberry Production Topic Of Comprehensive Guide

ITHACA, N.Y. — If you are a strawberry grower or an advisor to growers, you won't want to miss the "Strawberry Production Guide for the Northeast, Midwest, and Eastern Canada," NRAES-88, a publication from NRAES, the Natural Resource, Agriculture, and Engineering Service ($45 plus S&H/sales tax, March 1998, 162 pages).

It is the most comprehensive production guide ever produced for strawberry growers. The guide focuses on production practices popular in northeastern North America, but it contains pertinent information for anyone involved in growing berries.

Awarded a blue ribbon in the 1998 ASAE Educational Aids Competition, the "Strawberry Production Guide" is 162 pages long and contains 14 chapters, 37 figures, 47 tables, and 115 full-color photographs. It provides up-to-date, in-depth coverage of every aspect of strawberry culture — from preparing the production site to harvesting and marketing. It is sure to be a valuable resource for both experienced and novice growers. The guide comes in a three-ring binder.

The guide, NRAES-88, is available for $45 per copy (plus shipping and handling) from NRAES, Cooperative Extension, P.O. Box 4557, Ithaca, NY 14852-4557. The shipping and handling charge is $5.50 for a single copy within the continental U.S. (New York State residents must add 8 percent sales tax on the total including shipping and handling.)

with a straight tail), American Fantails (goldfish with translucent, waving fins), Black Moors (with bubble eyes), Red Cap Orandas (white with a puffy red head), and Calico and Calico Telescopes are also part of the fish available from the hatchery.

Others are ornamental Catfish, Koi Carp, Longfin (Butterfly) Koi, Red-and-White Fantails, and Rosy Red Minnows.

Challenges

"We take our hits with mother nature just like any other type of farm," said Rice. Droughts, floods, heat, ice, supply-and-demand, oxygen depletion, parasites, diseases, and predators take their toll on the farm's bottom line.

To protect the farm's prize brood fish, five acres of ponds have wire strung over top to discourage predators from the sky, such as blue herons, ospreys, kingfishers, and seagulls.

Predator barriers are also around ponds to keep bullfrogs, water snakes, snapping turtles, and mink from preying on the fish.

"We estimate that we lose 20 percent of the crop a year to predators," he said.

"When we stock the ponds, we try to stock maybe 20 percent extra for ponds that will have losses because of predators."

To offset these losses and continue to grow the business, "10 years ago we saw the need for a more exotic type of fish," said Rice. "We wanted a niche."

Facing increasing competition from southern feeder fish growers, the Rice family made the decision to begin a pilot project and began to build a closed system on the farm.

Consequently, more than three years ago the Rices put in twenty 400-gallon tanks that recirculate water with a filtration system — "high-tech fish culture" — said Rice.

The ornamental goldfish in the closed system enjoy 72-degree water year-round, since "goldfish won't grow when they're cold," said Rice.

An ornamental fish grown outside will take approximately two years to grow four inches. However "we can do it in 12 weeks in a closed system."

With the success of faster growth and a ready market for the closed-system fish, the Rices expanded the facility to include another 20 tanks.

Outside, eight inches of ice cover the ponds except for small circles of unfrozen areas, kept open by circulating water, so employees can monitor the fish underneath. "Fish come up there if they are stressed or sick," said Rice.

During the winter months, employees feed the fish approximately once a month. In the summer, however, the hungry fish eat once a day, seven days a week. A blower truck sprays feed to the larger ponds, and workers hand scoop feed to the small ponds.

Spawning Time

The fish that are marketed as breeding fish are culled three times before they make the cut, said Rice. Less than one percent of the fish that workers evaluate become breeding fish.

At the farm, 30 small ponds are set aside for the breeding fish. The outside ponds include an earthen bottom, concrete walls, and a netting to protect the valuable fish.

Spawning begins about mid-April and continues through the beginning of July. The ponds include 50 percent males (bucks) and 50 percent females (does).

The fish can only be sexed in the spring, when the males exhibit a sandpaper-like grit on their gills.

All goldfish — and there are 200-some varieties — "are members of the Carp family and go to vegetation to spawn," he said.

Consequently, workers put racks with spawning mats made of hog hair and horse mane for the fish to gravitate to.

"The mats are collected when we get a decent amount of eggs on them, ideally 10,000," Rice said. The eggs "look like little white pinheads" on the black mats.

Workers may transport the mats five times in a morning, since the fish are generally finished laying eggs by noon. The mats are put onto a cart and can be out of the water ten minutes without damage.

Wet burlap suffices when the mats must be out of the water for longer than 10 minutes.

The mats are hauled to production ponds where the eggs hatch in 3-5, or even 10 days, depending on the weather.

The young fish "are all black when they first hatch and start to color within 6-8 weeks," he said.

An egg sac remains with the fish the first five days. After the first week the fish begin eating a specially-formulated ration that will change as they mature.

"The crop that we spawn in the spring stretches until the following season," he said. Although they begin selling the fish when they are three months old, some of the fish will be there for one year.

Samples from the young fish are checked for diseases two to three times a week.

Harvesting The Fish

When a customer order comes in during the cold months, workers go to the smaller ponds that are set up to allow winter harvest. After cutting into the ice with a chainsaw, the workers lift the ice out with a boom and fork of a logging truck.

The ponds — each averaging three feet in depth — are drained into a six-foot basin with a standpipe.

"We get it to about halfway down, bait the fish with feed, and then surround them with a seine," said Rice.

"We try to get out 80-90 percent with a seine."

The fish are then bucketed into a truck complete with an

Viticulture Meeting Draws Crowd

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — An alternative viticulture meeting here Jan. 28-29 attracted 152 participants from 13 states and Canada, demonstrating the broad interest in this topic.

The meeting also hosted seven regional and national product and equipment suppliers as well as the Pennsylvania Association for Sustainable Agriculture.

Sustainable viticulture was addressed by Alice Wise from Long Island and Al MacDonald from Oregon. Alice is currently involved in developing a formal sustainable program for her region. MacDonald is president of the only internationally sanctioned sustainable viticulture program in the U.S. Both talked about the thoughtful use of low input forms of viticulture.

Nancy Wenner gave an update on Elwin Stewart's work with vine decline organisms in Pennsylvania and New York vineyards, still a pressing concern in eastern vineyards.

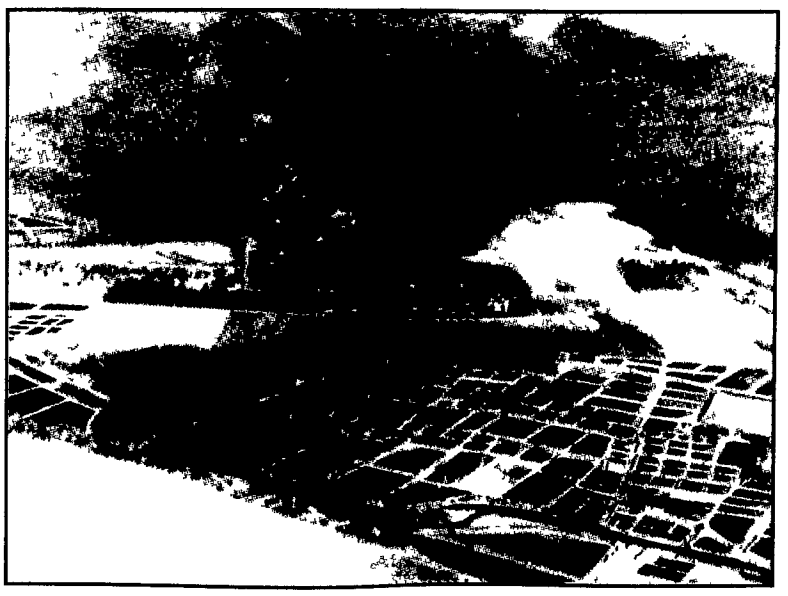
Brought back to holding tanks, the fish will be sent out in a week to ten days.

To fill a customer order, the harvested fish are put into a double-walled box with a waterproof coating.

A plastic bag that gets one gallons of water is pumped up with pure oxygen and filled with four pounds of fish, which could be 1,000 small Comets, one hundred fifty 3-4-inch fish, or one 14-16-inch Koi.

A cold pack also in the boxes helps to keep the fish cool and slow their metabolism.

Dan Shelly, assistant biologist, probes for parasites in the fish's gills and tails.



The farm includes more than 300 ponds ranging from a quarter acre to six acres in size.

The water is treated with a bacteriostat and salt "to put the slime coat on them" that the fish may have lost as they were transported and handled.

The feeder fish are sold by weight. They are graded as they swim through size racks "so we get a uniform size in each pool," he said. The fancier fish, however, are hand-sorted and hand-counted.

The fish are taken to airports to be shipped. Typically, the farm has four trucks on the road on Mondays.

Business Beginnings

Rice's grandfather, Earl Rice, founded the business in 1923. Attracted by the water source of the Conococheague Creek, he purchased three ponds that are still in use at the farm.

To keep up with the increased volume of fish raised at the farm, seven wells now add their water to the farm's ponds.

In 1958, Mike Rice's father, Richard, took over after working with his father, Earl Rice. Richard, who managed the business for 40 years, increased pond numbers from approximately 40.

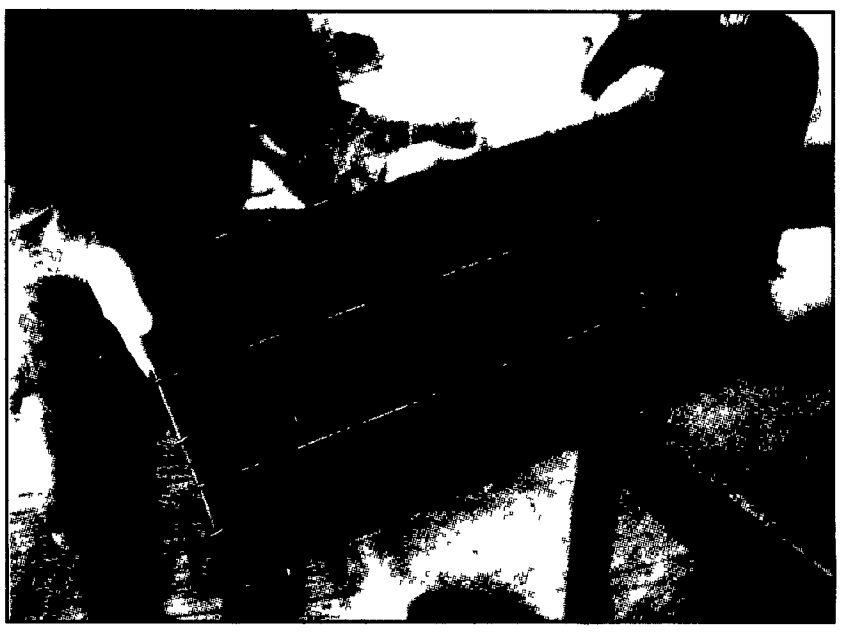
In 1998, Richard's son Mike took over the management responsibilities after working together with his father for 15 years.

"It is a total team effort," said Mike Rice. "Mount Parnell is here because of its loyal employees. We have folks that have been here 15-30 years." The business includes 25 full-time employees including two biologists.

Besides helping out at the farm, Richard and his wife, Sue, operate a retail gift shop, The Goldfish Barn, to sell fish to walk-in customers.

Mike is joined by his wife, Nancy, and children Laura, Garrett, and Will, who help care for a herd of 30 Black Angus cattle.

The entire farm lies in the shadow of nearby Mount Parnell.



Racks with spawning mats made of hog hair and horse mane for the fish to gravitate to. The mats are collected "when we get a decent amount of eggs on them, ideally 10,000," Mike Rice, manager of the family business, said.

Employee Sharon Riley prepares fish for shipment. The harvested fish are put into a double-walled box with a waterproof coating. A plastic bag is filled with one gallon of water and is pumped up with pure oxygen.
